Turn in Market Comes After Gains Had Been Substantially Extended in Many Shares.

DEMONSTRATION IN INVESTMENT RAILS

U. S. Steel Rises About 6 Points Before Decline — Sterling Exchange at New High on Recovery.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The stock market today ran into a storm of profit-taking and bear selling, which wiped out or cut down most of the early gains of 1 to 8 points, and carried scores of issues down 1 to nearly 7 points below last Saturday's closing quotations. In the absence of any adverse news developments, the reaction was generally characterized as a technical correction of the top-heavy speculative position created in last week's rapidly rising market.

Total sales ran over 5,000,000 shares, with the ticker 32 minutes late at one time.

U. S. Steel common, after moving up more than 6 points to 189, was hamemred down to 179, closing at 180 for a net loss of 2¾ points. Weakness of steel started a wave of liquidation throughout the general list despite the strenuous efforts of operators for the advance to maintain bullish enthusiasm by marking up a selected list of rails and specialties to the accompaniment of favorable dividend and recapitalization rumors.

Time Loans Firmer.

The outstanding incident of the day in the money market was the raising of bids for time loans of 60-day or longer maturities to 5 per cent. Last week fixed term loans of such maturities were quoted 4½-4¾ per cent, but today the bid was firm at 5 per cent with little or no money reported on offer. The stiffening was attributed to drawing back of foreign and out-of-town funds which had been a factor making for ease in that part of the market recently. Call money was in small demand, but firm around the 4½ per cent official rate. Some bankers are predicting pronounced ease after the turn of the year, but in some quarters it was pointed out today that much depended on the movement of gold in the meantime.

Motors and Coppers Turn.

Eastman Kodak, Columbian Carbon and J. I. Case each sold down 8 points and Western Union, American Water Works, General Electric, A. M. Byers, Westinghouse Electric, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Simmons Co. and Texas Pacific Railroad were carried down 5 to 7 points in the late wave of selling.

Motors and coppers, which were strong earlier in the session as a result of heavy short covering, yielded with the rest of the list, although Anaconda, Packard, Cerro De Pasco, Briggs, Andes Copper, and Studebaker closed with gains ranging from fractions to nearly 2 points.

Rise in Sterling.

Reactionary tendencies also predominated in the commodity markets. Wheat dropped 2½ to 3 cents a bushel. Corn fell about a cent a bushel. Cotton yielded about 40 cents to $1 a bale.

Except for the rise in sterling to the highest level in two years, there were no developments of interest in the Foreign Exchange market.

Some gold was exported to London in May, 1928, when the rate was below $4.88¾ but this was bought by a London bank which possessed special facilities which, through eliminating loss of interest in transit, enabled it to import the metal at a lower rate of exchange than would have been possible to others with a profit.

Closing stock prices, with other tables and market news, will be found on Pages 11C, 12C and 13C.

Widely Known Former Judge of Denver Juvenile Court Found to Have Accepted Fees While in Office.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 9.—Ben B. Lindsey, former Denver Judge and attorney, today was disbarred by the Colorado State Supreme Court on charges of professional misconduct, embracing acceptance of fees while he was Judge. This bars him from practice of law in all Colorado courts.

The decision of the Court was unanimous. The charge against Lindsey, who won wide fame for his administration of the Denver Juvenile Court, was that he accepted $37,000 from Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, who was attempting to establish the rights of her two children for a settlement of the W. E. D. Stokes estate. He was charged with taking $10,000 from Samuel Untermyer, New York attorney, in the same case.

Lindsey was Judge of the Denver Juvenile Court while the Stokes case was pending. In his defense he said his connection in the Stokes case was "disinterested from the work of the Juvenile Court" and that he acted "merely as arbitrator and mediator."

On being informed of his disbarment, Lindsey declared that the proceedings were the result of activities of his personal and political enemies, inspired by reforms he had instituted.

He described the money received in connection with the Stokes case as a gift, which, he said, had been approved by the Probate Court and sanctioned by other attorneys. When a question as to the gift was raised he said he offered to return the money, but the parties who made the gift refused to agree to the return.

LONGEST DROUTH IN 50 YEARS ON PACIFIC COAST BROKEN

Rain Falls From British Columbia to Central California and as Far East as Utah.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 9.—The longest drouth in half a century was broken yesterday by a general rain which swept from British Columbia to as far South as Fresno, Cal.

Although light in Northern and Central California, the rainfall in the Northwest was sufficient to allay fears of a further electric power shortage.

Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Nevada and Utah received a wetting, as did Northern and Central California.

In Vancouver, B. C., snow followed the rain last night. In Seattle rain fell throughout the night, as it did in Tacoma, where more moisture was promised for the next 24 hours.

Rainfall in Portland amounted to 1.54 inches, twice the entire precipitation for November. Snow fell in the uplands of Oregon.

OKLAHOMA GOVERNOR REPRIEVES BOY ROBBER

Won't Let 17-Year-Old Youth Die or Serve Life Term, He Says.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Dec. 9.—Ted Cole, 17 years old, who was sentenced by Judge Saul Yaeger of the Tulsa County District Court to die Dec. 31 for robbing a bottling works plant at Tulsa, will not be executed, nor will he be required to serve a life sentence for the crime, Gov. W. J. Holloway said today. The youth was convicted of robbery with firearms, a capital offense, and given the extreme penalty, although he fired no shots in the holdup.

Issuing a reprieve of six months to allow Cole time for an appeal to the Criminal Court of Appeals, Gov. Holloway ordered Dr. J. Q. Newell, Warden of the State Penitentiary, to remove the youth from death row.

"I am not going to allow Cole to die," the Governor said. "Letters have been coming to me from all over the United State concerning this sentence. I have examined the facts and not only will I refuse to let Cole be executed, but I will see that he does not have to serve a life sentence.

"It is just a difference of opinion between myself and Judge Yaeger as to the punishment warranted by the facts and the circumstances."

The Governor said he would abide by the Criminal Court of Appeals ruling if Cole appealed.

AUSTRALIAN SUPREME COURT BARS INQUIRY INTO SUICIDE

Public Will Probably Never Learn Reason for Beauty Queen's Death.

By the Associated Press.

BRISBANE, Australia, Dec. 9.—The mystery of the suicide of Miss Dulcie Barclay, Australian "beauty queen," who took poison last September, probably will never be solved as far as the public is concerned. The Supreme Court today made absolute a decree restraining Magistrates from inquiring into the circumstances of her death.

Miss Barclay's suicide roused intense interest and public manifestations in Australia. She was found dying in the chambers of Robert O'Connor, a prominent Brisbane barrister with high political connections.

When the authorities refused on certain technical grounds to hold an inquest, it was widely alleged that there was something to conceal in the circumstances of the girl's death. A magisterial inquiry was finally decided on at the request of the National Council of Women and of a body of clergymen, but it was canceled by order of the Queensland Home Secretary, who stated that the clergy had withdrawn their request. This assertion was, however, flatly denied by the clergy themselves in the Queensland newspapers.

Feeling became so aroused that a public investigation into Miss Barclay's death was ordered. This investigation was actually started Oct. 17, but it had not proceeded for an hour before counsel representing O'Connor obtained an adjournment for appeal to the Supreme Court to prohibit the inquiry.

72 CHINESE PERISH WHEN PIRATES TRY TO SEIZE SHIP

THREE U. S. WOMEN WITNESS ATTACK

Vessel, Its Superstructure Burned, Is Aided by Two Destroyers and Finally Reaches Hongkong.

By the Associated Press.

HONGKONG, Dec. 9.—Twelve Chinese pirates were shot to death, about 60 Chinese drowned and 40 or more wounded last night when a swarm of brigands fought with the crew of the British steamship crew of the British steamship Haiching for its possession.

Three American women were witnesses to the conflict and spent hours of terror aboard the ship before British destroyers, the Sterling and the Sirdar, came to its aid. Much of the super-structure of the vessel was burned. It finally made port here from Swatow.

The American women were a Mrs. Campbell and her two daughters, missionaries, from Los Angeles. They were not injured.

The Haiching left Swatow for Hongkong Saturday with 300 passengers, including an Englishman and three American women. Early Sunday morning 50 or 60 pirates who had shipped as passengers sprang upon the decks.

They first stormed the bridge, firing revolvers. One of their shots killed Third Officer Woodward. The bridge was protected by barbed wire and a rapid exchange of shots between the pirates and the officers and Indian guards finally forced the attackers to retire.

After a brief lull, another attempt was made to storm the bridge, but the accurate fire of the officers and guards picked off the pirate leaders and they withdrew, leaving dead and wounded on the deck. No other frontal attack was made but considerable sniping followed in which an Indian guard was killed, another wounded and Chief Officer Perry wounded.

The Sterling and the Sirdar about this time answered radio distress signals sent by a young Chinese operator. The Sterling drew near as the pirates, using kerosene, set fire to the bridge and decks.

The Chinese passengers from below rushed above, panic-stricken as the vessel filled with smoke, and about 60 of them jumped overboard and were drowned. Mothers with babies in arms were among those leaping overboard. Others attempted to launch lifeboats and were drowned when they failed.

The Sterling came alongside and quickly restored order aboard the ship, arresting the remaining pirates and extinguishing the flames. Thirty-eight wounded buccaneers were sent to the hospital. Others of the pirates were placed in jail.

GRUNDY PROBABLE CHOICE AS SUCCESSOR TO VARE

STONE OWL, 22 YEARS IN FRONT OF LINDELL BL. HOME, STOLEN

A stone owl weighing 80 pounds was stolen Saturday from in front of the home of Abe Slupsky, 3852 Lindell boulevard, where it had been for the last 22 years.

The owl, having yellow eyes, is highly prized by Slupsky, who received it from the late Laclede Howard about 35 years ago. The figure was originally installed in front of 3319 Laclede avenue, where Slupsky resided before purchasing his present residence. It is about three feet in height and was mounted on a pedestal, which was not taken.

U. S. SUPREME COURT PUTS FINAL OK ON BAR SCREEN LAW

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Final approval was given by the United States Supreme Court today to the Missouri State law forbidding so-called soft-drink parlors to use blinds or screens obstructing the view into the places from the street.

A number of St. Louis proprietors of such establishments obtained an injunction in the local courts against the police, to prevent enforcement of the screen law, which they declared to be class legislation.

The Missouri Supreme Court upheld the law, and the complainants then went to the United States Supreme Court on constitutional grounds. They alleged that the law was designed to abridge their privileges and immunities as citizens, deprive them of liberty and property without due process, and deny them equal protection with other forms of business.

The Supreme Court holds these objections to be without merit. Its decision will remove the barrier to enforcement of the screen law, which had been held in abeyance by the St. Louis police and other Missouri local authorities, pending the appeal.

Enacted by the 1923 Legislature as part of a revised State bone-dry law, the screen statute dealt with a matter which had long been a subject of controversy and regulation in this State. In pre-prohibition days, the matter of screens in St. Louis saloons was regulated by orders of the Excise Commissioner, a State official with broad powers.

SENATOR'S 'BOOZE PARTY' TALE IGNORED BY GRAND JURY

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The grand jury today decided to ignore testimony by Senator Brookhart of Iowa relative to the "Wall Street booze party" given by Walter Fahy, New York broker, to new members of Congress in 1926, at which Brookhart said liquor was served.

Prior to his appearance before the grand jury, Brookhart had said in the Senate that he sat at the dinner between Otto Kahn, New York financier, and E. E. Loomis, president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and that the latter poured "some alcoholic stuff" from a glass and drank it.

Loomis was also called before the grand jury as was the manager of the New Willard Hotel where the dinner took place.

The grand jury in its report said it was 'deemed that the lack of evidence, together with the extraordinary lapse of time between the alleged violations and the revelation of the facts relating to this affair, make it impracticable for the grand jury to consider the matter further."

Custody of a 2-year-old daughter, Eve, was awarded to Mrs. du Pont. A substantial property settlement was effected out of court, but Court approval was given to the settlement.

Du Pont and Miss Wrenn were married in Washington. It is understood the divorce was granted on the grounds of incompatibility.

U. S. SIGNS PROTOCOL FOR ADHESION TO WORLD COURT IN CEREMONY AT GENEVA

VICTIM MURDERED WITH PIECE OF PIPE

By the Associated Press.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Dec. 9.—Fingerprints on a short length of pipe used to kill her were the most important clews police had today to the slaying of Miss Cordelia Gummersheimer, 36-year-old school teacher.

Miss Gummersheimer was clubbed to death some time after 11 o'clock Saturday night. Friends looking for her after she had failed to keep an appointment last night, discovered the body, clad in pajamas, lying across the bed of her third-floor apartment.

Police today were looking back over Miss Gummersheimer's life in quest of a possible motive. The young woman had not been criminally attacked, physicians said, and nothing in the apartment had been disturbed.

Dentist Held for Inquiry.

Dr. Floyd Leach, a dentist, is being held, pending an investigation. Dr. Leach, who lives in a cabin north of Rockford on the Rock River, has offices in the Blackhawk Building, next to the apartment building in which Miss Gummersheimer lived.

State's Attorney Knight said Leach was being held only for questioning. The dentist, an eccentric, admitted loitering in the neighborhood of the apartment house early Sunday morning, saying he had left his offices late at night. He was at a restaurant in the neighborhood at 2 a. m. Sunday. He was questioned, the State's Attorney said, to learn if he had seen anyone leaving or entering the apartment in which Miss Gummersheimer lived. Leach was picked up early this morning wandering along the river bank near his cabin.

The State's Attorney said another man was being sought.

Brother Gives No Clew.

A brother, August Gummersheimer of St. Louis, after a conference with State's Attorney Knight, said he could think of no motive for the crime.

He said that about two years ago his sister told her family she was fond of a Porto Rican, whom she had met while teaching in Mayaguez, Porto Rico. The brother did not know the Porto Rican's name.

Authorities turned to preservation of the finger prints found on the length of pipe. Whether or not the prints could be photographed had not been determined.

Extradition of Dr. Leach to face charges of wife abandonment in Los Angeles has been sought for several months. The papers have been signed by Gov. Emmerson and the final hearing on the extradition has been set for Jan. 12. The dentist was a Lieutenant in the Dental Corps with the A. E. F. during the World War.

Had Frequent Callers.

Chief of Police Reed said he paid little heed to bloodstains found on a towel in the dentist's office as he had extracted several teeth Saturday night.

Miss Gummersheimer had been a teacher of German and dramatic art here for eight years and had a wide circle of friends. Neighbors said she had frequent callers, both men and women, and police found letters and telegrams showing she corresponded with several men.

Widigren, who won the New York-to-Albany outboard motorboat race in 1928, was killed almost instantly. Lawrence Bersoll, 25, a construction engineer of Hicksville, L. I., died a few minutes later in Nassau Hospital at Mineola.

Joseph Monguilizo, 28, also a contractor, Locust Valley, N. Y., is in Nassau Hospital suffering from a broken back. Three other passengers in the car suffered minor injuries. They were returning from last night's hockey game at Madison Square Garden.

NEW SENATORS FROM WYOMING AND NEW JERSEY TAKE OATH

Credentials of P. J. Sullivan Replacing Warren, Referred to Committee, However.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Patrick J. Sullivan of Cheyenne took the oath of office in the Senate today as a successor to the late Senator Warren of Wyoming, but his credentials were referred to the Committee on Elections for consideration.

Senator Walsh of Montana, assistant Democratic leader, said doubt had been expressed of the power of the Wyoming Governor to make an appointment under Wyoming law, although he was convinced the appointment was legal. Because of this uncertainty Walsh asked that Sullivan's credentials be referred to the committee.

Sullivan's appointment is only temporary as Gov. Emerson has called a special election for next month to select a successor to Warren.

David Baird of Camden was sworn in as a Senator from New Jersey, succeeding Walter Edge, who resigned to become Ambassador to France.

Gov. Larson of New Jersey, who appointed Baird, a Republican, accompanied him to the Senate floor. Gov. Larson has announced that Dwight W Morrow, Ambassador to Mexico, will take Baird's seat when Morrow has concluded his duties with the American delegation at the London naval parley early next year.

COMPLETES FINAL STEP PREPARATORY TO SUBMISSION OF PACT TO SENATE

Signature of Nation Attached to Root Formula and Two Other Documents on Hoover's Order.

RATIFICATION IS NOW EXPECTED

Irreconcilables, However, Will Fight New Proposal, Despite Shattering of League Bugaboo.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Dec. 9.—Jay Pierrepont Moffat, American Charge D'Affaires at Berne, today signed in behalf of the United States Government the protocol for the adhesion of the United States to the World Court.

Moffat signed three documents, the court statutes of 1921, the revision of this statute adopted by the recent assembly of the League of Nations, and the protocol for the admission of the United States.

The signature of the American representative to the adhesion protocol followed the signatures of almost all the members of the World Court, Lithuania, Albania and Abyssinia being the only members' names missing.

Besides Moffat there were present Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the League; Arthur Sweetser, American official in the secretariat; Juan Antonio Buero, former Foreign Minister of Uruguay and his fellow official of the League secretariat, Sanches Teixidor of Spain.

By CHARLES G. ROSS.
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—In his first annual message to Congress last Tuesday, President Hoover said:

> I shall direct that our signature be affixed to the protocol of adherence (to the World Court) and shall submit it for the approval of the Senate with a special message at some time when it is convenient to deal with it.

The first of these two steps toward the entrance of the United States into the World Court, as advocated by Presidents Harding, Coolidge and Hoover and approved by the Senate, with reservations, on Jan. 27, 1926, has now been taken. By direction of the President, the charge d'affaires of the United States at Berne, Jay P. Moffat, today, at Geneva, signed the documents of adherence to the court. There are three of these, described as the Protocol of Signature of the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice, the Protocol of Accession of the United States to the Protocol of Signature, and the Protocol of Revision of the Statute of the Court.

Before the action of the President, through the American representative at Berne, can become effective, the assent of the Senate, as required by the Constitution, must be obtained.

The overwhelming vote by which the Senate, in 1926, approved the Coolidge proposal of American membership in the court, 76 ayes to 17 nays, encourages supporters of the court to believe that within a few months the United States will be aligned with the 52 nations that are now members.

Irreconcilable Against It.

Acceptance of the new proposal will be fought by the same group of "irreconcilable" senators who opposed ratification of the court protocol from 1923 to 1926, and on the same ground, namely, that entrance into the court would ultimately lead the United States through the "back door" into the League of Nations. President Hoover had this bugaboo in mind when he declared in his message that "our adherence" to the International Court is, as now con-

TWO ST. LOUISANS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH IN FLORIDA

OTHER MACHINE LATER FORCED DOWN

R. W. Schrock, Taylorville, Ill., and Leonard Carrothers, Cedar Rapids, Ia., Are Injured.

By the Associated Press.

TAMPA, Fla., Dec. 9. — Two pilots of a refueling ship were killed here yesterday morning when their craft crashed in a take-off with 80 gallons of fuel for an endurance plane. Fifteen minutes later the endurance flyers were forced down, suffering minor injuries.

Elmer A. Dempsey and Stanley Smith of St. Louis were burned to death in the refueling plane which caught fire as it crashed.

R. W. Schrock of Taylorville, Ill., and Leonard Carrothers of Cedar Rapids, Ia., suffered minor injuries as they attempted a forced landing with the endurance plane, the Sealdsweet of Florida, near Kissimmee, Fla., in a fog.

The endurance plane was nearly out of fuel when the refueling ship took off, and the pilots sought unsuccessfully to bring their craft to earth, but crashed in a woods. The endurance plane took fire, but Carrothers and Schrock were able to crawl to safety.

The endurance plane took off Saturday at 9:50 a. m. for the ninth time to seek a new refueling endurance mark. Numerous minor difficulties had caused the pilots to land on previous attempts, but after more than 23 hours in the air, the ship seemed to be flying perfectly.

Pilots Trapped in Cabin.

The Sealdsweet made its last circle over the city yesterday morning about 7 o'clock with gasoline in its tanks to last three hours. At 9:30 Dempsey and Smith started in the refueling plane to find it in the fog and replenish its tanks.

Their heavily loaded ship turned over on its left wing just as it skirted the edge of the field to gain altitude. It burst into flames immediately and its two pilots were trapped in the cabin.

Within 15 minutes, the endurance plane, groping in the fog with its fuel running low, "pancaked" into a pine tree in a dense wood seven miles out of Kissimmee and slid to the ground. Its pilots squirmed out of the cabin barely in time to escape the flames that consumed the ship. Carothers suffered a crushed hand, and Schrock received slight cuts and bruises. They walked into Kissimmee and were treated there in a physician's office.

Says Plane Was Overloaded.

The planes were owned by Randall Norvel of St. Louis, who promoted the record attempt, but after the eighth flight he returned home. Both planes were Robin monoplanes, similar to the St. Louis Robin.

The bodies of Dempsey and Smith will be sent to St. Louis today.

J. R. Pockett, inspector of the aeronautical division of the Department of Commerce, started an investigation into both accidents yesterday, and blamed the crash here on overloading, dense fog and weather conditions. He had not yet seen the wreck near Kissimmee.

He said overloading was permitted by the Commerce Department in endurance flights and the crash was "just one of those unfortunate things that can happen."

Dempsey Had Reputation for Daring.

Dempsey, known as "Boots," learned to fly at Lambert-St. Louis Field in 1922. Before taking up aviation he was a professional automobile racer and motor cyclist, and he quickly became known as a daring pilot. In July, 1922, Eldridge W. Anderson of 3638 Park avenue, a passenger in a plane piloted by Dempsey, was killed in a crash at Lambert-St. Louis Field. Dempsey was injured but recovered and resumed flying.

With others of the early Lambert Field flyers, Dempsey was a close friend of Col. Lindbergh. After engaging in barnstorming for several years, Dempsey became personal pilot for Oscar Johnson, 38 Portland place. Johnson sold his plane early this year and Dempsey worked during the summer months as an instructor at a flying school at Champaign, Ill. Returning to St. Louis, he became test pilot for a brief period for the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Mfg. Co., succeeding Forrest O'Brine, endurance flyer. He then became instructor for Mr. and Mrs. John T. Milliken, who own a Robin monoplane.

Dempsey piloted the refueling plane in a recent attempt at Granite City to break the endurance flight record, and served in a similar capacity in Florida early last month. His last visit to Lambert-St. Louis Field was Nov. 15, when he flew here with five small alligators, two of which were placed in the Forest Park Zoo.

Dempsey acquired the name "Boots" during his first years at Lambert Field because of his choice in footwear. He was 34 years old and unmarried and made his home with his brother, Thomas, at 4644A Carter avenue. His mother, Mrs. Margaret Cook, and a sister, Mrs. Grace Weaver, also survive. Funeral services will be held here.

Stanley Smith was 25 years old, and resided at 7825 Michigan avenue with his mother, Mrs. Louisa Dodson. Following his discharge from the Air Service at Scott Field, he was engaged by Dempsey as mechanic on Johnson's plane. He later became mechanic for the trimotored plane of the Shell Oil Co., resigning to go to Champaign with Dempsey. He took part in the preparations for the Granite City endurance flight attempt and accompanied Dempsey to Florida. His body will arrive at Fendler's undertaking establishment at 7128 Michigan avenue tonight.

The "irreconcilables" lost their most vigorous fighter when Reed of Missouri left the Senate. Borah of Idaho, Johnson of California and Moses of New Hampshire form the spearhead of the group that will carry on the battle.

Since the last test, the hand of the court champions has been measurably strengthened by three developments, the hearty support which President Hoover has given to the proposed American participation, in contrast with the tepid recommendations of his predecessor; the election last year of Charles E. Hughes, former Secretary of State, as a judge of the court, and the almost universal acceptance of the Kellogg peace pact.

When the Senate approved the court protocol in 1926, it did so with five reservations. The first four caused no difficulty, but the fifth proved a stumbling block. This provided that the court should entertain no request "for an advisory opinion touching any dispute or question in which the United States has or claims an interest."

The nations signatory to the court protocol balked at this reservation as it stood, but evinced a desire to find some formula that would be satisfactory to the United States and at the same time give assurance that the work of the court would not be hampered by rights claimed under the reservation.

Out of the subsequent negotiations grew the so-called Root formula, devised, it is interesting to note, by the same ingenious brain that had found the solution of the major difficulty faced by the framers of the original court plan in 1920. It is due largely to Elihu Root, former Secretary of State, one of the committee of 10 eminent jurists who drafted the plan and now the author of the saving formula bearing his name, that the United States has been brought to the very threshold of the court.

Guided by the Root suggestion, the nations signatory to the court protocol amended the statute in September of this year in such a manner, according to the President in his message, as to "meet the Senate's reservations and to go even beyond those reservations to make clear that the court is a true international court of justice"

"I believe," the President added, "it will be clear to everyone that no controversy or question in which this country has or claims an interest can be passed on by the court without our consent at the time the question arises. The doubt about advisory opinions has been completely safeguarded."

ADVOCATES MERGING TELEGRAPH SERVICES

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Bigger mergers and a more advanced state of monopoly in the business of communications were advocated before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce today by Owen D. Young, head of the General Electric Co. and the Radio Corporation of America, author of the Young plan of reparations and frequently mentioned as a prospective candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1932.

With a blandness which amazed the committee, Young read a prepared statement in which he urged Congress to end competition between the telegraph companies in this country by permitting a merger of existing companies, and in which he urged the unification of all the means of communication between this and other countries. There was an undertone of challenge in his voice when he added:

"If you have any hesitation about unifying our external communications in the hands of a private company, then I beg you to unify them under Government ownership."

R. C. A. Story Under Fire.

The familiar claim that the Radio Corporation of American was organized at the request of President Wilson, was sharply questioned when Young attempted to repeat it today. Despite the efforts of Senators Hawes of Missouri and Tydings of Maryland to shield Young from the searching cross-examination of Senator Dill and committee counsel, William Green, evidence was put into the record flatly contradicting the claim.

Young testified that in 1919 the General Electric Co., had perfected the Alexanderson alternator, a device for long-distance radio communication. It was about to sell this invention to the British Marconi Co., he said, when the late Admiral W. H. G. Bullard appeared, explaining that he had been sent from Paris by President Wilson, then in the midst of peace negotiations, to plead with General Electric not to sell the patent because by so doing it would put the British in a position to monopolize international communications. It was in response to this appeal, Young declared, that the Radio Corporation of America was formed.

Over the strenuous objection of Hawes and Tydings, Green thereupon read into the record testimony given by Young before a Senate committee in 1921, in which he told of Bullard's visit to him, but made no mention of President Wilson in that connection. Young said he could not explain why he omitted to mention it then, but insisted that Bullard had told him that he was sent by the President.

Green then read an article written by Admiral Bullard in 1923 for the Naval Institute proceedings, in which he stated that he never heard of the proposed sale of the Alexanderson alternator until he had returned to Washington, and that it was upon learning of it at his office in Washington that he went to see Young, and urged him not to permit its sale.

Hawes and Tydings Protest.

Both Hawes and Tydings interrupted constantly to protest against what they said was an "unfair attempt to contradict Mr. Young's testimony," but Chairman Couzens bade Green proceed with his examination, and the attorney then read from testimony given a year ago by Commander S. C. Hooper, who accompanied Bullard on the visit to Young in 1919. In this testimony Hooper, alluding to himself and Bullard, said "we decided" to go and see Young in an effort to prevent the proposed sale. He did not mention President Wilson.

"I cannot see the purpose of this line of inquiry," Tydings broke in again. "What difference would it make if President Wilson did send Bullard to see Mr. Young?"

"Yes, I have been wondering just how far afield from the main subject we are going," added Senator Hawes. "What has it got to do with the matter under inquiry?"

Chairman Couzens sharply inquired if neither of the Senators was aware that officers of the Radio Corporation had made this story the basis of claims for preferred treatment at the Government's hands.

He said further that every time those officers had appeared before this committee they had endeavored to create "a favorable psychological effect" on its members by repeating the story.

"Of course, even if the story is true, it doesn't entitle the corporation to immunity under the laws," interjected Senator Barkley (Dem), Kentucky. "As much as I admired Woodrow Wilson, it would not prejudice me in this company's favor to know that it was founded at his request."

Truth Important, Says Wheeler.

"But if the corporation is using the newspapers and magazines of this company to spread a propaganda designed to impress Congress and the country in its favor, it seems to me that the committee should ascertain the truth or falsity of the statements made," retorted Wheeler.

Couzens finally observed that Hawes and Tydings had wasted more time trying to prevent Green from asking the questions than would have been consumed in asking and answering them, and he directed Green to proceed.

Young without attempting to explain the contradictory effect of Bullard's and Hooper's statements toward his own merely reiterated that he had stated the facts about what Bullard told him and added that it was in response to this appeal that officers of the General Electric Co. formed the Radio Corporation of America and planned for it to make use of the Alexanderson alternator. There was not in their minds at that time any inkling of the early development of broadcasting he said. They were thinking, he said of a radio communications system.

Had to Take in Westinghouse.

But they soon found, he added that the Westinghouse Electric Co., owned patents without which no communications system could be established.

To sum up, as Young related it, the General Electric and its new baby, the Radio Corporation, owned the patents essential to transmission, but Westinghouse owned those essential to reception. So Westinghouse was taken into the Radio Corporation.

A few pointed questions from Green developed that Westinghouse, as a matter of fact, acquired its key patents after the formation of the Radio Corporation, outbidding representatives of the General Electric for them. Young's testimony made it fairly plain that Westinghouse by "putting over a fast one" had compelled General Electric to take it into the Radio Corporation.

Subsequently other interests were taken in, including the United Fruit Co., which owned a wireless system in Latin America, and the Victor Talking Machine Co.

General Electric is the largest stockholder of Radio Corporation, and Young is chairman of both boards. General Electric and Westinghouse have five men each on the Radio Corporation board, which consists of 19 directors, and thus they control it.

Citing what he said was the retarded development of telegraphy as compared with telephones and radio, Young ascribed it to the keen competition between the Western Union and the Postal. He said they spent so much money getting business that they had none left for research and development. As a sample of duplication and waste, he remarked that when he alighted from the train here two messenger boys met him with blanks. One would have been enough, he said.

One Boy or None.

"Do you think there would have been any boy there if there was only one telegraph company?" inquired Dill. "Wouldn't a company with a monopoly on the business say, in effect, that when you wanted to send a telegram you could bring it to their office?" Young said he didn't think so.

He was insistent in his contention that the telegraph companies should be merged into one company having a monopoly, and that Government regulation should be relied on to prevent unfair rates. He did not believe the time was ripe for a merger of telephone and telegraph companies, but he was emphatic that all forms of international communication be unified in one system.

"At the time of the treaty of Versailles," he said, "I have been told that the three things which all governments regarded as important for national protection and prestige were control of international transportation, international communication, and petroleum."

As for these three, he said that the United States was not on a parity with other countries in merchant shipping, but the situation apparently was improving. It was his impression that the country's petroleum resources had been wasted.

"Foremost in World" in Radio.

In the field of international communication, he "was able to say with pride that the Radio Corporation has been able to take a foremost place in radio communication throughout the world."

Pointing out that Great Britain, France and Japan had unified their cable and radio services under one control, he said it was imperative that the American services be unified to meet this condition. He admitted that nearly all the European systems were government-owned, and he agreed that "in principle" there can be no objection to Government ownership of such a public service. But he did not believe the people of the United States were ready for Government ownership. Hence he favors unification under private ownership.

Young did not say whether he thought the Radio Corporation should acquire the cable companies or whether the cable companies should acquire the trans-oceanic radio system, but since he is on the radio side not much doubt existed that he favored the former plan.

WOULD COMPEL SKOURAS BROS. TO PRODUCE FIRM'S BOOKS

Five Stockholders Seek Writ of Mandamus; Cite Warner Bros. Deal.

Charging that Skouras Bros. Enterprises, Inc., embracing several motion picture theaters, has refused requests to examine the books of the corporation, five class A stockholders today made application in Circuit Court for a writ of mandamus to compel the corporation to produce its books and records. Judge Fitzsimmons made an order, returnable Dec. 12, when the corporation must answer.

The petition, filed in the name of the State and of Oliver J. Anderson, Dan W. Jones, Arnold G. Stifel, Arthur Stickney and J. Gates Williams, sets forth that they are holders of hundreds of shares of class A stock, which is convertible into class B shares, and that they desire to examine the books of the corporation to determine the value of the stocks with a view of exercising their right to convert their stock, a privilege that will expire July 1, 1930.

It is further alleged that the Skouras brothers, Charles P., Spyros P., and George P., owned most of the class B stock until last January, when they disposed of their holdings to Warner Bros., Pictures, Inc., since which time Warner Bros. Pictures have dominated the Skouras playhouses, keeping the corporation out of the market on competitive bids for other pictures, and causing depreciation in the value of the class A stock.

By RUSSELL OWEN,

LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Dec. 9.—The Byrd geological party now in the Queen Maud range has climbed part of the way up Mount Nansen on the west side of Axel Heiberg glacier and Dr. Laurence Gould, the geologist leading the group, reported findings of "amazing interest." The party has been working in clouds and snow storms for the last three days.

Dr. Gould's messages of the last two days read:

"Dec. 6—Present camp, which we call Camp Sverre Strom and which is west of Mount Betty on Axel Heiberg, is at latitude 85 degrees 2 minutes south, longitude 165 degrees 30 minutes west. O'Brien, Thorne and I started for Mount Betty today, but heavy fog came up and we had to return.

Supplies for Two Weeks.

"Have established our mountain base here. With better weather we shall start up the glacier tomorrow with two weeks' supplies in an attempt to reach the flat-lying rocks that cap Mount Nansen.

"Just learned about your eastern flight and am very happy about it. Anxious to know what you saw. Heartiest congratulations from your geological party."

"Dec. 7.—Came up west portion of Axel Heiberg yesterday and camped in snow storm on north side of Mount Nansen.

"Rocks very difficult to reach, crevasses on all borders of the glacier, but we climbed 6500 feet up the flank of Mount Nansen today and found a series of rocks that has told us a geological story of such amazing interest as to make the whole trip worth the effort.

"We have only started. Have been in clouds most of time for last three days and it greatly interferes with our work. Camp tonight at Camp Martin Ronne; last night at Camp Bernt Balchen."

June Pilot for McKinley.

The entire Bay of Whales, with its inlets and deeply-crevassed areas running east and west from the bottom of the bay, formations of great interest which can be seen in their entirety and relationship to each other only from the air, was mapped yesterday by Capt. Ashley C. McKinley. He used the Fairchild plane and Harold June was the pilot. William C. Haines, the meteorologist, went along to help Capt. McKinley check the drift.

When they reached an altitude of 10,000 feet Capt. McKinley found that to map the entire bay with vertical shots would take several days of flying, because of its enormous extent due to inlets running into the barrier at many points. So he outlined the edge of the bay, 60 miles, with vertical photographs and then from one side took an oblique photograph which takes in the whole area.

Accurate control points have been placed around the bay, and by means of astronomical observations at each of them and chaining some of them in by surveying on the surface, the bay has been mapped as accurately as any region in civilization.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Winds of hurricane force still swept across the British Isles today leaving death and destruction in their wake. The week-end was the wildest in the history of British weather bureau records.

Night steamship services were suspended, all airplane service stopped and hotels at ports were crowded with passengers waiting to cross to the continent. Wireless distress signals from the seas told of more than 50 vessels in dire need. Estimates of loss of life ran into scores.

The Cunard steamer Alaunia, from New York, went out of its course to assist the steamer Tynebridge, which was in distress in the channel 24 miles west of Bishop's Rock. Its radio said the steering gear was disabled and three men were injured.

The steamer Volumnia of Glasgow was abandoned at noon today and the captain and crew of 45 were saved. One lifeboat was lost.

A report from the steamship, Manchester Regiment, by way of the Valencia wireless station, was received as follows:

"We have aboard 45 hands, the crew of the steamer Volumnia of Glasgow, abandoned in a sinking condition at noon today in latitude 51.56 north, longitude 27.43 west. Regret loss of one lifeboat."

Windows on Deck Smashed.

The Homeric arrived from New York 20 hours late, with reports of a strenuous two days at sea in which the waves smashed windows on the promenade deck, 60 feet above load line. The American liner, President Roosevelt, from New York, reached Plymouth, after fighting wind exceeding 100 miles an hour. George Stopfer, German, was lost overboard, but it was thought he might have been a suicide.

Two members of the crew of the destroyer Walpole were washed overboard and drowned. Lieut. Gibbs aboard the ship was injured, and the Destroyer itself was forced back into Portsmouth. The Italian cargo boat Alfri sank about 100 miles off Bordeaux, with six of its crew drowning.

The Blue Star liner Andalucia arrived at Falmouth with some of its passengers cut by flying glass sent through the air when high seas struck the ship while they were at dinner. Some said the ship at times had a list of 40 degrees.

The Italian steamer Leonardo da Vinci reported by radio that it was still fighting the storm and had hopes of riding it out without mishap. The ship has paintings valued at £14,000,000 aboard, bringing them here for an exhibition. The pictures have not been damaged thus far.

The liner Doric arrived off Cobh, Irish Free State, with 40 passengers ready to go ashore, but was unable to make its call at the port owing to the violence of the storm.

The Ramsgate lifeboat put to sea in the teeth of a gale today in response to a message from Deal that the steamship Frida off Deal was sinking. The message said that four men, presumably from the vessel, were being driven northward in a small boat.

The Spanish steamer Mar Rojo, 2202 tons, was reported to be drifting on the rock today five miles south of Hastings, on the Channel coast. The ship reported that her engines had broken down and asked for immediate help

PUBLISHERS TAKE ACTION ON NEWSPRINT PRICE INCREASE

Vote to Seek Redress Through Federal Authorities; Two Plans Suggested.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—A resolution calling on the Paper Committee and the board of directors of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association to take up with Federal authorities the question as to whether there is any redress open in the newsprint situation through Federal action was adopted today at the special convention of the association called to discuss proposed increases in newsprint prices.

Before the resolution was adopted two courses of Government action had been proposed. S. E. Thomason, publisher of the Chicago Times and former member of the association's Paper Committee, suggested a congressional investigation of the newsprint industry. E. K. Gaylord of the Oklahoma City (Ok.), Times thought the Attorney-General's office should be appealed to to take action against the alleged monopoly.

Two paper companies recently announced an increase of $5 a ton in the price of newsprint.

SUGGESTS POST FOR COOLIDGE

Attorney Wants Him to Handle Delaware-New Jersey Boundary.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The appointment of Calvin Coolidge as special master in a boundary dispute between New Jersey and Delaware was suggested to the Supreme Court today by counsel representing New Jersey. When he said the dispute involved a tedious study of conditions existing as far back as 1664, members of the court smiled.

The Court was told that the states thought the scholarly ability and patience of the former President well qualified him for the proposed work, and Chief Justice Taft said that the suggestion would be taken under consideration.

ED MAYS ON TRIAL FOR VIOLATION OF U. S. BANKING LAW

President of Grand National Accused of Falsifying Records — Depository Lost Nothing.

CASHIER IDENTIFIES SUPERIOR'S ACCOUNTS

Alleged Irregularity Involving Item of $12,988 Basic Evidence in Government's Case.

Ed Mays, president of the Grand National Bank, went to trial today before Federal Judge Faris on charges of violating the national banking law and falsifying records of the bank.

The first testimony regarding the alleged irregularity, by which the bank did not finally lose anything, was given by Clifford J. Herbert, cashier. He identified bank records, and particularly those of Mays' personal account, and the account of the Mays Manufacturing Co.

A deposit of $12,988 in Mays' personal account, May 31, 1927, was the basic bit of evidence. This money, it is alleged, represented the difference between a check which we made payable to Mays, $78,230.60 for the purchase of a deed of trust, and the $65,242.40 which was paid to an insurance company for the deed of trust.

Withdrawals Traced.

Through the cashier's testimony, the Government traced withdrawals from Mays' personal account by check, until two months later the account was overdrawn. It then showed deposits in the Mays Manufacturing Co. account, one of them as high as $6000, it being on the same date when $6000 was withdrawn from Mays' personal account.

The deposit transactions, out of which the indictment grew, grew out of the purchase, by the bank, of a deed of trust on a Webster Groves garage

Mays' act is defended by his counsel as an irregular procedure, by which no loss to the bank and no profit to Mays was intended, but which was meant to keep the bank from having to pay double taxes on the property represented by the deed of trust. It did save the bank $2000, the defense lawyers stated.

It is alleged in the indictment that Mays, as president of the bank, on May 31, 1927, undertook the purchase of the deed of trust in behalf of the bank. It is charged that he drew a cashier's check, payable to Ed Mays, for $78,230.60, and that the next day, June 1, he caused that check to be canceled, and wrote another in favor of an insurance company, from which the deed was being purchased, for $65,242.40; and that he caused the difference, $12,983.20, to be credited to his personal checking account. Thereafter, it is charged, he drew his own check for $988.20 against the amount, and converted the money to his personal use.

$6000 Misapplied, It is Charged.

In the same transaction, it is charged that Mays misapplied $6000, by crediting it to the Mays Manufacturing Co., without authority of the directors of the bank. Another count charges a false entry on the bank's ledger, recording a deposit of $12,988.20 by Ed Mays to his personal checking account.

When the first indictment was returned, Mays' attorney, former Judge Nortoni, stated that the whole transaction was an inadvertance. Mays, he said, was to use the money in the bank's behalf, for repairs on the garage property, and entered it in his own name, when he should have added the word "trustee" or "agent." The money was restored to the bank's funds.

The first indictment, voted in the summer of 1928, was dismissed by Judge Faris on a technicality last month, then the present indictment was prepared with a view to meeting the objections of the first indictment.

Mays resigned as president of the bank after the first indictment, but was re-elected two months ago.

ROBBED OF $415 IN HOLDUP THEN LOCKED IN ICEBOX

Arthur Black was locked in the refrigerator in his grocery, 1511 Clara avenue, by an armed man who robbed him of $415 about 3 p. m. today. The man had been a frequent customer during the last few days and had paid for small purchases with bills of large denomination, Black told police. The robber had seen him get change from a cigar box in the refrigerator.

Black was alone when the man entered by the rear door, forced him into the refrigerator and took the box containing $375 and $40.

DENTIST HELD AFTER WOMAN TEACHER IS FOUND MURDERED

parently in friendly conversation, were heard in the apartment between 8 and 9 o'clock Saturday night. The light in the apartment went out about 11 p. m. and Coroner's physicians said the teacher was killed shortly afterward.

A book lay open beside the bed, as though she had read until tired. A screen had been removed from a window overlooking a rear porch, and it was through this window, police say, that the slayer entered. He probably left by the front door, which was found unlocked.

The teacher's father, J. J. Gummersheimer, editor of the Belleville (Ill.) Post-Zeitung until it suspended publication in 1918, said he knew of no reason anyone might have had to take his daughter's life.

Once Engaged, Says Father.

Her father said Miss Gummersheimer had been engaged to a canning manufacturer of Porto Rico and New York, but that the engagement was broken some time ago.

Police found more than 100 letters in the apartment. Many of them were from Glen Wiseman, vice president of Tugwell & Wiseman, Inc., with offices at Modelton, N. Y., and Tarpon Springs, Fla. The latter place was apparently Wiseman's home address, although the letters were from various parts of the country. All were written in an endearing tone and indicated that an engagement had existed, later to be broken. The letters were invariably signed: "Glen 1-2-3."

Miss Gummersheimer was described as an unusually attractive brunette of medium height.

The weapon with which she was killed was an 18-inch pipe picked up from a box of plumber's supplies which had been left on the ground floor by workmen. Miss Gummersheimer was struck several blows on the head. The pipe was found beside the bed.

Business Man Says He Was Not Engaged to Slain Teacher.

By the Associated Press.

TARPON SPRINGS, Fla., Dec. 9.—Glen Wiseman, vice president of Tugwell & Wiseman, Inc., of Tarpon Springs, today expressed regret when told of the murder of Miss Cordelia Gummersheimer, school teacher, who was clubbed to death in her apartment at Rockford, Ill., Saturday night.

Wiseman said he had not been engaged to Miss Gummersheimer, but that they had been close friends for a number of years. He said he knew nothing of her death until this morning.

Wiseman said that a week ago, he received a letter from Miss Gummersheimer in which she said she knew of a tragedy in town, but did not go into details.

Brother of Slain Teacher Is Instructor at Soldan.

Miss Gummersheimer is survived by her father, who resides at 411 South Second street, Belleville; a sister, Mrs. J. L. Ludwick of Salisbury, N. C., and two brothers, August J. and Irvin J. Gummersheimer, both of St. Louis. The former is a teacher in economics at Soldan High School. The other brother formerly was a teacher in the St. Louis public schools.

Born in Belleville, Miss Gummersheimer attended grade school there, was graduated from Belleville High School, attended McKendree College at Lebanon, Ill., for two years and received her bachelor of arts degree from Knox College at Galesburg, Ill.

Her first teaching experience was at Storm Lake, Wis., and Westfield, Ill. She taught German at Belleville High School in 1917 until that study was discontinued because of the war. She then went to Porto Rico where she learned Spanish while teaching German. She next taught at Galva, Ill., going from there to Rockford.

Irvin Gummersheimer has gone to Rockford to attend the inquest and take his sister's body to Belleville.

FORMER UNION AGENT TRIED AS EMBEZZLER

Hugh J. Gordon of Pressmen Charged With $13,000 Shortage.

The trial of Hugh J. Gordon, former president, secretary, treasurer and business agent of the St. Louis Web Pressmen's Union, in whose accounts a shortage of $13,000 was discovered last year, was begun today before Circuit Judge Calhoun and a jury. He is on trial for the embezzlement of $575 under one of four indictments against him.

Joseph T. Orr, secretary of the Pressmen's International Union with headquarters at Nashville, Tenn., testified that the St. Louis local withdrew from the national organization in 1897 and returned in 1926 at which time an audit showed the books to be in good condition.

In October, 1928, Orr said he came to St. Louis and asked Gordon what had become of funds due the national organization under bylaws which provide that $2.05 of every $5 collected by a local be remitted to the national treasurer. Gordon replied that he "had used the money for other than union purposes," according to the witness.

John W. Mueller, retained by the union as special prosecutor, told the jury it would be shown that Gordon admitted to other union officers that he had misused union funds intended for the national organization and for relatives of dead members.

Gordon's lawyer, George McDonald, told the jury his client spent the union's money in the union's interests. Objection was made by the prosecutor when McDonald said, "You couldn't say in the books that part of this money was used for fixing." Here he named a Detroit newspaper.

The local Web Pressmen's Union is composed of about 300 press operators in newspaper printing plants. Gordon, who received $65 a week, is married and has a grown daughter

$700,000 FOR MISSOURI RIVER PROJECT IS ALLOTTED BY U. S.

10 FIRMS TO CUT SUIT CLEANING PRICE TO 50 CENTS

Reduction, to Be Effective Next Monday Follows Decrease to 75 Cents by Lungstras.

Having driven out mail-order competition through price-cutting, St. Louis cleaning establishments appear to have started a price war among themselves with a further decrease today from $1 to 75 cents for cleaning men's suits and overcoats, and a promise by ten firms in the St. Louis Cleaners' & Dyers' Association that the price will be 50 cents beginning next Monday.

The Lungstras Co., St. Louis' largest cleaning firm, which led the reduction from $1.50 to $1 in October, is among the concerns offering the reduced price. The Lungstras Co. has 67 branches and employes 600 men and women in its main plant. Robert Lungstras, president of the concern, who is also head of the Master Cleaners' Association, said the reduction in price by his company did not result from any agreement among the members of the association.

"I have always held out for a 75-cent cleaning price," Lungstras said. "The increase in business which followed the reduction from $1.50 to $1 was so great that I believe a further reduction will bring in more business. The 75-cent price is on trial as far as my company is concerned and will be maintained only as long as the volume of buisness justifies it."

The Chapman Cleaning Co., one of the large companies in the Master Cleaners' Association, announced that the $1 price will be continued. The Scott company, Peters company and several smaller concerns in the Masters' Association have announced reductions to 75 cents, and one company offers a 50-cent special this week.

H. W. Schemme, president of the Metropolitan Cleaning Co., which led the recent open-shop movement in the St. Louis Cleaners and Dyers' Association, announced that 10 firms in the association had reduced their price today to 75 cents to meet Lungstras competition, and expected to establish a price of 50 cents for cleaning suits and overcoats next Monday.

He disputed the statement of Robert Lungstras that the increase in business since October warranted the reduction to 75 cents. Schemme said the price for pressing suits and overcoats would remain at 50 cents in the plants of the member concerns and the 500 neighborhood tailor shops which serve as their agents.

"If the 50-cent cleaning price is established next week a man who sends his coat or suit to be pressed can have it cleaned for nothing," Schemme said.

Lungstras, asked to comment on the reduction to 50 cents promised by Schemme, declared his company is not concerned with what other companies do, and that it is not his intention to enter into a price war.

The Master Cleaners' Association is an organization of 18 plants operating their own retail branches. They always have operated on the open shop plan and have opposed unionism in the cleaning industry. The St. Louis Cleaners & Dyers Association operated on the union plan for two years until a month ago, when officers of the association announced they would have no further dealings with the union.

The firms in the association do not operate their own retail stores, depending on neighborhood tailors to keep them supplied with cleaning business. Ten of the member concerns joined the open shop movement, while 11 of the smaller firms have continued to abide by the agreement with the union Several of the latter concerns also have reduced their price to 75 cents.

POLICE GROPING STILL FOR CLEW IN MOGLER MURDER

After Week of Fruitless Inquiry They Continue Search for Slayers and Their Motive.

After a week of fruitless investigation of the unexplained murder of State Senator Joseph Mogler, city detectives started again at the beginning today in their search for a motive and a clew to the identity of the two masked men who killed the politician, movie theater owner and bondsman, in the Mogler Theater, 3936 North Ninth street, a week ago today.

Although agreed that "one man's theory is as good as another's," each of the 15 detectives who are devoting full time to the Mogler shooting and the numerous other official and unofficial investigators cherishes his own pet theory.

Most of the speculators cling to the assumption that Mogler was killed in revenge, and on this premise build up chains of circumstances to indicate that the underlying motive was a dispute arising from his activities as a bondsman for gangsters and underworld characters, as a parole advocate, his association with women or his political activities. Some still espouse the simple theory of a "nervous robber" whose pistol was discharged accidentally when he met his intended victim face to face.

Dragnet Order.

Detective-Sergeant Thomas Moran, in charge of the Angelica Street District investigation, began the week with an order to his men to "bring in anyone answering the description of the slayers and anyone who might possibly shed light on this murder."

In this way Moran hopes to unearth some information which passed unnoticed in the earlier days of the investigation, when the details of Mogler's history and private life were not so well known to the investigators.

Chief of Detectives Kaiser, who has supervised the investigation from his office at police headquarters, said today that his five-hour interrogation of the Senator's widow, Mrs. Adelaide Mogler, and the questioning of her lawyer, Murtha J. Hackett, Saturday, had proved of no assistance to the investigators. Mrs. Mogler, he said, had talked freely of her husband's life and activities, as she knew them, and Hackett had produced numerous papers belonging to the estate, but nothing had developed of interest in the investigation.

"There is nothing for us to do but start over again," Chief Kaiser said.

Tips Plenty, Facts Few.

In his search for clews Detective-Sergeant Moran has investigated dozens of telephone calls, letters offering information and anonymous tips. He related today that he made one 25-mile trip to a sanitarium in St. Louis County to interview two aged patients who had written a letter stating that they had "important information."

Discussing the theory that the murder grew out of Mogler's activity as a bondsman, a court official familiar with the practices of professional bondsmen, pointed out today that it is the custom of such sureties to insure the appearance of their clients in court by telling them: "Be sure and show up when your case is called; I know the Judge and I can fix it up for you."

Mogler, it is thought, may have resorted to this subterfuge as a precaution against a forfeiture, and then stood by while his client was sent to prison. Such conduct, obviously, might have aroused the enmity of the client involved and his friends and relatives.

Former Circuit Attorney Howard Sidener, who appeared at the opening of the inquest Saturday, ostensibly as one of counsel for Mrs. Mogler, has brought forward again the theory that Clyde Mitchell, former St. Louis gangster, who jumped a bond which Mogler had signed, might have some connection with the case. As has been told, Mogler offered a $500 reward for the apprehension of Mitchell, advertising in a detective journal.

Mrs. Mogler has announced that she has not retained the former Circuit Attorney as counsel and is relying solely on Attorney Hackett for legal advice. The Coroner's inquest, continued Saturday after the examination of police officers and Edward Phinney, the theater janitor who was taken prisoner by the slayers of Mogler, will be resumed next Saturday.

Third of $2,000,000 Sought For Community Fund Pledged

Workers at Luncheon Report Subscriptions of $149,878, Bringing Total So Far to $712,083.

Community Fund workers, meeting today at a luncheon at Hotel Statler, reported week-end subscriptions of $149,878 bringing the total pledged since the drive began a week ago to $712,083. The organization is seeking $2,000,000 this year for the support of 51 affiliated social agencies of the city and St. Louis County.

Robert W. Kelso, director of the fund, spoke of it as a necessary feature of city life in an address before the Ethical Society yesterday. "The modern city cannot do without paved highways, effective sanitary inspection and increasingly efficient utilities; neither can it remain effective as a place for citizenry to dwell without a carefully studied, well co-ordinated plan of defense against the dangers and ravages of disease, against the character destroying forces which attack youth, against the miseries of poverty," he said. "The Community Fund in St. Louis is the physical expression of a great movement toward integration, coordination, of welfare efforts of the past, into a system of social protection which shall have in it also the knowledge and the art of detecting and preventing the causes of decline."

Rabbi Samuel Thurman of United Hebrew Congregation told leaders of the campaign at a conference yesterday: "The only sin you can commit in this campaign is the sin of sensitiveness. Don't ask for small gifts, ask for large ones."

Daniel N. Kirby, attorney, also spoke at the conference. He pointed out that some contributors were still giving the amounts they subscribed when the fund was organized seven years ago, although during that interval the population of the city and county had increased about 233,000

Contributors whose subscriptions amounted to $1000 or more were announced as follows:

Edwin H. Peters, $5000; Mr. and Mrs. George O. Carpenter (jointly) $3000; Standard Building Materials Co., $3000; Mrs. Lillie H. Allen, $2000; Mr. and Mrs. John B. Strauch, (jointly), $2000; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Wright (jointly), $1750; Alfred Lee Shapleigh, $1650; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Akin (jointly), $1500; Broderick & Bascom Rope Co., $1500; Butler Brothers, $1500; Mr. and Mrs. Frank V. Hammar (jointly), $1500; Laclede Steel Co., $1500; Monsanto Chemical Works, $1500; Sydney M. Shoenberg, $1500; L. A. Stevens, $1500; Mrs. Lucy Bent McKinley, $1250; Mrs. Helen J. Niedringhaus, $1250.

Desloge, $1000; Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Duncker (jointly), $1000; Wheaton C. Ferris, $1000; Foristel, Mudd, Blair & Habenicht, $1000; Louis F. Coeger, $1000; James W. Harris, $1000; Mrs. Julia C. GIRL, 11, WINS RIGHT TO $1,000,000 ESTATE

Denver Child to Inherit Grandfather's Fortune Claimed by Other Relatives.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 9.—An 11-year-old Denver girl has become the eventual owner of a $1,000,000 fortune, the foundation for which was laid in a cubby-hole shoe shop in Colorado's early days, under a court decision against an aunt and uncle who contested the will of the girl's grandmother.

By the terms of the will Josephine Barth, granddaughter of Mrs. Georgia A. Barth, inherits the fortune after the deaths of her father, M. Allen Barth, Mrs. Alice Houghton of Shrewsbury, Mass., and James B. Rhodus, Denver, provided she is then 30 years old.

Meanwhile, the estate is held in trust, and the income from it is divided equally among the three. Mrs. Houghton and Rhodus, children of Josephine's grandmother by a previous marriage, contended in contesting the will that the girl's father, M. Allen Barth, unduly influenced his mother in making the will.

The girl's grandfather started building his fortune as a young German imigrant making hobnailed boots for miners. He died in 1918. His widow died Oct. 2, 1928.

TAXI DRIVERS TO SEEK $5 INCREASE, 6-DAY WEEK

Three-Year Contract Expires New Year's Eve; Present Pay $28.50 a Week.

Cab drivers plan to ask for a $5 weekly wage increase and a six-day week when the present three-year agreement expires New Year's eve, union officers said today.

A walkout at the hour of the expiration, midnight, would hopelessly complicate the seasonal business of revelry, judging by the taxicab situation on other New Year's eves without a strike.

The present arrangement is for a $28.50 weekly wage and three days off a month. Negotiations for a new agreement are somewhat complicated by the coming to St. Louis of the General Cab Co. with 200 machines.

WOMAN DROWNED IN BATHTUB AFTER INJURING HER HEAD

Mrs. Mary Weyerich, 5568 Waterman Avenue, Found Dead by Children on Return Home.

Mrs. Mary Raemdonck Weyerich, an insurance agent, was found drowned in a bathtub at her home, 5568 Waterman avenue, early yesterday.

Her forehead was bruised, indicating she slipped and hit her head on the tub, drowning while unconscious. She was 43 years old and a widow.

A daughter, Miss Marie Weyerich, returned home about 1 a. m. and called to her mother, who answered from the bathroom. Later the daughter called and received no answer. When a son, Leon, returned, he and his sister entered the room and found the mother, her face submerged in the tub.

At the inquest today an open verdict was returned. The daughter testified she was listening to a radio, which probably accounted for her not hearing the mother fall.

Mrs. Weyerich was interested in the Community Fund campaigns, participated in a campaign for St. Mary's Hospital several years ago, and was a member of the Chamber of Commerce Membership Committee, the Town Club and the Daughters of Isabella. She had been selling insurance for 10 years and belonged to the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York $250,000 Club.

Besides her children, Mrs. Weyerich is survived by four brothers, Dr. A. J. Raemdonck, Emil Raemdonck, Brother Van Raemdonck, of the Jesuit order, and Julius Raemdonck of Houston, Tex.

Funeral services will be held at the St. Louis Cathedral at 8:30 a. m. Wednesday, with interment in Calvary Cemetery.

KILLED BY EXHAUST GAS WHEN WORKING ON CAR

Fred Suerig, Head of Advance Printing Roller Co., Stricken in Residence Garage.

Fred Suerig, 52 years old, 3940 Lexington avenue, died of carbon monoxide gas poisoning when working on his automobile with the motor running in a garage in the rear of his home last night. Suerig was president of the Advance Printing Roller Co., 2212 Benton street.

Henry Akause, 3947 Ashland avenue, found Suerig's body at 9:30 o'clock after hearing the engine of Suerig's car running. Suerig was lying on the floor with a screw driver in one hand and tools scattered nearby. The hood of the machine was raised. Akause summoned firemen, who attempted to revive Suerig by means of an inhalator. Suerig was later pronounced dead by a physician. He is survived by his wife, Elvera.

Modern Medicine turns away from "DOSING"

Back in the old "horse and buggy" days, it was the custom to give large doses of internal medicines for almost every human ailment. Then a North Carolina pharmacist originated Vicks VapoRub, the better method of treating colds externally.

GLIDER PILOT KILLED IN FALL FROM CRAFT

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 9.—Charles J. Ferguson, army warrant officer, who sought to cross the Golden Gate in a glider, fell to his death late yesterday when the machine, towed by a private airplane, nosed up into a cross current.

The glider was being towed from Crissy Field when Ferguson's safety strap broke and he was hurled headfirst from his machine.

Thousands of persons saw the accident. Ferguson twisted in the air and struck the ground feet first.

An ambulance was near the place where he fell and his body was picked up immediately. It was taken to Letterman Hospital, where he was pronounced dead by physicians.

The airplane towing the glider made a safe landing.

Ferguson was president of the California Glider Club and the members of that organization on May 30, 1929, prevented him from taking off from a high hill in Marin County in an attempt to glide over the Golden Gate, through court action.

Ferguson's wife was on the field. She collapsed when he plunged out of the plane, and was taken to a hospital.

Pilot and Woman Passenger Killed in Plane Crash in Texas.

STAMFORD, Tex., Dec. 9.—Pilot Cotton Hansen, 30 years old passenger, Miss Winnie Williams, an orphan, were killed when Hansen's plane was wrecked here yesterday. Miss Williams' escort, who had pleaded with her not to go up in the machine, watched her plunge to her death.

Spectators said Hansen taxied down the field at a high rate of speed before taking off. He then circled low over the field. As the plane flew near the people on the ground, it went into a tail spin, turned over and crashed on its nose.

Pilot and passenger were strapped in and both were badly burned.

Tests By Hospitals Show Quickest Way To Get Rid of Colds

QUICKLY ENDED COLD CAUGHT IN MOVIE

Experiences of St. Louis People Confirm Action of Hospital Doctors Who Now Certify New Ayer Formula as Best of Different Widely Used Methods Tested for Head Colds, Coughs, Chest Colds.

Quick relief from a head or chest cold! Then the joy of waking up without a sniffling nose, cough, congested air passages, "feverish" feeling or needless risk of pneumonia.

This is now the happy experience in hundreds of St. Louis homes. For hospital physicians, co-operating with the Ayer medical staff have certified the Cherry Pectoral formula for home use after testing and comparing different widely used methods for treating colds.

Doctor Used Quickest Way to End His Cold

In one's own home it is now possible to get quick relief—often in a few hours—from a stuffy head cold, cough or chest cold. For doctors are now recommending for home use a hospital tested formula that is inexpensive, pleasant to take and ideally suited to the delicate stomachs of old folks and children.

Joseph B. Keen, for example, asked his doctor for a prescription when his cold got so bad he felt "achy" all over. The doctor immediately gave him a large dose of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and advised him to continue the treatment every half hour until the "feverish," "achy" feeling was gone, then once every two hours. In just a few minutes he began to feel better and slept comfortably all night. In another day or so the cold congestion had disappeared entirely and he was back at work.

Soon Ended "Achy" "Feverish" Feeling

Miss Margaret Clarke, for example, had neglected a severe cold which she caught while sitting in a draft at the movies. Instead of getting better the cold grew worse and started spreading so fast she feared pneumonia would develop. Then she called her doctor, who advised double strength doses of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral—a hospital certified formula, composed of wild cherry, terpin hydrate and other ingredients, recognized as the quickest and most effective to help reduce fever, clear up congestion and drive out the cold.

Belief began almost immediately when she felt its soothing, healing warmth—from her nose passages deep down into her chest. Within an hour or so the medication had been absorbed by her system, loosening up congestion and relieving the "achy" feeling. By night she felt immensely better—and in another day or so, the doctor reports, there was no trace left of the cold.

The Ayer's Pectoral formula was hospital certified as the best of different widely used methods tested for head colds, coughs and chest colds because it gave the quickest, surest relief—with absolute safety.

And the Ayer's Pectoral formula is featured by leading druggists for head colds, coughs and chest colds, because it quickly penetrates and heals inflamed linings of the air passages. Absorbed by the system, it helps reduce fever, allay congestion, soothe irritation and drive out the cold from the nose passages, throat and chest.

END COLDS Quickly

Yet it is not always convenient to call a doctor.

THAT'S WHY

your druggist so often advises Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. He is guided by certified hospital tests which prove that the Ayer's Pectoral formula brings quick, welcome relief—even in extreme hospital cases—as well as in home use.

SINGS, PLAYS TO SHOW HE IS MAN REPORTED SLAIN

By the Associated Press.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark., Dec. 9.—A young man who says he is Connie Franklin has sung "The Lonesome Pine" by request of the girl who he declares is his fiancee and whose story that he was slain has resulted in the arrest of five men on charges of murder. And at the request of the girl's father, the young man has played "Turkey in the Straw" on a French harp.

Yet neither the girl nor her father would admit yesterday that the young man was Franklin and the question of identity probably will be decided next week when the cases against the five men accused of torturing and burning Franklin to death are called for trial.

Tiller Ruminer, 16-year-old mountain girl, had told authorities that she and Franklin, 23, were on their way to be married last March when a band of men mutilated and burned him and attacked her.

Yesterday she was confronted by a young man brought from Humphrey, Ark., who insisted he was Franklin, her farmhand sweetheart.

Asks Him to Sing Song.

He asked her if she remembered the songs he sang as they sat beside little streams that run through the valleys of the Boston Mountains.

"Sing 'The Lonesome Pine,'" she said.

As a crowd of town folk pressed around in the home of Sheriff Sam Johnson, the young man sang a verse of the song.

The girl then said, "If it's Connie, he's changed some." She wept as she spoke.

Sitting in the office of Ben B. Williamson, defense attorney, the young man suddenly pointed to a face and exlaimed:

"There's Charlie Ruminer, (the girl's father).

"Bring in a French harp and let me hear him play 'Turkey in the Straw,'" Ruminer suggested. A harp was produced and the young man played that song and others. Ruminer refused to say whether the musician was Franklin.

Questioned by Spectators.

Questioned by the crowd, the young man gave detailed descriptions of the country, and recalled minor happenings which some spectators said only Franklin could be familiar with.

The defense had the young man placed under $1000 bond for his appearance in court and he was taken in charge by S. H. Greenway, father of Herman Greenway, one of the five men held on murder charges.

Defense attorneys charge that when Franklin suddenly dropped from sight last March, enemies of the accused man in an old feud conspired to convict them of murder, going so far as to place some old bones on an ash heap in the woods which Sheriff Johnson later found and held as evidence of Franklin's murder.

The defense attorneys said they would seek prosecution of the persons responsible for the torture murder story.

RHODES SCHOLAR

ROBERT SYDNEY SMITH.

EAST ST. LOUIS YOUTH WINS RHODES AWARD

R. S. Smith to Enter Oxford Next October; Three Brothers at Washington U.

Robert Sydney Smith of East St. Louis, a Washington University medical student, who has won the annual Rhodes scolarship to Oxford University, England, is one of four brothers at Washington. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Harvey Sydney Smith of 2311 Lincoln avenue.

Announcement of the scholarship awards throughout the country was made today. Smith, who is 23 year old, won the honor from Missouri as the result of an examination Saturday in which he competed with four other Washington University students and six from the University of Missouri and other Missouri colleges.

Smith and 31 other new American Rhodes scholars will enter Oxford next October. They were chosen for "intellectual promise combined with qualities of leadership and interest in manly sports." The scolarships were provided by the will of Cecil Rhodes, British empire builder, and entitle each holder to about $2000 a year for a three-year residence at Oxford. Smith will complete his medical studies there.

Upon graduation from the East St. Louis high school in 1923, Smith went to Washington University on a scholarship provided by that institution for leadership in high school studies. He spent four years in the college of arts and sciences and now is in his second year of medical school. During his university career he has been managing editor of Student Life, the campus weekly newspaper, and a member of the staff of The Hatchet, the student annual. He won a letter in track and was elected to Thirteen and Pralma, the junior and senior honorary societies, respectively. He was president of the freshman class and is representative of his present class in medical school on the honor council. He belongs to Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic society; Nu Sigma Nu, a medical fraternity, and Pi Kappa Alpha, a social fraternity.

The oldest of the three other Smith brothers at Washington is John Harrington Smith, who is an assistant professor of English. He graduated in 1923, and is working for the degree of doctor of philosophy. He resides at 1369 McCausland avenue. The others are Richard Edward Smith, a senior in the college of arts and sciences, president of the Little Theater and business manager last year of The Hatchet, and Carl Wellington Smith, a sophomore in the college.

Richard and Carl both plan to enter the medical school, as does a fifth and younger brother, Harvey Sydney Smith Jr., now a senior at East St. Louis High School, who will matriculate at the university next year.

The father, Dr. Smith, has just completed a term as president of the St. Clair County Medical Society. For 12 years he was a member of the East St. Louis School Board.

PARK COMMISSIONER'S PRIVILEGES DEFINED

Question Brought Up by Alderman in Debate on Municipal Opera.

The uses of the Municipal Theater, the proposed stadium in Forest Park, the Park Commissioner's authority and the technical difference between a permit and a franchise were discussed by the Public Welfare Committee of the Board of Aldermen today while considering an ordinance to renew for another 20 years the Missouri Fish and Game Department's right to maintain fish hatcheries in Forest Park.

"In view of the fact that the City Counselor has held that the Park Commissioner has authority to permit the use of the Municipal Theater by the United States Marine Band and other organizations without consulting the Board of Aldermen," said Alderman Wimer. "I doubt whether this ordinance is necessary."

City Counselor Muench was called and ruled verbally that the Park Commissioner's authority did not include the hatchery permit. "I would like to know," asked Alderman Wimer, "if he has authority to build a stadium in the park." Muench repled that the Park Commissioner had no authority to authorize new structures in the park, but, in the absence of other legislation, had authority over structures already built.

"Well, they built the Municipal Theater without an ordinance," Wimer continued. This remark was taken up by Associate City Comptroller Cunningham, who argued that the theater "grew up' over a period of years and that an ordinance never was considered.

Wimer then announced that he intended to draft an ordinance which would govern park activities and restrict the permit powers of the Park Commissioner and the Board of Public Service. Asked for an opinion, Muench said he thought such an ordinance would be valid.

Alderman Otto called on Muench to point out the difference between a permit and a franchise. A permit, said the Counselor, was a temporary and revocable instrument, while a franchise was a measure of permanence in its terms.

Otto then wanted to know why a "permit" was issued to the Mississippi River Fuel Co. for its natural gas pipeline into St. Louis. Muench explained that in the pipeline case, the city merely granted a permit for the company to construct a pipeline on railroad right-of-way.

The committee ended its discussion with approval of the hatcheries ordinance.

THREE BANK ROBBERS SHOT, AMBUSHED BY POLICE OFFICERS

Holdup at Shakopee, Minn., Had Been Expected for Days; $1500 Taken.

By the Associated Press.

SHAKOPEE, Minn., Dec. 9.—Three bank robbers were shot and probably fatally wounded today as police officers, lying in wait for them, opened fire with a machine gun as the robbers left the First National Bank.

Working on a tip from the protective department of the Minnesota Bankers Association, that the bank would be robbed, the officers had maintained a watch for several days. The robbers were permitted to enter the bank and were preparing to drive away with $1500 when the officers opened fire.

Charles D. Brown of Minneapolis, manager of the Bankers' Protective Department, led five officers in the ambush, using a machine gun. After firing Brown ran up to the car. As he opened the doors two men fell out. The third stepped out of the machine and staggered into the bank.

MRS. BARBARA GELHORN GETS DIVORCE AND $80 ALIMONY

Veiled Prophet's Maid of Honor Alleges General Indignities; Maiden Name Restored.

Mrs. Barbara Gellhorn, 618 Forest Court, Clayton, obtained a divorce from George Gellhorn, a real estate salesman, at Clayton today on grounds of general indignities. Her maiden name was restored and $80 a month in alimony was awarded.

Mrs. Gellhorn, maid of honor at a Veiled Prophet's ball a few years ago, testified her father, Mansfield Bay, 6640 Cecil avenue, University City, furnished the apartment in which she and her husband lived and paid half of the monthly rental of $80.

They were married in September, 1926, shortly after Gellhorn's graduation from the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. They separated Oct. 27.

RESELLER OF GRANT DEED IS HELD LIABLE

Widow Wins $20,496 Judgment From Edward K. Love Realty Co.

Mrs. Hattie Ellenburg, 5907 Maple avenue, a widow, who feared she would lose her husband's insurance money through the dishonesty of Edward W. Grant, real estate dealer now in prison, was saved from that predicament today when Circuit Judge Landwehr awarded judgment for $20,496.30 to her.

The judgment was against the Edward K. Love Realty Co., which thus takes her place in the list of victims of Grant, whose frauds totaled $175,000 or more.

Mrs. Ellenburg, widow of Paul Ellenburg, cigar dealer, received $20,000 insurance from her husband's estate. Seeking a safe investment, through her son, Lee Ellenburg, she bought a deed of trust for $17,406.12 from the Love Co., in December, 1926. The deed covered property at 6309 North Rosebury avenue, University City.

The son was under the impression he was buying a first deed and took the precaution, in making payment, of writing on the back of a check "for first deed of trust."

The Love Co. had bought the deed from Grant's firm and resold it to Mrs. Ellenburg, in the usual course of business. With the disclosure of Grant's frauds, it was learned there were two prior deeds totaling $31,000 on the property.

Mrs. Ellenburg brought suit to set aside her purchase. The Love Co. resisted on the ground it did not guarantee the loan and should not be held responsible, since, like Mrs. Ellenburg, it was an innocent party.

The prior deeds had been released, according to a report by a title company to the Love Co. It later developed, however, that the releases were fraudulent and that instead of owning a first deed, Mrs. Ellenburg's security was a third deed, which she contended was valueless.

After hearing testimony last October, Judge Landwehr took the matter under advisement. His decision cancels the deal and returns the principal to Mrs. Ellenburg, plus interest.

Grant has been in prison since May, 1927, under a 10-year sentence, after pleading guilty of forgery. He is seeking a parole on the grounds of ill health.

REDEMPTION OF $700,000,000 IN TREASURY CERTIFICATES

Certain Securities Payable Dec. 15 Called in, Beginning Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Secretary Mellon announced yesterday he had authorized Federal Reserve banks to redeem in cash before maturity, at the holder's option, Treasury certificates of indebtedness of Series TD-1929 and TD-2-1929 payable on Dec. 15.

The order becomes effective tomorrow and the certificates will be redeemed at par and accrued interest. The first series bears interest at 4¼ per cent and the second at 4¾ per cent. A total of approximately $700,000,000 in the two issues matures on Dec. 15 and the Treasury has announced an issue of about $100,000,000 in Treasury bills and $325,000,000 in Treasury certificates to meet the financing. The total of the new issues, together with income tax payments on Dec. 15, is expected to provide enough funds to meet the issues and operate the Government until next March.

At the same time, Secretary Mellon announced that subscriptions for the nine-months issue of Treasury certificates of indebtedness bearing 3⅛ per cent interest and dated Dec. 16, had been closed at the end of business last Saturday. The issue was offered Friday morning.

BOY BURNED TO DEATH BY GASOLINE THROWN INTO STOVE

Joseph Callahan, 12, and Others Were Playing in Virginia Avenue Car Sheds.

Burns suffered when gasoline was thrown into a stove by one of several children playing in a street car shed, formerly the Virginia avenue police substation, 4148 Virginia, caused the death of Joseph Callahan, 12 years old, 4231A Virginia, today at St. Anthony's Hospital.

The exploding gasoline ignited the boy's clothing Saturday night. Patrolman McNeal, passing, ran in, smothered the flames with his coat and took the boy to the hospital.

HEALTH SOCIETY'S WARNING

Directors of the Tuberculosis and Health Society asked its legislative committee today to take steps toward protecting the society and donors from solicitors selling Christmas seals and magazines purporting to be for the aid of the organization.

The society has no paid house-to-house solicitors and sells no literature. John C. Tobin, president, said the society lost donations this year because persons who had bought seals or magazines thought they had contributed to the society.

CHAIRMAN LEGGE FIRM IN DEFENSE

Declares He Would Rather Quit Than Have Policy Altered—Hoover Lends Silent Support.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9. — The period of quiet which followed the enactment of the Hoover farm bill has suddenly been shattered by the disclosure of a bitter and dramatic fight inside the administration over the policies of the Federal Farm Board, a fight in which President Hoover may soon be compelled to take sides between two of his principal advisers.

Simply stated, the Farm Board has definitely adopted a course of action which contemplates the extinction of the grain commission business, and later, it appears, of the livestock commission business. It has devised a system of marketing whereby the farmers would control every step in the progress of their produce from the farm to the consumer. In this system there is no place for the commission men and, since the latter object to being put out of business, the fight is on.

The fight centers around Alexander Legge, chairman of the Farm Board, chief author of its policies, and leader of the fight to carry them out. Until a few months ago he was president of the International Harvester Co., one of the largest corporations in the world. Behind him today are rallying the farm organizations and all the so-called radicals and insurgents of the Northwest, for what promises to be one of the most spectacular conflicts of the Hoover administration.

Opponents of Legge.

Against him is being marshaled the influence of the commission trade, the grain exchanges and affiliated banking interests. Against Legge, the former industrial magnate, they are hurling the charge of "state socialism," and that of "putting the Government in business." Already they have carried their fight to the White House in an effort to have Legge reversed or "called off."

Among their number and spokesmen is Julius H. Barnes, head of the United States Chamber of Commerce, intimate friend of President Hoover and recently selected by him to direct the administration's prosperity campaign. Barnes, a member of a large grain commission house in Duluth, Minn., has sent letters to commission men in Minnesota confidently assuring them that Legge will be "called off." But thus far the President appears to be standing by his chairman.

Congress was almost wholly unprepared for the situation which has come to light. The farm bill was regarded by many who supported it and by most of those who opposed it to be a rather hollow measure. One group in Congress held it would not do any good, and another group said it could not do any harm.

But along came Legge. When questioned by the Senate Committee on Agriculture, soon after his appointment by President Hoover, he said he had read the bill 20 times, and still was not sure of the meaning of some parts of it. He added very emphatically that he intended to give it some meaning before he was through, and he intimated very pointedly that if anybody attempted to interfere with his policies he would gladly relinquish the job.

Recently the board announced the organization of the Farmers' National Grain Corporation, a farmer-owned and farmer-controlled organization, with a capitalization of $20,000,000 and with stock ownership limited to farmer co-operatives. To the consternation of the grain commission trade, it was learned this corporation would engage in all the business of marketing grain. It will construct physical facilities for storing, processing and shipping. It will purchase from co-operatives and sell to millers and other buyers.

Moreover, in the event of surpluses or seasonal gluts, it will enter into stabilization operations. Thus far, this procedure has not been definitely outlined, but the

STIMSON'S EXPLANATION OF CHANGE IN WORLD COURT STATUTE TO SATISFY U. S.

Secretary, in Letter to Hoover, Says America Has Absolute Veto on Advisory Opinion Affecting Nation.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Secretary of State Stimson, in a letter to President Hoover made public today in connection with the announcement of the signing by the United States of the World Court protocol at Geneva, explains the way in which the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice has been changed to meet the demands of the United States.

In urging American participation in the court, the Secretary of State points out that as long ago as 1907, the American delegates to the Second Hague Conference, under instructions from President Roosevelt, worked for the development of a permanent international tribunal. He recalls that they were unsuccessful then, owing to failure to agree on a method of selecting judges, but that such a court as they advocated, the present World Court, was finally established in 1920. Root's suggestion solved the problem that had prevented formation of the court in 1907.

"Although this final movement which established the court was initiated by the League of Nations," writes Secretary Stimson, "the Court took its existence and became effective not by the action of the League, but under a statute and protocol separately signed by over 50 states, not all of whom are League members. It thus owes its existence to the independent authority of those signatory states.

"This Court has now been in existence more than eight years. It has given 16 judgments in controverted cases and has also delivered 16 advisory opinions on questions which have been submitted to it. Several of these judgments have been made in cases which were of great importance and in which bitter international controversies had existed. Confidence in the Court has so developed that its business is rapidly increasing, and one of the chief purposes of the proposed amendments of its charter statute is to provide for more continuous sessions and in other respects to increase the importance and efficiency of the tribunal.

"Optional" Clause.

"Unless a state has signed the so-called 'optional clause,' granting to the Court compulsory jurisdiction over it in certain classes of legal disputes, which it is not proposed in the present protocol that the United States shall sign, the Court can take jurisdiction only over cases which the parties themselves refer to it. It has no power to draw an unwilling suitor before it, even if that suitor be a signatory of the Court, and render judgment in respect to such suitor.

"The Court simply stands ready and available as a carefully chosen and experienced tribunal to which the nations of the world, if and when they choose, can refer their disputes for settlement, without the ordinary delays and difficulties which accompany the selection of arbitrators

"Under the terms of the original charter of the court, the United States is already a competent suitor to appear before it. The only obligation which we would assume by joining the court is one which we ourselves have asked for in the Senate reservations, namely, that we should pay our appropriate share of the expenses of its maintenance.

"I am informed that the largest contribution by any state has been but little more than $35,000 a year; and, although these expenses will be slightly increased in the future by an increase in the number and salaries of the judges, this obligation in any event will be comparatively trivial.

"The only other changes in our present status as suitor which would be effected by our joinder would be to give us new rights and privileges. If we join the court, we shall be admitted, under the protocol of adherence, to participate on an equality with the other signatory states in the election of the judges of the court. We should also be assured that no amendment of the charter of the court could be made without our consent.

"Far exceeding the weight of these legal considerations, by joining the court the United States would resume its time-honored place of leadership in the great movement for the judicial settlement of international controversies, and in the future, through its representatives and jurists, exercise its proper influence in the development of the kind of court which our representatives proposed to The Hague Conference more than 30 years ago."

"Contentious" Cases.

The Secretary then reviews the action of previous administrations and of the Senate in relation to the World Court, and comes to the moot fifth reservation.

Under the new provisions in its charter, the Court in rendering advisory opinions "must follow substantially the same procedure as is followed in controversies, or as they are termed in the rules of the court 'contentious cases.' It must act in public; it must give general notice of its proposed hearing, in order that any one who is interested may have an opportunity to be heard; and it must hear them.

"But the Court and the pending protocol go even further. In April, 1925, the Court was requested to render an advisory opinion in respect to the effect of the treaty of peace between Finland and Russia in reference to the autonomy of Eastern Carolia. When this request came before the court in January, it was found that Russia, although notified of the pending hearing, refused to take any part in the proceedings. Thereupon the Court refused to go forward with the matter or to render any advisory opinion."

Dispute With Any Nation.

It has been made clear, the Secretary proceeds, that the consent of the disputant nations is required in every case as a pre-condition to the granting of an advisory opinion involving any dispute.

"By this ruling and amendment another fear as to advisory opinions is removed. If the United States is involved in any dispute or controversy, to whatever degree, with another country, that matter cannot be brought before the World Court without the consent of the United States, even for obtaining an advisory opinion.

"It will be noticed that these last considerations fully meet the most important portion of the last half of the fifth reservation of the Senate. They give to the United States what amounts to an absolute veto on an advisory opinion touching 'any dispute . . . in which the United States has an interest.'

"There remains only that portion of the last sentence of the fifth reservation, which provides that the court shall not, without the consent of the United States, entertain a request for an advisory opinion touching any question in which the United States merely claims an interest and where the claim does not amount to a dispute or controversy. It will be obvious at once that the scope of this remaining clause is necessarily very narrow.

Veto Power.

"If the United States has an interest in any matter which another nation is seeking to bring up for an advisory opinion which is of so vital a character that the United States would not be satisfied to appear and present its interest to the Court, but desires to shut off all consideration of the Court therefrom by its objection, that matter, in all human probability, will have already attained the character of a dispute or controversy between the two nations, in which case the United States would already have a veto power under the new Article 68 of the charter statute, which adopts and enacts the spirit of the Eastern Carolia decision.

"Otherwise, we should perforce be brought to assume that the United States under this reservation was seeking rather arbitrarily to interfere with its veto in the affairs of other nations in which it had a very slight interest —a conclusion which is not lightly to be assumed. Therefore, I think it a fair assumption to say that the field covered by this last remaining portion of the Fifth Reservation is very narrow, and the need for such a prohibition unlikely ever to arise.

"Yet this very slight possibility is elaborately guarded against by the new portocol of adherence. So anxious have the framers of this protocol been to meet even the most unlikely desires of the United States that they have devoted the major portion of the protocol to providing machinery to meet this contingency.

"Advisory opinions can only be given by the court on the request of the council or the assembly of the League of Nations. Article 5 of the proposed protocol provides that the Secretary General of the League shall inform the United States of any proposal for obtaining an advisory opinion of the Court which is pending before the council or the assembly, with a view to obtaining an exchange of views between the United States and the council or assembly as to whether an interest of the United states is affected.

"Then when a request for such an opinion actually comes to the Court the Registrar of the Court shall notify the United States and give a reasonable time in which a statement of the United States concerning the request will be received. If necessary, the Court will grant a stay of proceedings in respect to the request for such time as is necessary to enable an exchange of views to take place.

Request for Opinion.

"In considering a request for an advisory opinion, if the United States makes objection, there shall be attributed to that objection the same force and effect as attaches to a vote against asking for the opinion given by members of the council or the assembly.

"After all these steps have been taken, if it appears that no agreement can be reached and the request for the opinion is still per-

QUIET REPORTED FROM HAITI; NEW MARINES ARRIVING

NO DEMONSTRATIONS DURING THE NIGHT

Earlier in Day Crowd of 2000 Gathers Around Outpost Building but Is Held Off.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Word from Haiti that quiet prevailed throughout the island was received with gratification in Washington today as leaders in Congress prepared to expedite organization of the House Foreign Affairs Committee so it might pass on the Porter resolution to authorize creation of a Haitian commission of inquiry as recommended by President Hoover.

On Capitol Hill the hope was expressed that it would be possible to get the House committee functioning in time for it to act on the measure by Friday. If this could be done it was thought by some the resolution formally could be placed before the House before the week-end adjournment.

From practically all quarters on the House side the opinion was expressed that little opposition would be voiced either in the committee or on the House floor to the setting up of the commission of inquiry as urged by Mr. Hoover both in his annual message to Congress and also in his special message of last Saturday.

The Chief Executive requested that $50,000 be provided to meet expenses of the commission. Because the measure calls for an expenditure of money it was thought the House would act first although there is nothing to prevent the Senate from initiating the legislation.

The reassuring news from the island was received as the detachment of 500 marines mobilized hastily last week and ordered to the island nearer their destination. They will supplement the force of 700 marines already there.

A dispatch from Brigadier-General John H. Russell, the American High Commissioner at Haiti, received late yesterday, told of the gathering of the largest body of Haitian malcontents yet to be reported to the State Department.

This, Gen. Russell said, occurred yesterday morning at Chantel, where a crowd of 2000 surrounded the outpost building, crying "down with Borno, down with Freeman." Borno is President of Haiti. Freeman could not be identified by the State Department. A French priest and three men of the native guard succeeded in holding the mob off.

Guard Outposts Called in.

A crowd of 1000 threatened to kill the corporal of the guard at Torbek, near Aux Cayes, the dispatch also said. Directions have been issued to call in the guard outposts from Torbek and Chantel in order to prevent their being rushed at night with a consequent seizure of arms and ammunition by disorderly elements.

Says Hoover "Made a Mess."

The first utterance in Congress on the situation in Haiti was made in the House today by Representative Huddleston (Dem.), Alabama, who said that President Hoover had "made a mess" in handling matters there although he had "inherited" the situation from the Coolidge administration.

The Alabaman, who several years ago also initiated Congressional discussion on the Coolidge Nicaraguan policy, said there never could be any military encounter in the island as all that could take place there would be a "massacre."

"It is a question of how many natives the American Marines can get to," he asserted. "It is a foot race, not a military encounter."

Huddleston said Mr. Hoover was responsible for what had happened in Haiti since March 4, adding the President now asked for a commission to investigate conditions there to have Congress "hold the sack" for him.

He asserted that since Hoover took office nothing had been done as far as anyone knew to prevent the culmination of the matters in Haiti.

"What in the name of common sense does he want with a commission when the conditions there are known to him?" Huddleston asked.

The Alabaman added it was "fortunate" no American Marines had been killed as he would not give the life of a "Marine for the whole country of Haiti."

The People's Lobby, headed by Prof. John Dewey, issued a statement last night characterising the sending of additional marines to Haiti as "superfluous evidence of the complete breakdown of our protected policy of financial and economic imperialism in the Caribbean area and elsewhere."

First Reinforcements Arrive; Quiet Prevails.

By the Associated Press.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Dec. 9.—Arrival of a detachment of 50 marines at Jacmel and impending arrival of hundreds more has aided marines already here considerably in restoring peace and quiet after the riots of last week.

RIOT IN PARIS BECAUSE ENGLISH IS USED IN TALKIE

PARIS, Dec. 9.—The new language problem created by talking films was emphasized here when the presentation at the Moulin Rouge of the original version of "The Fox Follies" in English provoked a riot.

Hundreds of policemen had to be called to check an enraged crowd of spectators who stormed the box office, demanding their money back because of the use of English in the film.

Calm was restored at the intermission, but pandemonium broke out a second time at the discovery that the film was to be continued in English. Police were compelled to clear the theater.

French producers are at their wits end because the talking film hardly exists in France yet and they are forced to rely on American talkies. Musicians who have been thrown out of work by the talkies are also active in trying to provoke public demonstrations against foreign films.

Day of 'Mailed Fist' in Mexico Has Passed, Says Ortiz Rubio, Stopping in City on Way East

President-Elect of Southern Republic Declares One of His Objects Will Be to Cement Friendship With U. S.

The President-elect of Mexico, Pascual Ortiz Rubio, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today, during a half-hour visit to St. Louis, that the "mailed fist" was no more in Mexico, and outlined the objectives of his administration, one of which is to cement amicable relations between the United States and his country.

President-elect Ortiz Rubio was on his way to New York to meet former President Calles, who has been in France for his health, and will then go to Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, to recuperate from the strain of a year's political campaign and to receive treatment for a stomach disorder which has affected his throat. Following his sojourn at the hospital, he will confer with President Hoover at Washington before returning to Mexico, preparatory to assuming office on Feb. 5. His term ends Dec. 1, 1934.

"It is a mistake to suppose there has been ill-feeling between the people of Mexico and those of the United States," the Mexican Presidnt-elect declared, "because no such feeling has ever existed generally. True, there has been a clash of economic interests which has engendered misunderstanding between certain groups, but the great majority of my people have always desired friendly relations with their neighbors in the United States.

"People of the United States are prone to think of Mexicans as soldiers. But I hope they will think of us as people, citizens of America, like themselves. The mailed fist has disappeared from Mexico —I trust for all time."

Ortiz Rubio a Civil Engineer.

Ortiz Rubio, who is a civil engineer and has studied his profession all over the world, is the first non-military man to be elected Mexico's chief executive in 19 years. His election, by the largest majority ever polled in Mexico, is regarded by his followers, who have been associated with President Calles, as an omen of continued internal peace.

"The greatest problem confronting my administration is that of the betterment of living conditions among our poorer classes," the President-elect said, "and it reduces itself to a formula of higher wages and better treatment for workers.

"There is no unemployment problem in Mexico. There is work for all. But many of the laborers are underpaid, ill housed, poorly clothed. Such conditions do not make for good citizenship. It is essential to the prosperity of any country to have good citizens. The problem is not to give jobs but to give better jobs.

"My administration, which will follow to a great extent the policies enunciated by President Calles, will seek, therefore, an increased wage scale, both in the factories and the fields, and better laws for the protection of women and children. Through legislation, education and good roads we hope to raise the living standard of the peons."

PASCUAL ORTIZ RUBIO.

Would Improve Water Facilities.

In addition to his policies of agrarian and labor relief, the President-elect of Mexico is desirous of increasing the river and harbor facilities of his country. Luis Quintamilla, an attache of the Mexican Embassy at Washington, who is escorting the party, said that river and harbor improvement was one of the personal hobbies of Ortiz Rubio, who after graduation from the University of Mexico, observed engineering work at European harbors and then visited Africa to study the British colonization system there.

Quintamilla pointed out that Ortiz Rubio and Prresidetn Hoover, both engineers and both students of economic affairs, have much in common and indicated that their meeting would do much to clarify relations between the two nations.

"I shall bear to President Hoover a message of good will from my people," Ortis Rubio said, "and I am delighted always when prosperous conditions prevail in the United States. The prosperity of your country means the prosperity of mine. Both countries are in America, both should work for the prosperity of all America."

St. Louis and Mexican Trade.

The President-elect pointed out that St. Louis, as the dominant city of the Southwest, was an important center of trade with Mexico. With increased prosperity, he said, the Mexican people are dependent upon many articles manufactured in the United States, and he anticipates that St. Louis will become a great clearing house for products shipped from the Southwest and Middle West.

His stop today in the Union Station, when his private car was switched from a Missouri Pacific train from Hot Springs, Ark., to one of the Pennsylvania Railroad for New York, was his first since 1916, when he passed through the city as a member of a commission

AMERICAN WOMEN AND CHILDREN IN NANKING QUIT CITY

40 MEN, HOWEVER, REMAIN BEHIND

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 9. — Seventy-five American women and children refugees from Nanking arrived here today by steamer. There were also refugees of many other nationalities, forced from their homes by threatening rebel successes.

The refugees represented all the American women and children and some of the men of Nanking. Other foreign women and children are expected hourly, while 40 American men are remaining at their homes. Many of them are missionaries.

The American and British refugees said they had decided to leave at the request of their Consular authorities who stated publicly "because of the uncertain situation and impossibility to foresee the future we advise all Americans (and British) women to leave as quickly as possible for Shanghai."

Two boats, a British river steamer and a Standard Oil Co. river boat brought the refugees here. The decks of the boats were piled high with the refugees' belongings.

Interregnum Feared.

It was understood among those arriving here the American Consular officials advising evacuation feared a possible interregnum in the event the government of Gen. Chiang kai-shek is forced to abdicate by the rebels who seemed to be advancing on every front.

This possibility was shared by most of those arriving here although some professed to believe in the stability of the Chiang Government and to believe it would weather this storm, the most serious of its short career. No offensive efforts are being made, it was said the Government is concentrating only on defense of Nanking and the Shanghai sector.

Two divisions of Hankow troops arrived in Nanking to aid in defense of the city. It was said 50,000 loyal Government troops were now in control and defending the place.

The Government meanwhile will negotiate with the rebels making concessions to placate them and furthering its "silver bullet" policy. In the event such procedure is successful it was considered certain several present high officials would have to go.

St. Louis and Los Angeles.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THOMAS H. REED is quoted as saying, in effect, that in case the city were to extend its limits to embrace the entire county the city would be financially unable to supply the whole county with urban improvements. Upon this theorem he concludes that the city should not annex the county. Harland Bartholomew cites the burden of Los Angeles in undertaking to furnish urban improvements to large sparsely populated areas within its limits.

The conditions in the county are not comparable with the open sections of Los Angeles. Almost as soon as Los Angeles, 20 miles inland from the coast, was founded, towns sprung up along the sea to the west and south of Los Angeles, thus leaving an expanse of unoccupied land between that city and the sea. Fast-moving trains and broad highways carried large numbers of people to the city from the sea and to the sea from the populous city. Commerce of great value moved over the steel rails and roads that crossed these open spaces. The city and the coast towns became magnets for each other, and it was not strange that demands arose for urban facilities for the tracts that lay between.

The rural sections of St. Louis County have no outer fringe of sea coast or other incentive for population growth. No masses of people go daily from the city to the outlying portions of the county or vice versa, and no great commerce unites the two localities. The county grows only on its east side and only as the city pushes its population out to the west of it. Beyond the line of growth, the county will remain rural, just as portions of the city remained rural after the separation of 1876 and until almost the present time. While rural, no city is called upon to furnish urban facilities for any locality. Farmers always resist urban improvements when they can put their farms to no use except to till them. Dr. Reed is correct in his contention that the city would be financially unable to supply urban improvements to the rural parts of the county, but the city would never be called upon to face such demand.

The plan for the city and county is yet to be determined; but the all-city plan provided for among the three methods under the constitutional amendment of 1925 is workable and contains no problem of serious import. C. B. K.

Long Live the Volstead Act.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT is amusing after Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison, President Hoover and multitudes of America's foremost thinkers have indorsed prohibition that Winston Churchill of England should declare it a failure. The real failure is that Churchill, like some others, see only the reform feature and not the protective feature. Formerly a saloonkeeper could operate a dive in a reputable business block and his outlaw customers make that block unsafe at night and unprofitable for other business, but now we can padlock the place much easier than to cause a dozen arrests as formerly.

Other business has rights and other people have liberties as well as the booze bunch. Long live Hoover, Ford and Edison and the Volstead act.

Loan Sharks and Leon Henderson.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

HUMANITY in general and those individuals in particular who are seeking a method of overcoming the loan shark evil, are gratified by the recent Kansas Supreme Court decision which declared that loan sharks as a nuisance can be restrained by injunctions. Your approbation, as indicated by the editorial "Loan Sharks in Kansas," which appeared in your Dec. 2 issue, is also gratifying.

However, it is difficult to understand why the editorial should have referred to Leon Henderson of New York as deserving of gratitude for the fight he and the Russell Sage Foundation have been making against loan sharks when that gentleman, presumably at the expense of the Foundation, through representatives and personally, made a determined effort during the last session of the Missouri Legislature to defeat the measure which reduced the rate of interest on small loans from 3½ per cent per month to 2½ per cent per month and placed restrictions on salary buying.

When the legislation was passed, in spite of Henderson and the Foundation, as a result of the courageous fight made by Senator Dearmont and his colleagues, Henderson was one of those who sought a special hearing with Gov. Caulfield in the hope of getting the Governor to veto the measure. The hearing was refused and the bill reducing the legal rate on small loans by 12 per cent per annum and containing regulations governing salary buying was signed and has subsequently become a law.

Under the circumstances it is difficult to see how Leon Henderson or the Russell Sage Foundation deserve any credit for Missouri's latest small loan reform.

CARL M. DUBINSKY.

IN TROUBLED HAITI.

The news is vague about Haiti. That the disturbance which started in a students' strike is serious is all too evident. It has spread swiftly. One clash is reported between the natives and American Marines, with a casualty list of five fatalities. Our Government's action in sending a detachment of 500 Marines to reinforce the present guard savors of armed rebellion. The gravity of the situation is further attested by Mr. Hoover's request of Congress to send a special commission to the island at once to examine conditions, a procedure mentioned in his message of Dec. 3 as under consideration.

Congress, apparently, is disposed to co-operate promptly with the President by granting him the authority to act. There is a division of sentiment, however, among the congressional leaders about this Haytian experiment which undoubtedly reflects the confused public sentiment. After 14 years of American fiscal and constabulary control the Government of Haiti is denounced by Senator Borah as a tyranny hardly conceivable in this day and age. Such sweeping condemnation by the chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations calls for the facts. It emphasizes the necessity of an investigating commission that will seek and report the facts as found. We are happy to believe that that is the kind of commission Mr. Hoover intends to name. In his message already referred to the President regretted the fact that American Marines are still on foreign soil and frankly rejoiced at the prospect that their numbers would presently be reduced to the norm of international custom and courtesy.

In its troubled history of more than a century we have had frequently to reprimand and discipline Haiti and, on occasion, to remind European Powers, by authority of the Monroe Doctrine, to keep hands off. More than once Washington was urged to assume the relationship of what the lawyers call in loco parentis. An insistent demand for such departure from our foreign policy arose in the first McKinley administration. It was sternly refused by the Secretary of State, John Sherman, who characterized the proposal of establishing protectorates over our neighbors as a dangerous departure from American tradition.

That was in 1897. In July, 1915, when our sense of proportion was distorted, perhaps, by the World War, we bowed to the logic of events, we sent our Marines to end a reign of terror, we took on the manifold duties as inventoried in "The White Man's Burden" of Kipling, and we are still there. But peace and tranquillity are not there.

So Congressman Garner is in order when he expresses impatience with this practice of "playing wet nurse" to the backward peoples of tropical America. The studious Senator King must respectfully be heard when he counsels abandoning this imperialistic adventure. And President Hoover is entitled to public patience and sympathy in a difficult problem which he has inherited.

MODERNISM AND THE ART MUSEUM.

It is to be hoped that the Art Museum's decision to hold a spring exhibition of modern European paintings will develop into a settled policy toward the newer trends in painting. St. Louis in the past has been debarred from acquaintance with the work of modernistic painters. We shall have to make haste to catch up with the procession.

To this end, the Museum might well follow the spring exhibition with a loan show of the first Nineteenth Century moderns. We refer to such distinguished painters as Cezanne, Van Gogh, Seurat and Gauguin, who are the bright particular stars of a show now being held at the newly launched and highly successful Modern Museum in New York. The St. Louis Museum might also devote a section of American modern painters in the annual American show held every fall.

It is not suggested the Museum go berserk on modernism, but merely to give it the place it deserves in any well-rounded attitude toward art.

NIL DESPERANDUM.

Do not surrender in cowardly despair, O, fellow St. Louisans, because our town stews complacently in its indolent sinfulness. Elsewhere the vigilantes are alertly on patrol. In immaculate Boston, for example, we learn that the Governor of Maryland will not be permitted to relate the experience of his State under prohibition in Tremont Temple, the largest Baptist church in that city. Unfortunately a hall has been procured and the speech will be made, but it is heartening to learn that the officials of the Boston Elevated have refused to desecrate the frontage of their cars with posters announcing the event.

From La Crosse, Wis., too, comes a message that, by order of the Mayor, the jeunesse doree of that town will no longer play checkers in public. Thus we move toward higher things.

Meantime here in St. Louis our delegated guardians drowse at their posts, while a scarlet orgy—for that's what the Poinsettia show at Shaw's Garden is—flames luridly against a melancholy sky, pouring beauty and joy upon the people, who, if our officials could only pluck up a bit of courage, might be garbed in sackcloth and ashes.

Thank heaven, Boston and La Crosse are keeping on their hair shirt.

CRITICISM ON A GRAN SCALE.

It is perhaps natural that from Copenhagen, which welcomed Dr. Cook with open arms and then suffered sad disillusionment, should come criticisms and doubts about the latest polar exploit, Commander Byrd's. The critic is Maj. Tryggve Gran, a Norwegian, whose polar record consists of service as ski expert with the Scott party. After several emendations and denials, Gran's criticisms sift down to statements that Byrd could not have seen several things which as a matter of fact the record shows he never said he saw, that his party did not have "years of preparation," and that the whole thing has been in the newspapers too much for a real scientific project.

Maj. Gran apparently is one of those hardy pioneers found everywhere who deplore the effeminacies of the present age. If he lived in America, he would prefer the covered wagon to the railroad train. The speed of discovery by plane benumbs him, accustomed as he is to the weary march of dog teams and men on foot. His prototype is the man who beheld the giraffe and said, "There ain't no such animal."

The old-time explorer got back from the wilderness and told his story a year or two after he had started, but by then everyone had forgotten him. His accomplishments as a result had more scientific worth than spot news value. Commander Byrd has the radio, which enables the press to keep up with his doings from day to day. The world can't forget him as it formerly dropped from its mind the distant muffled figures invading frigid zones. Maj. Gran should realize that the age of invention has changed everything, including exploration.

BEHAVIORISM IN TEXAS.

Behaviorism, now less than a quarter of a century old, is the promising child of psychology. Behaviorism assumes that we are what our environment makes us and nothing more.

The science is doing well in Texas. The Houston Post-Dispatch takes Federal Judge Charles B. Faris of St. Louis to task because he was moved to compassion by the spectacle of a woman whose defense against a prohibition charge was that her husband was ill and that she made liquor to support her family. Judge Faris said he did not know what to do with her, and he added: "This is one of the troubles with this law. It corrupts men, women and children."

Our Houston namesake says: "If this defendant had been up for stealing, would the Judge have denounced the law against theft as a corrupting measure?" No distinction is made between the two things. Nor is any distinction made by any of the dry newspapers between violating the prohibition law and violating any other law. The point is ignored that what have always been crimes in social usage are not the same as crimes made by such moral waves as faith was in the Middle Ages or as prohibition is in the United States now. The Houston paper and all those which, like it, take color from their locale deny it. Murder and selling a drink of liquor become in this amazing psychosis the same thing, just as in the Middle Ages the heretic, the slayer and the highwayman all swung from the same gibbet.

What can be done about it? Nothing, says the behaviorist. Human thought, like the flu, is blown about by the winds. It is possible to be sick abed with a pure delusion, as Torquemada and Cotton Mather were. The dispute between Judge Faris and the Houston Post-Dispatch is not an intelligence test. Prohibition is epidemic in Texas, and the perspective of the Houston paper is the feverish perspective of that epidemic. To doubt it is to doubt science. Only time can prove Judge Faris to have been right, as only time has truly evaluated all such phenomena in the past. William Lyon Phelps puts the whole story in the following paragraph from the current Scribner's:

> In every age Intolerance has lifted its ugly and repulsive head; innumerable persons in good bodily health really believe that those who differ from them are either lacking in intellect or are morally oblique. You hear them say, "Such fellows ought to be stood up against a wall and shot," "There ought to be a law," etc., etc. When you hear the expression, "I cannot understand how So-and-so can act the way he does," you may be sure that it is not the only thing the speaker fails to understand. He understands indeed very little. There are many who wish to prescribe how others should dress, what they should eat, drink and smoke, the precise form of religion or patriotism or politics they should support—in short, they wish to standardize both the bodies and the minds of their fellow countrymen, the standard in every case to be the one followed by themselves.

Thus Texas, which would impose her standard upon us all.

GIVE THE BILL A FAIR HEARING.

In the controversy between Elmer Donnell, manager of the Associated Industries, and the Missouri Federation of Labor as to the proposed state insurance measure, the latter thus far has all the better of the argument.

Mr. Donnell made the mistake of saying some time ago that the measure would prohibit self-insurance; that it would compel employers who prefer to insure themselves against workmen's compensation claims to buy state insurance. The backers of the state insurance law had nothing of the sort in mind. On the contrary, the draft of the law specifically provides that self-insurers would enjoy the same status as they do now.

As a matter of fact, the state insurance law, though it is sponsored by labor, has its advantages for employers. In Ohio, where a state insurance law has been very successful, insurance is 40 per cent cheaper than under the old system. Certainly the bill deserves a fair hearing from the Associated Industries on the ground of self-interest, if nothing else.

BELGIUM PROTESTS.

The people of Belgium in no uncertain terms are voicing their sentiments regarding the proposed union of the royal house of Belgium with that of Italy, through the marriage of Princess Marie-Jose and Prince Umberto. The opposition is not confined to a few isolated objections. Through the medium of their governing bodies, entire cities have protested, even to the extent of threatening the otherthrow of the Belgian monarchy.

It is not the betrothal of Princess Marie-Jose and Prince Umberto that has aroused the Belgians to protest. That is merely an occasion. The cause is a fear of a recession of the liberties of the people, and the recovery of the unlimited powers once vested in the ruling house. The people of Belgium are protesting not so much even against Mussolini as against that governmental anachronism he represents—Fascism. By allying itself with the Italian royal house, the sovereigns of Belgium imply approval of a royal house which has ignominiously submitted to the usurpation of its power, its royalty, by a dictator, and thereby it also implies approval of Fascism.

Of Fascism the Belgians want none. Through centuries they have fought for and acquired a large degree of personal liberty.

ATHLETICS IN EDUCATION.

Who Shall Control the Public Domain?

Administration of area four times that of Idaho involved in discussion of public lands; value lies not in grazing or timber but in watershed, flood control and reclamation facilities of importance; state supervision not advisable in matters affecting many states; high time for definite plan; U. S. Government is logical trustee.

Congressman Burton L. French of Idaho in American Forests and Forest Life.

PRESIDENT HOOVER and the Secretary of the Interior, Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, have rendered a distinct public service in directing the attention of the country, and particularly the West, to the problem of the public domain. By public domain is meant all land belonging to the Federal Government not included within the National forests, the National parks or other special reservations.

The public domain embraces approximately 235,000,000 acres, if certain withdrawals for stock drives and stock watering places and approximately 35,000,000 acres of coal and shale reserves are included—all of which should be considered for the purpose of the public domain. For the most part this area is within the Western states, and is spread over the watersheds that feed the Mississippi, Missouri, Rio Grande, Colorado, Columbia and other great rivers. For present consideration, attention may be focused upon approximately 235,000,000 acres—an area somewhat larger than four states the size of Idaho.

The President and the Secretary of the Interior have been impressed with the dreadful havoc that is being wrought with these lands, and two methods have been proposed for their handling that seek in an affirmative way to correct the problem. One method proposes that the surface control of these areas be turned over to the several states within which they are located. The other plan proposes that the Federal Government undertake direct control.

The thousands of abandoned homes throughout the West in all the public land states are grim evidence of the fact that the remaining acres of the public domain are not valuable for homestead purposes. Thousands of acres contain valuable stands of timber, but for the most part the lands have not sustained timber growth during many decades. Most of the lands of the public domain are valuable for grazing purposes. If these were the only important uses of the surfaces of the vast expanse of land, the problem would be readily solved. The timber areas could be turned over to National forests or to the states for forestry administration. Likewise the grazing lands could be transferred to private ownership, or reserved to the states or Federal Government for such use as either might care to make of them.

As I see it, however, the astounding value of the public domain lies in uses that have been overlooked, for the most part, in the discussions that have occurred upon this subject. These uses are as watersheds and for the control of stream-flow, uses as deterrents to floods, uses for natural storage for irrigated lands, uses for recreation and for game, uses for forage and range, uses as forest area, and, finally uses as gigantic regulators of climatic conditions of interest alike to the people under reclamation projects and in rainfall belts. Indeed, the values of these lands are such that the welfare and prosperity of the people of a mighty empire are dependent directly upon the fidelity with which the lands are administered.

Watersheds are often of more value to other states than the one in which they are situated. The people of the nation have a constant interest in an adequate supply of timber, in game life, in expanses of domain for recreation. They have an interest in the control of the range and in forest control and management. They have an abiding interest in the value of the range for watershed with all that it means for reclamation, for flood control and for modification of climate.

The administration of this vast area should not be turned over to individual states. Such a course would mean the placing of control of watersheds, with all that this implies to people of many states, in the hands of one state that might have little interest. Nor has state administration of land grants, of timber areas, of school lands, of reclamation under the Carey act, in spite of some notable exceptions, been such as to inspire confidence.

The record of Federal administration in National forests, in reclamation of arid lands, in highway construction programs and in our great National parks has been such as to inspire confidence in the ability of the Government to assume a further responsibility in the administration of the watershed areas.

It is high time that we work out a definite program for these lands, a program that will prevent over-grazing and that will mean orderly use of the range; a program that will permit control of forest areas, one that will stay the havoc of soil erosion. In short, we need a program that will bring about such control of the range that will mean ground cover of grass and shrub and forest, that will enhance the value of an asset of our country that for too long a time has been treated with neglect.

If I am correct the assumption that the public domain has astounding values and that they belong to people generally regardless of state lines, it would seem that the agency representing the people benefited should be charged with the responsibility of control. This agency is the Federal Government. To carry out the program I have in mind, I have introduced a bill, H. R. 4187, endeavoring to provide a means for prevention of soil erosion, to provide protection of the National watersheds and for the promotion of the highest general uses of the public domain.

Recognizing as I do that the highest uses are for watershed and stream-flow, I have sought to provide in the bill a means under the Government for administration of the public domain. As I believe that the surface domain is receiving incalculable injury through over-grazing, I have proposed a system of control of grazing upon the public lands with the thought that through proper grazing the ground cover will return, erosion will be stopped after a period of years, and ultimately the vast area will be able to sustain more livestock than today.

This is a problem that is of interest to the West and to the entire country. It is of immediate interest to all the Mississippi Valley states that are traversed by waters whose sources are in the uplands of the states that contain the public domain.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINTON, Dec. 8.

IT is getting so no wet drinking, dry-voting Congressman is safe from having leaky trunks in his possession. There is a conspiracy of some sort afoot to embarrass the men who vote for the Jones act penalties of five years and $10,000 against liquor law violations. The trunk dealers in Illinois are up in arms.

The impression has gone forth that only the trunks and suitcases of Illinois "drys" leak on arrival at customs offices, while those of Kansas, Iowa and Alabama "drys" seem to survive the rigors of baggage smashing. The contention is that the Illinois "drys" use the standard brand of trunks and something else must be wrong.

First, it was Representative M. Alfred Michaelson of Chicago, who was exonerated and a relative took a jail sentence. Now it is Representative Edward E. Denison of down-State Illinois. Both were alleged to have had leaky trunks. Both were amazed that any charge of transporting booze should be levelled at them.

THE important thing, Washington feels, is that dry Congressmen who vote for laws to deliver the rest of the population into the hands of bootleggers, beer runners, speakeasies and the cover charge extortions of the night clubs, ought to be protected against having leaky trunks in their personal baggage when they return from junkets, at public expense, to the besotted and backward Republics down the Gulf stream.

The only solution Washington can envisage is that of having official Congressional baggage masters who will be on the job at the ports when "dry" Congressmen arrive and will make it their personal business to see that there are no leaky trunks or suitcases, included in the baggage of the "dry" members.

It is said to be next to impossible to prevent liquor-laden trunks being delivered on perfectly proper and accurate baggage checks to the offices or homes of "dry" leaders who are embarrassed by grand jury acceptance of base innuendo of law violation.

A WAY must be found to pin responsibility on some one. Brothers-in-law and secretaries cannot be used always as alibis.

It would cost only $1500 or $1800 a year to have an official Congressional baggage master who would see that liquor laden trunks were handled gently and no contents broken. Not even the most rabid Coolidge "economy" proponents—which included Mr. Michaelson and Mr. Denison—would protest against that.

Moreover, there ought to be some sort of law requiring that dry-voting, wet-drinking members of the House should permit their wives to pack their baggage. No woman would make such a mess of a packing job as to have a bottle break and pour its contents right out in front of the law.

A COLD WELCOME THERE, TOO.

Both were alleged to have had leaky trunks. Both were amazed that any charge of transporting booze should be levelled at them.

THE important thing, Washington feels, is that dry Congressmen who vote for laws to deliver the rest of the population into the hands of bootleggers, beer runners, speakeasies and the cover charge extortions of the night clubs, ought to be protected against having leaky trunks in their personal baggage when they return from junkets, at public expense, to the besotted and backward Republics down the Gulf stream.

The only solution Washington can envisage is that of having official Congressional baggage masters who will be on the job at the ports when "dry" Congressmen arrive and will make it their personal business to see that there are no leaky trunks or suitcases, included in the baggage of the "dry" members.

It is said to be next to impossible to prevent liquor-laden trunks being delivered on perfectly proper and accurate baggage checks to the offices or homes of "dry" leaders who are embarrassed by grand jury acceptance of base innuendo of law violation.

A WAY must be found to pin responsibility on some one. Brothers-in-law and secretaries cannot be used always as alibis.

It would cost only $1500 or $1800 a year to have an official Congressional baggage master who would see that liquor laden trunks were handled gently and no contents broken. Not even the most rabid Coolidge "economy" proponents—which included Mr. Michaelson and Mr. Denison—would protest against that.

Moreover, there ought to be some sort of law requiring that dry-voting, wet-drinking members of the House should permit their wives to pack their baggage. No woman would make such a mess of a packing job as to have a bottle break and pour its contents right out in front of the law.

A COLD WELCOME THERE, TOO.

MR. TROTZKY, having been refused admission to Germany, Holland, England, Denmark, et al., might try the Byrd expedition as a last chance.

"Of Making Many Books"

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

FIGURES OF THE REVOLUTION. By Louis Madelin. Translated from the French by Richard Curtis. (Macaulay.)

IT IS said that Louis Madelin, Sorbonne lecturer on history, is generally recognized in France as the leading authority on the French Revolution. In the present volume he sets forth in 10 scenes the drama of that great social upset, some understanding of which is essential to anyone who may be more than casually interested in the main currents of the terrific world-stream as it flows today. There is a sense in which it may be said with vital meaning that the French Revolution has not ended, but continues with ever increasing intensity, in the forces that produced it and in turn were magnified and released through it.

This study of the revolution in terms of the outstanding characters who, while seeming to be leaders were for the most part tragically led, will appeal not only to those who may have made a special study of the period, but also to those who may be approaching the subject with some seriousness for the first time and want to get the most possible for a moderate effort. Being a master of the subject, Madelin is able to simplify the whole by concentrating on the most vital points of the story, and he has a dry humor at his command that serves to maintain a sympathetic sanity throughout the mad recital.

Americans who have been brought up on orthodox textbook history may be a bit taken back by Madelin's comment on our own Revolution, and especially by the picture drawn of that schoolboy's hero, Lafayette. There are some delightful passages descriptive of this somewhat grotesquely ingenuous enthusiast, who could see "a blessed equality," and "neither rich nor poor" in America, and who must have been a perplexing spectacle to the dour "Quaker merchants" and the "Puritan farmers of staid, cautious, practical habits who carried on the struggle stubbornly but unimaginatively." "There was in this man," says Madelin, "a strange mixture of divine vanity akin to frenzy, of heroic intentions, and a naive desire to show off." He is pictured as a sort of high-minded clown, always under the influence of some extravagant-ly sublime emotion, never knowing where he was going, but always going there under a full head of steam. When, we are told, he refused to lead the National Guard, to the King's chateau, believing that to do so would be "harmful to majesty," he was assailed by cries from the mob, "Good heavens, General, you must go with us." "He gave in, as always, but made it appear that he was under orders from the City Commune" says Madelin; and he adds dryly, "He was their leader; he followed them."

In commenting on the close of this quixotic life at the age of 77, the author observes: "No one can live forever, even though immersed in the distorted visions of an unending immaturity; and so he was saved another self-deception. He had learned nothing. * * * It is rather distressing to think of his unlined countenance since he had experienced so much of public and private sorrow. * * * Revolutions! If this noble old man had lived, he would, with the very best intentions, have set another 10 in motion. Let us beware of such generous people."

THE SECRETARY'S HANDBOOK. By Sarah Augusta Taintor and Kate M. Monro. (Macmillan.)

Though planned especially for secretaries and stenographers, this compact, and yet admirably comprehensive handbook of correct forms in the writing of English, should often prove a friend in need to any intelligent person. The work is in two sections, the first containing rules with illustrations of correct English forms; the second presenting various types of letters relating to business, social and official usage, as well as other forms of writing often required of secretaries. Directions are given for the proper preparation of manuscripts designed for publication, the reading of proof, the making of indexes and the compiling of bibliographies. The systematic arrangement of the material and an exhaustive index make it easy to locate any item of information desired.

POEMS OF JUSTICE. Compiled by Thomas Curtis Clark, with a Foreword by Zona Gale. (Willett, Clark and Colby, Chicago.)

An anthology of 350 poems of social revolt by 200 poets. The work is divided into four sections under the following self-explanatory captions: Panorama of the Poor, The March of Revolt, Brothers All, Dreams and Goals.

THE IMPERIAL DOLLAR. By Hiram Motherwell. (Brentano's.)

This work, which traces America's progress toward world dominion through finance, might be read as an answer to the anthology previously noted. The author frankly champions the cause of the conquering "imperial dollar," and for this reason the book is decidedly worth reading. With his sincere enthusiasm, the author forgets the usual camouflage.

The Week's New Films

By NIE

FINELY done, for the most part, with an eye to pleasing the intellectuals and a stupid bow to the other customers by the introduction of a most untimely and totally unnecessary theme song, "The Sacred Flame" at the Missouri, ranks well up in the list of the winter's best talkies. Taken from Somerset Maugham's drama of the same name the interesting story concerns an aviator who drops with his plane, just after his wedding, but lives on for several years, a hopeless cripple under the care of his beautiful young wife, his mother and a hard-faced nurse who believed that love and sex are as far apart as the recent top and bottom prices in Wall Street. The aviator—he is also the singer of the theme song—is Conrad Nagel and along about the middle of the picture he dies suddenly without discovering, although he seemed to have a hunch in that direction, that his wife was falling, hard, for his younger brother. The nurse goes into tirades against unholy companionships and is all for sending the wife to the lock-up on a charge of murder. Pauline Frederick, in the role of the mother, comes to the front then and in a highly dramatic and finely played scene confesses that she poisoned her son to insure her daughter-in-law's future happiness. This seems to be perfectly satisfactory to everyone and the law is not brought into the matter. "The Sacred Flame" is not the best of the talkies by any means but the playing of Miss Frederick, Lila Lee, Mr. Nagel, Alec B. Francis and William Courtenay makes it a distinguished one.

Back Stage Again.

BELLE BAKER, a sort of Albertina Jolson of the vaudevilles, is making her screen bow this week at the Fox in "Song of Love," another back stage romance which follows closely the regulation tailoring of such picture plays. You know how they go; the hoofer and his wife, their little boy and the big blond who rips the knob off the combination. But "Song of Love" introduces a surprising novelty into the plot in that the child doesn't die. He doesn't even get sick, but sticks around and sings his ma and pa back together again in the last reel, so that they can all live happily, forever after, on the big time circuit. Miss Baker knows how to sing the type of songs which made her famous and she sings them pretty frequently during the course of the film. Ralph Graves gives a fine perfrmance as the husband, who is sure footed on the stage, but who slips and falls for the first gold digger who passes his dressing room door. David Durand, as the son, is about the best child actor the talking screens have introduced and, altogether, "Song of Love" is good entertainment.

Madame X on Trial.

DOROTHY MACKAILL, who has been devoting her life to playing snappy comedy roles goes in for the heavy stuff in "The Love Racket" down at the Ambassador and lands firmly on her feet. The moral of the drama sets out to prove that "You Can't Get Away With It, or, maybe, Love Will Find a Way, or something of the sort. Dorothy, despite the fact that it is all without benefit of clergy, is settled back in comfortable domesticity with her boy friend when the picture starts. Then he quits her cold, moves out of the little old love nest and sets up another establishment with a nice gal who turns out to be quick on the trigger. At the murder trial after that Dorothy is on the jury along with a man who never heard of love nests and who loves her dearly. Dorothy's past bobs up and hits her in the eye when she votes for acquittal, but her new man is above such petty little annoyances and forgives her just about the same moment the picture ends.

Somewhere in France.

ALL of the usual types so well known to the customers who frequent war films are to be found in "Marianne" at Loew's. There is the good boy who loves the little French girl, the bad boy who makes faces at the officers, and Izzy Cohen, from New York's East Side, who is on hand to furnish the comedy required by every first-class war. Then, of course, there is the French girl. Once she was called Charmaine which, through many variations, has now come down to Marianne and Marion Davies. Miss Davies sings and dances, after a fashion, the Americans win the war and go home and then Marianne journeys to New York to fall into her sweetheart's arms. The thing doesn't ring very true. We dare say the war happened all right, but the rest of the story seems unlikely. It's not very good, any way.

DRINKWATER COMEDY A DELIGHTFUL PLAY

BIRD IN HAND—A comedy in three acts by John Drinkwater. Presented at the Shubert Theater with the following cast:

Joan Greenleaf	Freda Bruce Lockhart
Alice Greenleaf	Olga Slade
Thomas Greenleaf	Arthur Ridley
Gerald Arnwood	Denis Mantell
Mr. Blanquet	Eliot Makeham
Cyril Beverley	Richard Littledale
Ambrose Godolphin	Douglas Jeffries
Bar Maid	Gwen Ferris
Sir Robert Arnwood	Laurence Atteridge

By H. H. NIEMEYER.

JOHN DRINKWATER, who, previously, has devoted himself to the more serious side of the drama, stepped into the very front rank, so far as St. Louis is concerned at least, as a writer of delicious comedy when his play, "Bird in Hand" was presented at the Shubert Theater last night. In the hands, very properly, of an all-British company—for "Bird in Hand" is English, through and through—the little play is a masterpiece of humor. And while that humor is distinctly made in England it is international in its appeal and even a typical Sunday night audience, which is supposed to require its laughs delivered across the footlights in the broadest and most easily understood manner, was convulsed throughout the three acts of the play.

"Bird in Hand," has nothing to do with the old adage. It is the name of a little inn, a rural English wayside stopping place which boasts but two guest bedrooms and no telephone. The arrival, on a stormy night, of three travelers throws the place into some confusion, but before the night is over the visitors play an all important part in the future life of the host and his charming daughter.

For Thomas Greenleaf, whose hotel has come down to him through 300 years with few improvements, lives in the past. His daughter is modern. Not a flapper, to be sure, but a clean, likeable girl who has her own ideas of propriety and love. She goes for an automobile ride, much against her father's wishes, with the son of a neighboring nobleman and when the rain storm drives them to cover in a summer house her father is frantic with fear and rage.

How the question of the girl's love for her riding companion is definitely settled, for all time, by the three guests of the inn makes the story of the play—and makes it with so much charm and so delightfully that "Bird in Hand" is easily the best stage entertainment which has come to St. Louis in many seasons.

It is, primarily, a drama of types and the cast, hand picked by Mr. Drinkwater himself, is admirably fitted to his requirements. Thomas Greenleaf, the father who refuses to recognize the fact that times change and that men, and women, change also, is finely played by Arthur Ridley and Freda Bruce Lockhart is his most agreeable daughter, but most of the fun and the laughter is supplied by the three visitors, three widely different men. One is a barrister, a K. C. who is proud of his station, another is a young man of wealth and position, while a third is a salesman "traveling in sardines," and, apparently, stepping right out of a page from Dickens. This role falls to the lot of Eliot Makeham, and if "Bird in Hand" could be said to have a star part, which it hasn't, by the way, that part is Mr. Makeham's.

As the lawyer Douglas Jefferies also shines, too, while Richard Littledale is a light and airy and most pleasing young gentleman. The rest of the cast is entirely up to the standard set by these five persons and "Bird in Hand" is something more than, as has been said before, charming entertainment. It is a rare contribution to the stage.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.

DIARY of a modern Pepys: Up and talked to Billy De Beck newly home from two years in France and to my puttering tasks. Outside my window a street musician began playing on a piccolo and I waved him away but he waved back as though receiving a greeting.

In the afternoon to Larchmont to see a gentleman who has acquired a three months old cub bear, chubby and playful as a kitten, and it became friends with my dog although the latter constantly bristled as though scenting danger Home through Harlem.

Abroad with my wife to dine and we had a dessert of flaky pie crust rolled in nuts and spread with honey, as delicious as ever I tasted. So driving through white lit Broadway and past the old Hotel Majestic, where we used to live, now dark and despoiled by wreckers.

JED HARRIS seems to have definitely passed up Broadway and at 30 is in a state of semi-retirement in Europe. He is variously reported occupying a town house in London and a villa on Lake Como. One thing is sure, his theatrical offices are closed and his name in gilt scratched from the door.

Harris became an over-night figure in that odd phenomenon we call the Rialto less than two years ago. At one time he had seven shows running—three on Broadway and four on tour—and his income was $40,000 a week. Just as suddenly he tired and sailed away.

He was born on the Newark outskirts, the son of a large Jewish family. He is thin, pale, and as brittle as spun glass but has the burning black eyes and flaming enthusiasm of the zealot. He weighs only 120 pounds. Among his eccentricities was to go for weeks without shaving.

WITH customary Broadway scepticism most people thought Harris—born Jacob Horowitz—was a type of show-off peculiar to the street and regarded his affectations as a pose. His genius as a theatrical producer, however, could not be denied. He burst upon the district, after knocking about as a road show press agent, with the smash hit "Broadway." He followed this up in quick succession with "Coquette," "The Royal Family" and "The Front Page"—all knockouts.

DESPITE these honors, the attitude of Harris was uppity. He professed with dilletante languor to regard it only as a temporary expedient before "doing something worth while." He was contemptuous toward everybody connected with the theater and airily drove two dramatic writers from his office. In other ways he was a fresh young upstart, ready to explode like a skyrocket at any moment. But he succeeded where so many others failed. Broadway stood in complete awe. His retirement manifesto was received with a grand grin. Press piffle! But several days later steamship departures carried the name of the intrepid idealist.

JED HARRIS bristled with that electric quality that expresses itself in quick changes of mind. In younger days he went to Yale for a term and one day in the middle of class suddenly walked out. A day later, although he flinches at every dip of the ship and gags at each new smell he was stoking coal on a cattleboat bound for Liverpool.

ANOTHER odd genius of the Jewish faith was Louis Marshall, the great lawyer and philanthropist, who died in Switzerland a month or so ago. He was rich, but always rode on street cars. He followed baseball scores carefully, but never attended a big league game. He gave fortunes away, but often saven uncancelled stamped envelopes and readdressed them. If one did not return a borrowed book, he would call for it.

AND Irvin Cobb tells of the little Hebrew plugging along in an asthmatic flivver who was passed on the roadside by a Rolls that came up from behind like a blue streak. The Rolls stopped for 20 minutes a little further on and the flivver owner drew up, torn, bleeding and bruised.

"It was your fault," he screamed "You went by so fast I thought I had stopped and got out to pick wildflowers."

MUSIC

Phyllis Kraeuter Plays

PHYLLIS KRAEUTER, winner of the Schubert Memorial Prize and a young American cellist of considerable talent, was the soloist at Sunday afternoon's popular concert given by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. She played the Saint-Saens concerto and was enthusiastically cheered by what may be considered a large crowd for Sunday afternoons.

Miss Kraeuter has a large tone and plays with facility, but she lacked that aristocratic style without which Saint-Saens is just nothing at all. Her playing yesterday also suffered from faulty intonation. After being brought back for an encore, she played a mazurka by Popper.

The concert was also the last of the season to be played under the direction of E. Fernandez Arbos. Starting with Nicolai's "Merry Wives of Windsor," the Spanish conductor presented, in the order given, Bizet's "L'Arlesienne" suite, two selections by Percy Grainger, Handel's "Largo" and Liszt's "Second Hungarian Rhapsody."

The Nicolai overture went particularly well. The audience demanded repetitions of Grainger's "Shepherd's Hey" and Handel's "Largo" and at the conclusion of the Liszt Rhapsody made a demonstration of approval that amounted to an ovation for Arbos.

'JADE GOD,' THRILLER, OPENS AT AMERICAN

Cleverly Contrived Mystery Melodrama Moves Swiftly to Startling Climax.

Perkins	Leslie Bingham
John Millicent	Roland Dexter
Jack Derrick	Colin Hunter
Edith Derrick	Molly Hicks
Mrs. Thursby	Eleanor Audley
John Martin	H. H. McCollum
Jean Millicent	Lyle Stackpole
Inspector Burke	Stanley Harrison
Blunt	Leslie King
Peters	George C. Mantell

The action takes place in the Study, Beech Lodge, Bamberly, Sussex, England.

A PALL of evil descended on the American Theater last evening, a blanket of horror, thick as haggis and almost as impenetrable, with the presentation of the new mystery thriller, "The Jade God." The simple one-room set on the stage was not merely a haunted chamber, it was a repository, a focus, of all things wicked. There were horrendous portents in the very air. It was here, as the curtain rose, that John Millicent, without an enemy in the world, was found done to death, his throat gashed by a Malay kris, and his curio of the Far East, a jade Buddha of strange fascinating power, missing.

Time passes. There comes to the scene a young man, Jack Derrick, intent on solving the enigma of the Buddha's curse to lift it from his beloved, Jean Millicent, daughter of the murdered man. Strange and violent things happen. Snaky arms reach out from behind screens and curtains. A knife chunks solidly into a door alongside the hero's head. The lights go out. Shots. . . . outcry . . . pandemonium!

"The Jade God" is highly effective theater, a shrewdly contrived melodrama with all the old thrills of its kind and one or two new ones. Hokum or not, the climax is undeniably hair-raising.

The company is competent, the low comedy touches of Stanley Harrison as Inspector Burke being especially commendable. When the murderer at length has been ferreted out and shot down, it is Inspector Burke who declaims: "This is what comes of not eating your spinach."

The reviewer, by special request, forbears to tell how this happy consummation is arrived at. If you really want to find out whether the sepulchral-voiced gardener at last flips off his red whiskers and announces that he is the Jade God, you'll have to go to the theater.

Farm Board did, immediately after the stock market collapse, establish a loan value on wheat. This action, fixing a minimum amount which farmers could borrow from the board on wheat they had in storage, prevented the price from falling lower.

Eligible Co-Operatives.

The co-operatives eligible to membership in the grain corporation include wheat pools, terminal exchanges, farmers' elevator associations, and others. But since they are in such a variety of forms and sizes, it was determined to establish a set of large regional co-operatives which would be subsidiary to the grain corporation. The board warned farmers that they must be prepared to abandon many of their existing co-operatives and join the regional co-operatives in order to get the full benefit of the board's operations. The regionals also will be farmer-owned and farmer-controlled.

Th first regional co-operative to be established is the Northwest Grain Co-operative. Its headquarters probably will be at Minneapolis and it will serve North and South Dakota and Wisconsin. It is intended that all existing co-operatives in that area will be absorbed by the regional co-operative. Some have declined to be absorbed. They will be allowed membership in the National Grain Corporation and may obtain loans on stored grain, but cannot obtain money for the construction of physical facilities, because that would put them into competition with the official regional co-operative.

Regional co-operatives will go into business on a thorough scale. They will build warehouses and elevators and construct terminals. They will be allowed to borrow up to 80 per cent of the construction cost of these facilities from the farm board. At present, grain from the interior is shipped to Minneapolis, graded, processed, made into feeds and often shipped back to its source, the farmers paying the freight both ways. The regionals will establish all these facilities in the heart of the wheat country and operate them.

The driving force and the planning intelligence back of this rapidly-growing organization is Legge. The former industrial magnate has not been deterred by the fact that his plan bears a striking resemblance to the program of the old non-partisan league, so often and vehemently denounced as "state socialism."

Commission Men in Action.

When the commission men and the grain exchanges discovered what was in the wind, they went into action. Many of the existing farmers' co-operatives have been borrowing money from the commission houses for years. It is estimated that a total of $32,000,000 in loans of that character is outstanding. Many of the cooperatives began to receive letters, stating that if they joined the National Grain Corporation their present loans would be foreclosed. Legge countered instantly by letting it be known that the farm board would provide the money to pay the loans of all those who were being pressed. The commission men stopped threatening and began to plead.

Officers of the farmers' co-operatives have been bombarded with letters from the commission houses with which they have dealt in the past, beseeching them to stay out of the National Grain Corporation. They are being warned against becoming part of a system which "puts the Government into business." They are told that dealing with the Government will involve endless "red tape" and that, once they abandon their own co-operatives and join the Government system, they will be "at the mercy of the Washington bureaucrats." They also have been reminded of "past favors."

Then the commission men attacked from the other end by attempting to cut the ground from under the Farm Board—and especially from under Chairman Legge—in Washington. Last week a group including Fred B. Wells, B. H. Woodworth, Frank L. Carey, John H. MacMillan and R. W. Goodel, Minneapolis, and Frank H. Crowell, Kansas City, rushed to Washington, ostensibly to attend a meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Actually, it was learned, they besieged the White House and the Farm Board, protesting against the board's policies. Among those to whom they carried their appeals were George Akerson and Walter Newton, both secretaries to the President and both former residents of Minnesota.

Chairman Legge is a very positive character. Opposition has merely deepened his determination to go ahead with his plan. He has made no secret of his feelings over the effort to cut the ground under his feet here, and it is almost certain that any effort by the administration to make him "soft pedal" would bring his resignation. Thus far, it should be added, there is no indication that President Hoover intends to interfere with the board's policies.

Farmers were urged in the Senate today by Senator Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, to rally to support of the Farm Board in its "warfare" with the commission grain dealers, whom he charged with fighting the program for a farmer-owned and controlled marketing agency.

The North Dakotan, in supporting the position of Chairman Legge of the Farm Board, said that "with this warfare comes the real test for the Hoover administration."

"It will undoubtedly be a war of propaganda," he declared, "in which political influence, sabotage, fear, conspiracy, boycott and threats will be resorted to."

ORDERED TO PAY INCOME TAX

Lawyers Hired by Cities for Special Duties Not Exempt.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Attorneys employed by states or municipalities for special work, who are not regularly appointed as officers or employes of the State or municipality, were declared by the Supreme Court today to be subject to Federal taxes on the income received from such employment. The decision of the lower court against the Government was reversed.

The case decided is that of W. J. Howard who had been employed for special work by the cities of Houston, Navasota and Victoria, Tex., but it will also control a case brought against Senator Reed (Rep.), Pennsylvania, involving compensation he received from the State for special work. Reed was employed in connection with the levying of inheritance taxes by Pennsylvania on the estates of Henry Frick and others.

Are YOU Getting YOUR MONEY'S WORTH In Entertainment ?

The American people pay more generously for entertainment than any nation on earth. Their generosity has enriched the motion picture industry.

Spoken dialog has come to replace the subtitle of the silent picture. Tagging along with the talkie comes Mechanical Music—an economy.

Real Music is being ordered out of many theatres in favor of this new comer, who never dared a theatrical appearance until he gained the protection of the Talking Picture's novelty and the magic word "Synchronized." Now synchronization with a picture does not give Mechanical Music the quality of Real Music.

A very great many theatre-goers will answer:

"NO!"

Then why should the aforementioned American people, who pay so generously for entertainment, be required to take less for their money than they were wont to get?

Those who have seen this new Kelvinator within the past few weeks have marveled at the efficiency with which the new super-automatic Kelvinators perform three distinct tasks of refrigeration, without regulation or adjustment of any kind.

Entirely apart from the balanced operating ease of the new Kelvinators, the new beauty and utility of Kelvinator cabinets are coming in for a great share of public enthusiasm.

isted in, and the United States is unwilling to forego its objection, the United States can withdraw immediately from the Court 'without any imputation of unfriendliness or unwillingness to co-operate generally for peace or good will.'

"A mere recital of these precautions makes it apparent how remote the contingency is that the United States will ever be constrained to exercise its right of withdrawal. It may be suggested here that this contingency of withdrawal might place the United States in an awkward or embarrassing position, and thus submit it to moral pressure to permit a question to which it really objects. The real hazard is more likely to be the other way.

"The influence of the United States is so great, the effect of its mere suggestion of withdrawal would be so embarrassing to the other nations, that there is far more likelihood of their submitting to an ill-founded objection on our part than of their forcing us to withdraw when we really had a legitimate reason for opposition to a question.

Consideration for U. S.

"If any proof on this point were needed, the extreme consideration which has been shown in this protocol to the objections of the United States and the promptness and unanimity with which the protocol for our adherence to the Court has already been signed by practically all of the nations of the world who are members of the Court, would supply it.

"It seems to me, therefore, that the dangers which seemed to inhere in the rendering of advisory opinions by the court at the time the question was last presented to this Government in 1926 have now been entirely removed, both by the action of the court itself and by the provisions of these new protocols.

"The objections which caused the Senate reservations have been met. Advisory opinions can no longer be a matter of secret procedure but must follow the forms and receive the safeguards of all formal court proceedings in contentious cases. Whenever a dispute to which we are a party is involved, no opinion on that dispute can be rendered unless we consent.

"When we claim an interest, although no dispute exists, we can, if we so desire, bring our great influence to bear against the rendering of such an opinion with the same legal standing as if we were a member of the council or the assembly of the League of Nations; and, in the extremely unlikely event of our being unable to persuade the majority of the council or the assembly that our interest is real and that the request for the opinion should not proceed, we may withdraw from membership in the Court without any imputation of unfriendliness. . . .

Work for Future.

"In the great future work of transforming the civilization of this world from a basis of war and force to one of peace founded upon justice, we today stand at the threshold. But it is already evident that in this work the World Court is destined to perform a most fruitful and important part. It is also clear that such an agency is more closely in line with the traditions and habit of thought of America, than of any other nation.

"And finally it is now possible for us to assist in the support and development of this judicial agent without in the slightest degree jeopardizing our traditional policy as a Government of not interfering or entangling ourselves in the political policies of foreign states or of relinquishing our traditional attitude as a Government toward purely American questions with which we are concerned.

"Is there any reason why on such terms our Government should not join in the support, moral and financial, of such a Court, or why it should not lend its efforts towards the selection of judges who will act in this great work in accordance with the noble traditions of the American judiciary? Or why our Government's great power should not be placed in a position where it can influence for good or check against evil in the future development of the Court's charter and work? I think not."

appointed by Carranza to study the operation of munition factories in this country.

The President-elect said that Dwight W. Morrow, United States Ambassador to Mexico, who passed through St. Louis yesterday on the way to his home at Englewood, N. J., accompanied by his family, had played a "tremendous role" in establishing cordial relations between the two governments. His personality, the visitor said, "has endeared him to all of us."

Election of Ortiz Rubio came after a vigorous campaign, in the course of which he spoke in every important city in Mexico and visited many of the isolated rural districts. Jose Vasconcelos, the defeated candidate, who is now in this country, has charged that the Revolutionary party had taken possession of the polling booths, denying his adherents the ballot.

Denies Opponent's Charge.

"Fortunately, every inhabitant of Mexico is a witness that everyone had every opportunity to vote," the President-elect commented, "and we intend to see that such a condition prevails always. Soldiers were at the booths, but they served exactly the same purpose as policemen do in your country—to preserve order and guarantee to each citizen the right to vote without molestation. They did their duty and there was less disorder than in any previous election.

"Mexico is no longer a land of warfare. I hope and believe that we have entered an era of stabilized government, due largely to the untiring and patriotic efforts of my predecessors in office.

"And I want the people of the United States to visit Mexico," its new President concluded, "for when they see our country and realize how cordial a welcome is in store for them, they will love it almost as much as we do."

Besides the attache from the Mexican Embassy, the President-elect's party includes Mrs. Rubio, Gen. and Mrs. Manuel Perez Trevino, Col. E. Hernandes Chisaro, F. De La Garza, personal friends, secretaries and aides,

For Coughs Due To Colds, Mix This at Home

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of bad coughs due to colds, giving prompt relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of incipient bronchial coughs and other severe coughs due to colds.

Eldon Moran, 72-year-old proprietor of a print shop and music school at 517 Summit avenue, Webster Groves, is being held as the leader of a group which counterfeited commutation tickets of the Public Service Co., issued to the public at 90 cents for a 12-ride ticket.

Held as one of his distributing agents is a Manchester line conductor, Lewis Emory, 42, 6752 Garner avenue, who, according to police, made admissions implicating two other conductors and a motorman who will be questioned.

Six weeks ago the street car company complained to police it was being defrauded through ticket counterfeiting. Suspicion was directed toward Emory, and shortly before midnight Saturday he was trailed by police to the print shop where he and Moran were arrested. Three men and a woman who work there also were taken into custody, but were not implicated. A plate and paper for printing the tickets were seized as evidence.

Omission from the counterfeit tickets of the signature of S. W. Greenland, vice president and general manager of the Public Service Co., led to the arrests. A sharp-eyed conductor to whom a woman presented a counterfeit detected the omission. Questioning her, he learned she had bought the ticket from a conductor on the Manchester line at a certain time. He turned this information and the counterfeit into the company's main offices for the use of the investigators.

Moran, who gave his occupation as teacher, denied the counterfeiting was on a large scale. He said he was to receive 10 cents for each ticket sold. Emory was to get 30 cents for his distribution service, and 50 cents was to be retained by the street car conductor who sold the counterfeits to car riders at the regular price of 90 cents.

Moran said he printed 490 tickets for Emory Nov. 29, and that, last Wednesday, Emory paid him $9, having disposed of 90 tickets, and placed an order for 500 more to be delivered Sunday morning. Not satisfied with his $9 share, Moran did not fill the second order.

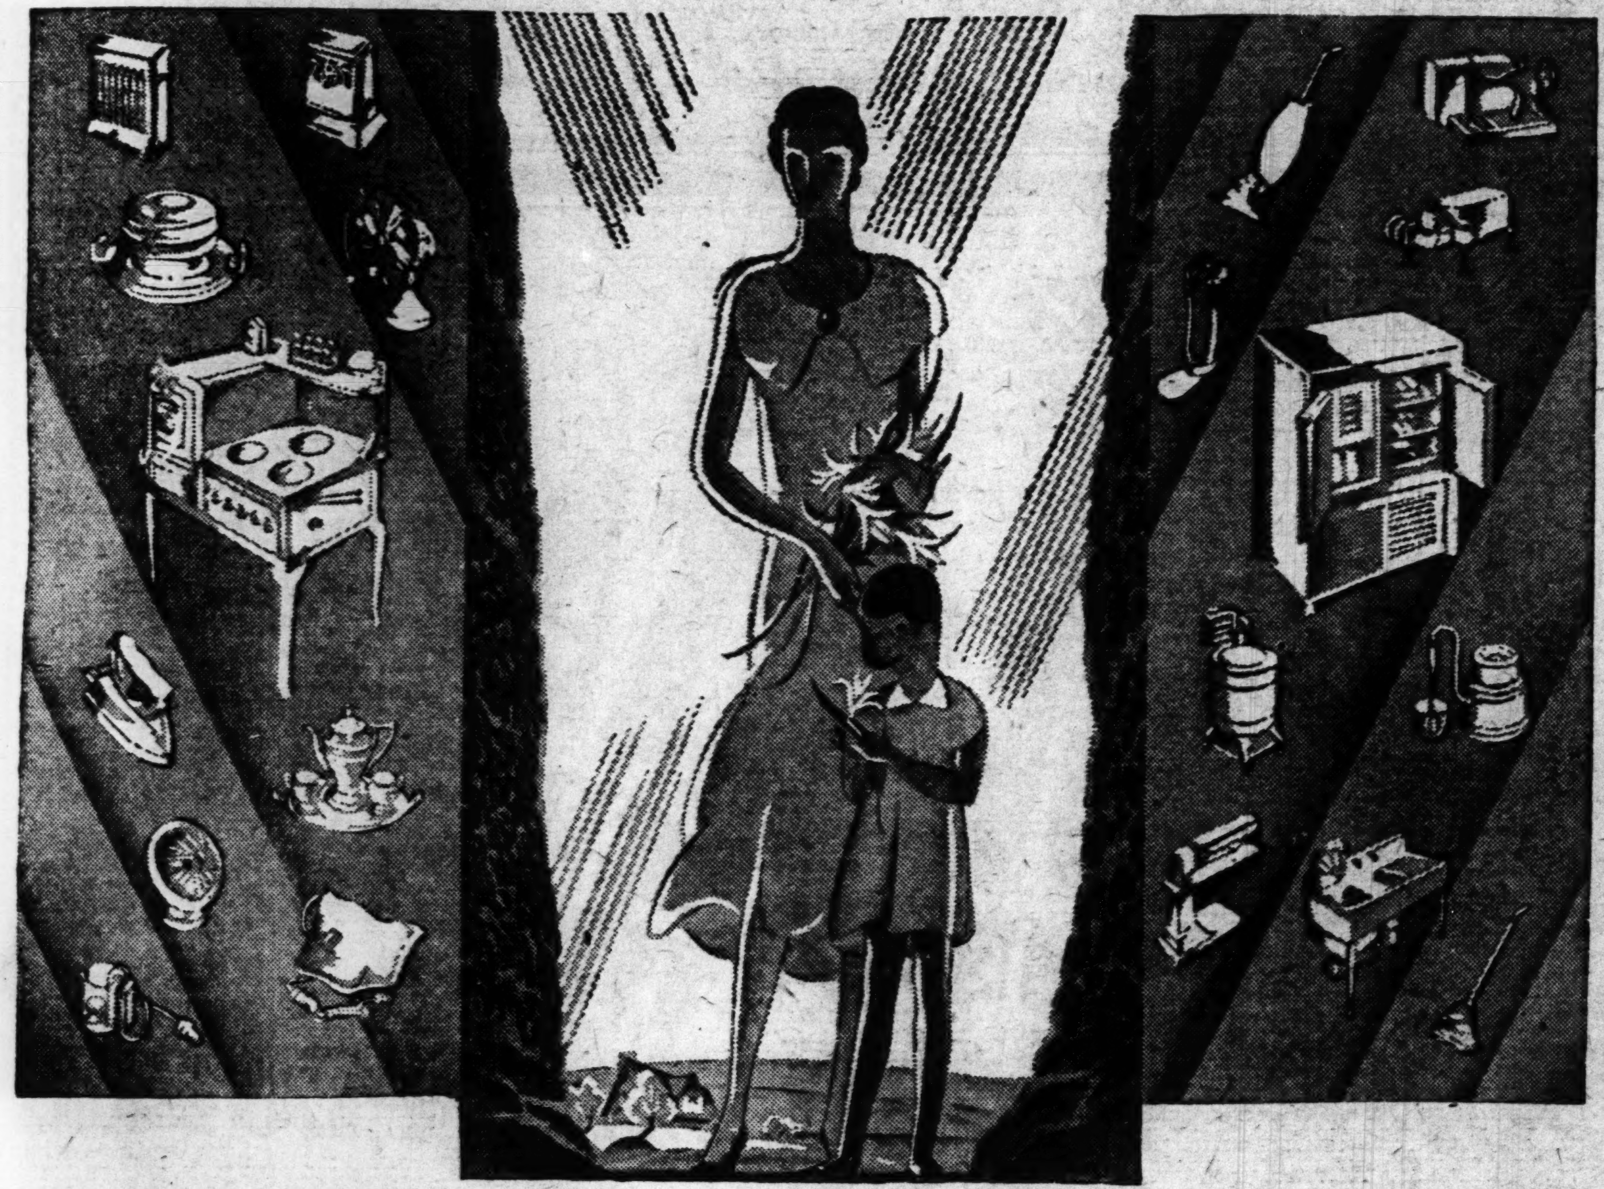
Emory said the counterfeiting scheme was broached to him by a car rider who showed him some counterfeits and agreed to supply him. Later he got in touch with Moran. Police were informed Emory had distributed tickets to 21 conductors, but he implicated only three conductors and a motorman.

HURLEY CONFIRMED BY SENATE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The Senate today confirmed the nomination of Patrick J. Hurley of Oklahoma to be Secretary of War.

Senator Reed, Pennsylvania, called up Hurley's nomination as soon as it reached the Senate and asked that it be acted on at once, as the nominee already had been considered and confirmed as Assistant Secretary. There was no objection and the appointment was confirmed without a word of discussion.

ELECTRICITY IS CHEAP IN ST. LOUIS



This new freedom—electricity's gift to women

Imagine a home with servants at every hand—eager servants to do all the tedious tasks, willing servants to keep everything spick and span—to bring you new hours of freedom and happiness throughout the year.

Such luxury need not be left to the land of dreams. You can have it for yourself just as thouands of others have it...by letting electricity be your servant. Electrical appliances can now perform practically every chore in the house—and their cost is within reach of even modest incomes.

Other thousands are discovering daily how convenient it is to let electricity wash the dishes, scrub and wax the floors, do the sewing, whip up dainty desserts, even keep time. These and dozens of other tasks electricity performs at a trifling cost.

In the average St. Louis home, when you have used enough electricity to cheerfully light your rooms, then—automatically—all that you use in addition you pay for at the WHOLESALE rate—2½ cents a Kilowatt hour. A kilowatt hour will run your washing machine 5 hours, your vacuum cleaner 6 hours, your electric sewing machine 17 hours.

CHRISTMAS PARTY SOLICITATION WILL START WEDNESDAY

Post-Dispatch Festival Committee Will Meet Tomorrow to Outline Final Instructions.

The Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Committee of 30 prominent citizens wil lgather at 12:15 o'clock tomorrow in Hotel Jefferson for its last meeting before the corps of young women distributors starts out Wednesday with lists for collection of funds for the thirtieth annual children's treat Christmas morning.

The extent to which St. Louis gives its nickels, dimes and quarters will measure the success of the 1929 effort of the Festival Committee to make sure that no child in St. Louis need go without experiencing the joy of Christmas cheer.

With the abandonment of basket distribution the committe is centering all of its efforts on the party for children in the Coliseum. Nothing is to be spared to make it the occasion of the year in the lives of 10,000 needy boys and girls under 14 years old—10,000 because that is all the Coliseum will accommodate.

It is the hope of the business and civic leaders who make up the Festival Committee that the plans for the treat will not have to be reduced in any degree owing to a failure on the part of those who have to share at Christmas time with their less fortunate fellow-citizens.

As always has been the practice, the Post-Dispatch, besides its contribution to the fund, will pay all the expenses of administrating the Festival. Thus each contributor is assured that his or her donation no matter how small or how large will be devoted entirely to the entertainment of youngsters around the Coliseum tree. While the bulk of the fund is made up of small amounts given by people who can not give large donations, contributions of all sizes are welcome.

Acknowledgement of all contributions will be made in the columns of the Post-Dispatch.

The Festival office, 201 Post-Dispatch Building, has been a busy place for the past three weeks. Eighteen thousand lists have been written and the work organized. For the next weeks the Festival's center of industry will be the List Headquarters, 204 Paul Brown Building, out of which will work the 50 young women who are to canvass the city for the many small contributions which for well over a quarter century have made possible this yearly act of Christmas good will.

Details of Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Plans

THE Thirtieth Annual Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival for St. Louis' needy children will be held in the Coliseum the morning of Christmas Day.

All the efforts of the committee in charge will be centered on the entertainment of 10,000 boys and girls 14 years old and under.

Owing to the limited number of seats only those holding tickets will be admitted. Notice will be given later of the method of ticket distribution.

No baskets will be distributed this year. The committee made this decision because of the increase in organizations distributing baskets; because of the inability of social agencies, which are unusually busy at this time of the year, to co-operate in the matter; and because of the great difficulty of independently investigating the applications of thousands of persons in the short time before Christmas.

The social agencies state they are making plans for the Christmas good cheer of the families already under their care, but that they will make no general distribution of Christmas baskets.

As a result the Post-Dispatch will be able to concentrate on the party for children, and thus make the Festival, as originally intended, an act of Christmas hospitality.

PUBLIC MEETINGS AND ENTERTAINMENTS

The annual concert and entertainment of the Americanization Center of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be given tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the Wednesday Club, Taylor avenue and Westminster place. The Americanization Center, 1012 North Seventeenth street, instructs foreign mothers and children in citizenship and English.

R. S. Glasgow, associate professor of electrical engineering at Washington University, will give an illustrated lecture on "Radio Beacons for Aerial Navigation" Thursday night at 8:15 o'clock following a dinner of the Engineers' Club at 4359 Lindell boulevard.

"A Visit to the Musical Shrines of Europe" will be the subject of an address by Mrs. Jasper Blackburn of Webster Groves at a meeting of the Woman's Council at Union Avenue Christian Church at 11 a. m. Thursday.

The Manufacturers and Merchants' Association of St. Louis will hold its annual dinner meeting and election of officers tomrrow evening at 6:30 o'clock at Hotel Statler. William Frew Long, general manager of the American Plan Association of Cleveland, will speak on "This Problem of Industrial Relations," and Harry Scullin, president of the Scullin Steel Co., will discuss "Industrial Preparedness."

CAMERONS AND AL K. HALL LEAD IN LAUGHS AT ST. LOUIS

The St. Louis Theater goes comedy this week with the Four Camerons (who now are five), Al K. Hall and Joe Mendi, the educated ape. The Camerons—Pop, Dave, Mom and daughter and daughter's husband—afford about half an hour of the nearest thing to hysterics showgoers are ever likely to get. The very kernel of nuttiness, there is absolutely no sense to anything they do.

An outstanding star is Rita Burgess Gould, a singer of radio reknown, who carries over her personality from the ether medium to the test of face-to-face contact. She won her audience completely yesterday, scoring the greatest personal hit of the bill. Then in a thank-you speech she paid herself a few compliments—it was, she said, a "quality" audience for appreciating her efforts—and, the day being Sunday, she read the audience a Bible text and a Sunday school lesson.

Detroit Restaurant Manager Slain.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Dec. 9.—One man was under arrest and a second is being sought in connection with the killing some time yesterday of Prentice W. Boyd, manager of a restaurant. Chris Hill, a dishwasher, who found Boyd's body in the basement of the restaurant at 11 p. m., was ordered held. The man sought is said to be a former employe of the restaurant who left the place hurriedly last night. Police believe robbery may have been the motive, although money in Boyd's clothing and in the office safe was not disturbed.

TEMPTING PANNED OYSTERS

This Dish Will Fit Into the Sunday Night Supper Menu.

Allow six or eight large oysters to each serving. Pick over the oysters to remove any bits of shell, and drain off most of the juice, leaving about one-half cup for two dozen oysters.

Put the oysters and juice in a shallow saucepan with three tablespoons butter, one teaspoon salt, a few drops Worcestershire sauce and a little white pepper.

Melt one tablespon butter, add three tablespoons minced celery and cook slowly for five minutes, then add to the oysters. Heat these for eight minutes over a slow fire.

Meanwhile make four slices of toast and arrange them on hot plates. Put six oysters on each slice of toast, pour some of the liquid over the toast, sprinkle with paprika or minced parsley and serve as soon as possible.

INTRIGUING DESSERT FOR COMPANY DINNER

Quite Fancy Looking but Really a Simple Dish Made With Apples.

Apples at their best are liked by everybody. Because they are fruit they make one of the best types of desserts and should be served often.

People get used to eating apples baked or stewed or as apple sauce and often forget that there are a number of other ways in which they may be cooked.

Apples a la creole are really stewed apples that are served with chopped nuts and whipped cream so that they look like a very professional dish. It is the way in which the apples are stewed that makes them look so pretty. Here is the recipe:

It is best to make it either the day before it is to be served or in the morning for dinner, for the apples must be thoroughly chilled after they are cooked.

For six servings take six firm, read apples, two cups sugar, a few whole cloves, one-half pint of heavy cream, one-half cup chopped pecan nuts or walnuts and some maple syrup, soft maple sugar or orange marmalade. A deep saucepan will be needed to cook the apples in.

Apples a La Creole.

Select six medium-sized, firm, red apples and core and peel them, leaving the apples whole. An apple corer will remove the cores and leave a nice round hole through the apple. Peel the skin off as thinly as possible, using a sharp knife or a vegetable peeler.

Put two cups of granulated sugar in the top of a double boiler or any deep saucepan, add one and one-half cups boiling water and two or three whole cloves or a thin strip of lemon peel. Boil for six minutes, then drop in as many apples as the pan will hold. Each apple must be covered with the sugar syrup. Cover the pan and cook very slowly for 15 minutes or until the apples are tender and transparent.

If cooked too fast the apples will break apart instead of keeping whole. If impossible to get all the apples in the pan at one time, cook as many as possible, then remove them from the pan and put the rest in. Sometimes a little red or green coloring may be added to the sugar syrup to color it and to color the apples as they cook.

When the apples are tender, lift them carefully to a shallow platter—a skimmer, or a flat spoon with holes in it, is best to use for this purpose, as the syrup will drain off as the apples are lifted.

When the apples are all cooked put them aside to cool, and when cold fill the centers with chopped nuts that have been mixed with maple syrup, soft maple sugar or orange marmalade to make them stick together. Arrange the filled apples on dessert plates or in a pretty serving dish, and pour in any syrup that was left over from cooking them.

Next put the cream in a deep bowl and whip with an egg-beater until it is stiff enough to form swirls around the egg-beater. Add three tablespoons of powdered sugar and one-half teaspoon vanilla extract and beat again just to mix.

Put a large spoonful of the cream over each apple and sprinkle with a few chopped nuts. A Maraschino cherry may be used on top of the cream for garnish, or a small cube of raspberry jelly is also delicious to look at and to eat.

PRUNES INCLUDED IN LIST OF VALUABLE FOODS

Appropriate to Serve at Any Course of a Family or Informal Meal.

As prunes are dried fruit they must be soaked in cold water sufficiently long to replace the moisture that has been extracted when they are dried.

Then the food value of the prunes will be the same as when it was fresh.

Several hours will be required for soaking them. If they are thoroughly washed before they are soaked they can be cooked in the water in which they are soaked. In this way no food element is lost.

Cook the fruit slowly—do not boil it rapidly as it not only destroys part of the flavor, but often splits the skins and causes the fruit to lose its shape.

Prunes are graded according to the number to the pound. The largest ones weigh about 30 to the pound, while the smallest ones average 130 to the pound.

SARDINE SANDWICHES

Dainty Tidbits For Lunch Or Sunday Night Supper.

Take equal quantities of egg yolks and sardines, the latter drained, skinned and boned.

Season with salt, cayenne pepper and mustard.

Rub until smooth and add lemon juice or olive oil to make a paste.

Boiled Leg of Mutton.

Wipe meat with a clean, damp cloth. Put in a kettle and cover with boiling water. Cover the kettle and bring quickly to the boiling point. Boil 10 minutes and skim. Simmer slowly until tender. When half done add salt. Serve with caper sauce.

MINCE PIE IS GOOD IN WINTER TIME

Prepared Mince Meat or the Home-made Article Equally Good.

The only drawback about mince pie is that it is so hearty that if served at the family board, the chances are, the guests ate so plentifully of the earlier courses of the meal, that by the time the mince pie is brought in, their appetites are so satiated with good things, there is very little desire for a hearty dessert like pie.

However, a hot mince pie is a dessert de luxe. Mince pies are readily made as most delicious mince meat may now be purchased in packages at the grocery stores already to be put into the pastry shells and popped into the waiting oven.

Many family cooks still adhere to the custom handed down by grandmother, and make their own supply of mince meat. This recipe for mince meat will be found very excellent.

The ingredients given will make quite a large quantity of mince meat which may be put in sterilized jars and put away for use throughout the winter or else in fancy jars and sent as Christmas gifts to friends who will appreciate a gift of the kind.

Take four pounds of raisins, two pounds currants, two pounds citron, one whole orange, one whole lemon, one and one-half peck apples, two cups sweet cider, one cup molasses, one cup water, six pounds cooked meat, two pounds suet, four pounds brown sugar, two tablespoons allspice, two tablespoons mace, one tablespoon cloves, four tablespoons cinnamon and three tablespoons salt.

Chop fruits very fine. Combine with liquids, chopped meat and suet. Add brown sugar and spices; stir well and place over a slow fire. Cook until soft, about one hour. Seal in sterilized jars.

In making mince pie it is well to use three cups of mince meat to each pie.

If the filling seems dry, add a little grape or orange juice. Put the mince meat filling into an unbaked pastry shell and cover with a thin top crust. Bake in a hot oven until top crust is nicely browned.

Mince pie should always be served either hot or at least warm. Pies may be baked either one or two days before it is intended to serve them. When wanted for use put in a warm oven and reheat.

The demand of the times, being for something different, meringue mince pie has come into the lime light.

Fill an unbaked pastry shell with the mince meat and bake for 20 minutes. Then remove pie from oven and cover with a meringue flavored with orange juice. Return pie to oven and brown well.

EXPLANATION OF REASON FOR BEATING FUDGE

Few Persons Know the Why or the Wherefore of the Process.

In making fondants or fudges, a finer grained product will result if the candy is taken from the stove and allowed to cool before beating.

They should be cooled to the point that when the hand is held on the candy, it only feels lukewarm to the touch.

How Long to Beat.

When the beating is started, a well-cooled candy mixture is very stiff or viscous and has a glossy appearance. As beating continues, however, it gradually grows opaque, then lighter in color and finally, quite suddenly, in fact it softens.

Furthermore, the temperature changes, the candy grows considerably warmer just as the softening occurs.

When all the sugar has crystallized out of the candy solution, no more heat is given off, and the mixture begins to cool and stiffen. It is at this stage that one should stop beating and turn the candy out.

ALL BOYS AND GIRLS ENJOY MAKING CANDY

A Lesson in Candy Making for Some Rainy Saturday Afternoon.

Candy is made mostly of sugar, chocolate, molasses, syrup, honey, nuts, etc., are added to increase the flavor and food value. Sugar and candy, when used in moderation, have a very important place in the dietary, for they supply energy in the quickest possible way.

Eaten between meals or in very large quantities, they spoil the appetite for other important foods, such as vegetables, bread, meat, etc., upset the digestion and cause a lot of trouble. Home-made candy is pure and wholesome, and is fun to make.

The simplest kinds of candy are best to try. The lesson is for nut crisp and fruit balls. Any kind of nuts may be used for the nut crisp—chopped peanuts, walnuts, hickory nuts, pecans or popcorn.

Nut Candy.

Put two cups of brown sugar in a deep saucepan with one tablespoon of butter, two tablespoons of corn syrup or molasses and two-thirds cups of hot water.

Stir this over a slow fire until the sugar is dissolved and the mixture begins to boil. Then let cook without stirring for 10 minutes. Be careful the mixture does not boil over and if there is danger of its burning stir it very carefully once or twice.

At the end of 8 or 10 minutes, dip a spoon into the liquid and drop a little of it into a cup of cold water. If it forms a crisp or hard ball, the candy is done, and remove it at once from the fire.

While the candy is cooking, butter a shallow pan—a layer cake pan is good—and cover the bottom of it with chopped nuts. Pour the cooked candy over the nuts as quickly as possible. If necessary smooth it out with a knife or the back of a wooden spoon, but be very careful not to touch it with the fingers for there is nothing much that burns worse than hot sugar.

Let stand until firm, then mark with a knife into squares or bars and let stand until cold and hard. Turn the pan upside down, shake to remove the candy, and then break or cut in pieces along the marked lines.

Fill the candy pan with hot water and let it stand a few minutes before washing it. Cold water will only harden it so that you will have trouble in washing it, but hot water will dissolve the candy that sticks to the sides and bottom of the pan.

Fruit Balls.

The fruit balls are made by putting one package of dates (with the pits removed), one cup of raisins, one-half cup nuts or peanut butter all through the meat chopper. Put the nuts through last as they are the driest. If peanut butter is used, do not try to chop it, but simply mix it with the chopped dates and raisins. Add the juice of half an orange to the chopped fruit and mix thoroughly with the fingers or a wooden spoon and then form into small balls and roll in powdered sugar.

By G. W. Daley

Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—With left-hand hitters commanding no price at all, with right-hand pitchers in frenzied demand and an active move in experienced infielders who can hit, the ivory market for 1929-30 will open today with the arrival of the first of the big and little baseball men for the annual meetings.

There is every indication of a busy time in the sale, resale and bartering of ivory, young and old, and the lobbies of the Commodore and Biltmore probably will resound to many a startling rumor. Some of the major leaguers got together at the minor league meetings at Chattanooga which closed Friday. They will endeavor to complete what they began there.

The New York Giants are in the market for a right-hand pitcher of experience and a second baseman (also of experience). John McGraw has plenty of right-hand pitchers of no great experience and second basemen in the same category. What he needs to round out a real championship team are a couple of men who have been through the mill.

Want Price for Koenig.

The New York Yankees need a right-hand pitcher of experience—or two of them—and not much else. But Edward Barrow, general manager, who returned with Jacob Ruppert, president of the Yankees, after a three weeks' stay in French Lick Springs, winding up with a trip to Chattanooga, denied yesterday that Mark Koenig, the shortstop, would be given up lightly for any of the material other clubs seem willing to pass to the Yanks.

Bob Shawkey, the manager of the Yankees, was approached by several clubs, notably the Chicago White Sox, the Detroit Tigers and the Cleveland Indians, while at Chattanooga on the subject of "What'll you take for Koenig?" but heard nothing which interested him.

Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn Robins will get together with the Brooklyn Board of Directors tomorrow, it is reported, on the question of turning adrift a great right-hand pitcher, Dazzy Vance, if the latter sticks to his determination to ask another $25,000 contract.

The Brooklyn directors can get together on nothing else, but they all apparently agree that Vance's contract needs a revision downward, and if he refuses to consider a bonus contract, then there may be a trade which will interest Flatbush and bring some valuable talent to the Robins.

Washington hears that Goose Goslin, mighty left-hand slugger, has been carefully placed on the market by Clark Griffith, with practically no one hurt in the rush to get him. As said before, left-hand hitters are not in especial demand. What Griffith needs is pitchers.

The two managers in the league who have desirable pitchers, Messrs. Bush of the White Sox and Peckinpaugh of the Cleveland Indians, can get along without any left-hand hitting strength. Bush has Smead Jolly, the star from the Pacific Coast League, and Peck has Bib Falk, not to mention Earl Averill and Dick Porter.

The Chicago Cubs, with the sad lessons of the world series in mind, are looking for left-hand pitchers. Even the Wrigley millions have failed to interest Sidney Weil and Dan Howley, president and manager, respectively, of the Cincinnati Reds, when the name of Jake May is mentioned.

Judge Emil Fuchs of the Boston Braves will be on hand with his new manager, Bill McKechnie, to do some bartering. They got Berger, said to be a very good outfield prospect, from the Coast League as part of the release of Lester Bell to the Cubs.

Sisler on the Market.

The announcement has been made that the Braves have put George Sisler, first baseman and Joe Dugan third baseman, on the market, but as both are 10-year men their value is affected.

The decision of the minor leaguers at their meeting at Chattanooga to keep "hands off" as regards college and high school players caused little excitement among the big leaguers. No one expects the American and National Leagues to follow suit with resolutions denouncing the cradle robbing which has been going on in the last four or five years, or ever since the minors became obstreperous in the matter of the universal draft.

The majors will continue to scout the schools and colleges for star youngsters. These in turn will be sent to the minors for more seasoning, if they need it—the cases of Frank "Boots" Nekola of the Yankees and Johnny Murphy, former Fordhame hurler, now with St. Paul, are apt illustrations.

The minors will get the benefit of the work of these young men while they are gaining experience, but will not be able to demand prices if they make good—which was the reason the majors put in effect their elaborate scouting systems.

Playing Schedule May Be Reduced By Club Officials

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.

THE question of reducing the playing season to 169 or 170 playing days as opposed to the customary 176, will be taken up at each of the major league meetings and the joint session. This reduction would enable the major league to close the seasons on Sept. 28 and finish the world series in the first week of October, avoiding any serious conflict with intercollegiate football.

This would mean that only 24 Saturdays and Sundays would be included in the charts as against the customary 25, but in ordinary years most of the clubs could do with one Sunday fewer.

World Series Rules May Be Changed At Joint Meeting of Two Circuits

There are more indications that the annual joint meeting of the two leagues, over which Commissioner Landis presides, will be full of acrimony and adjectives, with a deal of plain speaking on all sides.

The National League will convene at the Commodore on Tuesday. President John A. Heydler and his club owners are wroth at the American League and its president, Ernest S. Barnard, for two reasons:

1. The declaration of Barnard after the world series that the American League is 20 per cent stronger than the National in playing material.
2. The assertion of the American League, through its president, that there "must" be an earlier closing of the baseball season.

There will be plenty said on these subjects in the privacy of the meeting room at the Commodore on Tuesday.

The claim of the National Leaguers is that Barnard's statement to the newspapers made in September, placed them in a false light before the public—that they really had been in favor of early closing, and that the American League was as much responsible for the 1929 schedule as they were. Also, that Barnard did not make his statement about an early schedule closing until after Heydler had visited him in Chicago and told him the National League has been polled and never again would vote for a closing date later than the last Sunday in September.

May Change World Series Rules.

Heydler has replied to the assertion of Barnard regarding the comparative strength of two leagues; but it is possible that the National Leaguers will issue a challenge to the American League to agree to a change in the world series rules which will insure a better and more convincing test of league supremacy.

These are not the only matters that will call forth caustic language. Some of the members of the American League, notably Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, and Philip De C. Ball, owner of the St. Louis Browns, have been nursing a grievance against Commissioner Landis since he declared a squad of players free agents, last spring, while the different clubs were in their Southern training grounds. The commissioner found several clubs guilty of the crime of "covering up" promising players for minor league teams, slapped fines on them all and took the players from them.

Griffith and his associates were said to have felt that Landis was getting square with them because they were in the five-club combination which backed up Ban Johnson in the Mays case and bitterly fought the entrance of Landis into baseball. It is reported that there will be much said about the "high-handed" action of the commissioner in "crippling" the American League clubs at the A. L. meeting on Wednesday at the Belmont. It may be that an effort will be made in the joint meeting the next day to change the rules regarding "covering up." As this comes in the same category as the "chain store" production of ball players, to which the commissioner is opposed, there is pretty sure to be much, and probably fiery, oratory.

"Most Valuable" Award Ends.

The National League will be informed that the "most valuable player" award, which will be abolished after this year, has been given to Rogers Hornsby of the Chicago Cubs. This carries a prize of $1000 in gold.

Radio broadcasting will also be discussed pro and con.

Washington Will Not Meet Missouri at Football in 1930, Brewer Announces

COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 9.—The University of Missouri and Washington Bears will not meet on the gridiron in 1930, it was announced here today by C. L. Brewer, director of athletics. The failure to arrange a game, Brewer said, was due to scheduling difficulties.

Missouri had indicated to Washington U. officials the Tigers would not consider a game with the Bears except in early October at Columbia. Washington officials, Brewer added, were not willing to send the Bears here for an engagement so early in the season.

Missouri will make several athletic engagements with Iowa University, expelled member of the Big Ten, Brewer said. The Tiger baseball team has already scheduled a game with the Hawkeyes for April 12 and a basketball game likely will be carded for early in January to be played at Iowa City.

Green Bay Wins Pro Grid Title

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—The Green Bay Packers won the National Professional Football championship yesterday by defeating the Chicago Bears, 25 to 0, in their final game of the season. The victory gave the Packers a season record of 12 victories, one tie and no defeats.

The Packers yesterday won easily through great playing by Verne Lewellen, Carl Lidberg, Eddie Kotal and Lavie Delwig. The first touchdown came in the initial period, Lidberg going over on a center play from the 14-yard line. The Packer parade across the Bear goal line reached its height in the third period, when three touchdowns were scored in quick succession. Kotal scored two of them after pretty catches of passes from Lewellen, while Lewellen went over from the two-yard line for the other.

This has been the most successful year for the Packers, who have been coming close but never before gaining the title. The lone tie against them was turned by Frankfort.

NEVERS' PASSING WINS FOR CHICAGO CARDS OVER ORANGE ELEVEN

By the Associated Press.

ORANGE, N. J., Dec. 9. — A clever passing attack engineered by Ernie Nevers carried the Chicago Cardinals to a 26 to 0 victory over Orange here yesterday in a National League football game.

The Chicagoans scored three times in the second quarter and once in the final session. Nevers completed passes to McDonnell and Rooney for the first two touchdowns, and Duke Slater intercepted an Orange pass to tally the third marker. In the final period Nevers crashed over from the three-yard line after a steady advance down the field.

MISSOURI MAY PLAY ST. LOUIS HERE IN 1930

By James M. Gould

There is an excellent chance that St. Louis football fans will not be deprived of their annual look at the Missouri U. eleven despite the fact that the Tigers from Columbia will not clash in 1930 with the Bears of Washington.

Chester L. Brewer, director of athletics, at Missouri, will be in St. Louis Thursday for a conference with St. Louis University officials in the interest of a game which would dedicate the new St. Louis U. Stadium on Oakland avenue. The proposal that the Tigers help the Billikens in this dedicatory game has been made and St. Louis U. authorities are strongly desirous that the game—probably to be played in October—will be scheduled. While Missouri had signed a contract with Washington for a 1930 game, that instrument is naturally nullified by mutual consent because of inability to agree on a date for the game and it is this date—probably Oct. 11—that is likely to be utilized by the Billikens and Tigers.

Though no official announcement has been made from here, it is known that St. Louis U. would welcome a resumption of athletic relations with Missouri. From a financial standpoint, the game would be a fine attraction and, if the Billiken team of 1930 comes up to expectations, a fine artistic one, as well.

ROLLER HOCKEY LEAGUE RACE OPENS WEDNESDAY

Six teams will compete in the Palladium Roller Hockey League, which will open its second season on Wednesday night, with a game between Jimmy Hatton's Blues which finished second last year, and the Weber Candies, a new team, at the Palladium rink. The other teams in the circuit are the 1928-29 champions, the Red Caps; Marquardt's Sextet, Ray Davis' Gladiators and the No Names.

Two games will be played weekly, beginning next Monday night, when the Red Caps oppose Marquardt's Sextet. On Wednesday night, the Gladiators will meet the No Names, completing the first round of games.

Rodney Peters, sponsor of the league, announced today that the off-side rule which prevented forward passing in the scoring area had been abandoned, making for a much faster game as demonstrated Saturday night when the Palladium All-Stars defeated the Red Caps, 1-0, in an exhibition game.

ALBIE BOOTH GAINED 1000 YARDS IN SEASON

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 9.—Swivel-hipped, keen-footed little 145-pound Albie Booth, today ranked as the greatest individual ground-gainer Yale has seen since football emerged from the era of flowing beard and the flying wedge.

Booth, despite the fact that he failed to play an entire game, gained 1000 yards during the season—a modern Yale record. He carried the ball 146 times from scrimmage and gained 620 yards, a trifle over four yards to the try. He handled 18 kicks and ran back 382 yards.

GATE RECEIPTS PLAYED PART IN BANNING IOWA, OFFICIALS SAY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—The University of Iowa, after a 30-year membership in the Western Conference, is casting about for new athletic relationships.

Disappointed because its efforts to correct athletic abuses charged failed to satisfy the faculty committee of the Western Conference, Iowa officials, alumni and students, today faced a new situation, with plans for national conquests, rather than sectional honors. The athletic board of the outlawed institution will meet tomorrow to outline a definite policy.

For the second time in its history, a member has left the Big Ten. Where Iowa was disbarred, effective Jan. 1, 1930, from athletic competition with member schools, Michigan, in 1908, voluntarily withdrew from the group because of dissatisfaction over conference rules. Michigan remained out of the conference for nine years, returning in 1917.

With recovery from the shock of the knockout blow, Iowa officials hastened to tell the world that Iowa could have done nothing more to clear itself, without losing its self respect, and went farther to hint that other reasons than its lapse of athletic purity had considerable to do with the decision of the committee not to restore its former standing.

Dean C. C. Williams, chairman of the Iowa athletic board, said he was convinced a question of "gate receipts" was somewhere responsible for the committee's action. He said the fact that Iowa's stadium seats only 30,000, small in comparison to the capacity of other big nine schools, with the exception of Purdue, influenced the decision.

At a mass meeting yesterday, Burton Ingwerson, and Rollie Williams, coaches of football and basketball, respectively, assured the student body that Iowa will have better schedules than before, and that the school has no reason to be ashamed.

"They will have full support in a program calling for vigorous adherence to the highest educational standards. The university thinks first of its own integrity and its responsibility to the state. It never has, nor will it ever, allow any outside body to dictate to the membership of its staff."

As far as the other members of the conference were concerned, the incident is closed until Iowa shall again petition for reinstatement, and none of the members of the faculty committee or athletic directors had anything to say.

Ten Western Conference schools
Getting along fine;
One went amateur—
And then there were nine.

Among teams mentioned on the Iowa campus as possible football contenders next season were Nebraska, Big Six champions; Missouri, Drake and Notre Dame. The latter's 1930 schedule has been completed, but word from South Bend, Ind., indicated Knute Rockne might consider a 1931 game with the Hawkeyes.

The lure of distance also has been strong and the athletic department was understood to be negotiating with such teams as Army, Southern California, Pitt, Stanford and other East and West coast teams.

"Stowaway" Star For Pasadena in Hawaiian Victory

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 9.

JOE MARQUETTE is one stowaway who made good.

Two weeks ago when the Pasadena Junior College football team sailed for the Hawaiian Islands for a game with the Kamehameha School of Honolulu, Joe, a third string quarterback, was dropped from the squad. He had other ideas, however, so he stowed away.

LITTLE SIGNS AS HEAD COACH AT COLUMBIA

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Definite selection of Lou Little, now at Georgetown, for the position of head football coach at Columbia University was announced today. Little will succeed Charley Crowley, resigned, and sign a three-year contract.

As coach at Georgetown for the last six seasons the former Penn tackle met with outstanding success, his teams having been among the highest scoring combinations in the East. His appointment came as no great surprise as Little's name has been mentioned in connection with the job since Crowley's resignation at the close of the season terminated a five-year tenure.

Iowa campus as possible football contenders next season were Nebraska, Big Six champions; Missouri, Drake and Notre Dame. The latter's 1930 schedule has been completed, but word from South Bend, Ind., indicated Knute Rockne might consider a 1931 game with the Hawkeyes.

The lure of distance also has been strong and the athletic department was understood to be negotiating with such teams as Army, Southern California, Pitt, Stanford and other East and West coast teams.

By James M. Gould

The results of yesterday's games in the St. Louis Soccer League presenting a possible four-team tie after nine weeks of play, they worked out in the next best manner for the competition and today finds two teams tied for first and, just two points behind, the two other teams, also tied. The Millers and Hellrungs now have earned 10 points and the Tablers and Madisons, eight eight. In the first game, yesterday, the Millers were tied by the Madisons, 3—3, while, in the second, the Hellrungs of Tate Brady, scored their fourth consecutive victory by defeating the Tablers, 2—0.

For a soccer standpoint, the first game was the better. Beginning the battle, the Madisons bombarded Goalie Hamm of the Millers with shots while, for seven minutes, the Millers failed to have a single shot at the Madisons' goal. Then, the tide turned and the Millers came strong as the defense of the Madisons faded. After 17 minutes of play, the Millers began scoring, Kickham putting the ball through from scirmmage. With only four minutes of the first period remaining LaBarge of the Madisons was feinted out of his net and Nash easily passed him with a shot.

Madisons Rally to Tie.

After the between-periods rest, the Millers began where they had left off and Mulroy, their outside left, made the score, 3—0 with a really sensational curving shot from his wing-post. Just when it looked as though the Millers would win as they pleased, the Madisons rallied but failed to score until the 15-minute mark when a penalty was called on Tracy of the Millers and Joe McCarthy converted the chance into a goal. This seemed to pep up the Madisons for, after missing a close on a half-minute after the penalty, McCarthy counted a second goal at the 17-minute post. Play became more brisk and several fouls were called on each side. Finally, with only 30 seconds of the game left, Sullivan scored the goal that gave the Madisons a tie.

It was pretty dark when the Tablers and Hellrungs started their affair and a good deal darker when it finished. In fact, one old soccer fan, unable to follow the course of the ball through the gloom, declared it was "the best soccer game I ever heard." The kicks were audible but hardly visible. The two teams battled evenly throughout the first period with neither being able to get a goal.

Bertel Plays Fine Game.

Bertel, the Hellrungs' goalie, had the harder stops to make. Passes as a rule were long and chance-taking in contrast to the short passing that had marked the first game.

Close-guarding marked the second half as the visibility got lower and lower. McAuliffe nearly counted for the Tablers after 14 minutes of play, but Bertel rose to the occasion with a splendid "clear" of a hard shot. It appeared that this game of "midnight soccer" might end in a deadlock but, after 20 minutes of the second period, O'Shaughnessy maneuvered cleverly to score and put the Hellrungs 1 up. Seven minutes later, Eddie Hart took a pass from Jack O'Reilly and made the assurance of victory doubly sure.

1400 Attend Contests.

The attendance is steadily increasing at the games in the league. The competition is closer than ever before and the class of soccer played seems to observers better than it has been in several years. Already, it is believed, the attendance marks of early last season have been surpassed. About 1400 saw the Sunday games.

Announcement has been made that beginning next Sunday the first game will start at 1:30 in order to prevent the possibility of the second game ending in the dark. Yesterday was an unusually smoky day but it was deemed wise to move up the starting time.

A soccer fan stays to the very end, despite cold or darkness. Few at this winter sport leave before the final whistle. Then, there is a concerted rush for home or some other warm place.

The Hellrungs have "come from nowhere" to dispute the lead with the Millers. Tate Brady's teams for several seasons have practically been out of the race at this stage but the troup of youngsters looks good enough to be in the running from now on.

The fans still are waiting for Harry Ratican, once one of the best in the land, to score a goal this season. The veteran may be shy of scoring power right now but is great assistance to the other members of his team and his passes are "to the point" if not into the net.

San Diego Eleven Wins

NINE WESTERN PLAYERS NAMED ON STAR TEAMS

The first all-star football teams of the A. B. C. League indicates that the honors are well divided between the four schools holding membership. Western Military Academy and Country Day School are represented by nine players each while John Burroughs has eight and Principia Academy seven players. According to Lee McCandless, secretary of the league, the final selections were made by the league representatives from each school.

Coaches of the 12 teams were requested to pick their three best line players and two best backfield players. The lists were then submitted to the league officials for consideration. As near as was possible the number of players selected from each school was based on the final standing of the team in each of the three divisions. The judges did not name any captains for the all-star teams.

Principia Academy was awarded four players on the all-star A team on the basis of the splendid record made by the Principia A team which was undefeated, winning all four games from the other three school elevens. The two backfield players on the Principia team, Hunkins, fullback, and Powers, halfback, have played together for three years while Schecter, guard, and Stotlar, end, were selected as linemen on the all-star A team.

Owing to such close competition in the B Division the honors were almost equally divided. John Burroughs, Western and Counrty Day each gained three placse while Principia was awarded two places on the all-star B team. There is one backfield player from each school on the all-star B team.

Western Military Academy gained four places on the All-Star C team. The Cadets' C team was undefeated during the season, winning four games and gaining a tie in two games. Goettling, end; M. Adams, center; Richardson, guard, and Martin, quarterback, were the Western players selected for the All-Star C team.

WOMAN'S INTERSTATE TENPIN TOURNEY TO BE HELD NEXT MARCH

The St. Louis Woman's Inter-State tournament at a meeting held State Bowling tournament will start March 15 next, it was decided at a meeting held by the officers and Executive Committee yesterday. It will be the second annual tournament held by the association. The event was held in May this year but a great many requested an earlier date. Entries for the tournament will close Feb. 22.

The women set an innovation for the tournament by voting to award booster prizes in the doubles and singles as well as in the team event and to allow all visitors to be eligible for the booster prizes as well as local women. The average set for five women teams is 675 or less, for two women teams 270 and 135 for the singles. All averages must be certified by the secretary of the city association and must be for at least 15 games of league play. The averages of the players will be as of Feb. 1. It was voted to place 50 per cent of all moneys received from five women, two women or singles with the above averages in the booster prizes fund. Nine diamond medals will be awarded the champions.

The officers and Executive Committee are: Mrs. M. Kelly Jr., president; Mrs. F. W. Neu, first vice president; Mrs. George T. Meyer, second vice president; Mrs. H. T. Speck, secretary, Mrs. A. W. 12 Games This Week Will Keep High School Basketball Teams Busy

By Harold Tuthill

The local high school basketball season swings into full action this week with 12 games scheduled, including league, interleague and nonleague games.

The interest will be centered on the opening of the City High School League Saturday with the defending champions Soldan, playing Roosevelt and Cleveland meeting Central in the doubleheader at the Roosevelt auditorium.

The strength of the four teams scheduled to begin the campaign is problematical, because the time has been too short since the end of the football season for the coaches to have drilled their squads sufficiently.

Cleveland appears to be in the best shape, with four letter men, but Coach Bert E. Fenenga has scheduled a game with Western Military Academy for Friday night which may prove a drain on the stamina of the squad.

The Cadets demonstrated that they must be considered as a serious contender for the Preparatory League championship when they sent Roosevelt down to a 25-to-13 defeat.

Central Defeated Twice.

Although Central was defeated in its first two practice games, losing to McBride, 23 to 12, and to Belleville, Ill., 24 to 14, on a basis of comparative scores the Midcity team is on a par with Cleveland. Cleveland lost to McBride, 23 to 10.

Coach Alfred Friedli has two men from last year, William Ens and Ralph ("Bud") Yourtee, as a nucleus for a title-contending five. The other members of the five who will start against Cleveland are Marvin Edelman, forward; Nathan Schechter, center, and William Krasner, guard.

Coach Harry White likely will have his full squad available for the first time. Soldan's two lettermen, Captain Dave Cook and Ben Reese, probably will be in the game. Cook was late in getting into practice because of football activity, and Reese was incapacitated early by a hip injury, but is in shape to play this week. The appearance of this pair makes it probable that White will make changes from the lineup that started against East St. Louis, although Passer and Tom Cass may get a chance to start against the Rough Riders.

Beaumont Without Deague Game.

Coach Walther Lorenzen may have some changes to make in his lineup after the loss to Western, but these will not be known until after the squad reports for practice. Lorenzen has 10 men, whom he shifts indiscriminately, so that any combination of these is likely to oppose Soldan.

Beaumont will have another week of practice before Coach Raymond C. Lewis decides upon what players will open the campaign. In its first practice game Beaumont was nosed out by Ferguson, 16 to 14.

Tomorrow Roosevelt will go to Warrenton, Mo., to play there, and Beaumont will be host to Christian Brothers' College in the afternoon. Beaumont will entertain McBride Thursday. Wednesday Soldan opposes University City, in a practice game on the county school's court.

The County League will have three contests Friday night, Ritenour playing at Ferguson, Jennings at Clayton and Normandy at Kirkwood. Wellston meets Country Day at Country Day in a practice game.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN SCHOOLS FORM NEW CONFERENCE

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Dec. 9.—Taking a cue from the "Big Six" of the Missouri Valley Conference, a half dozen of the 12 schools in the Rocky Mountain Conference—which embraces schools in four states—have consolidated their interests to form a circuit within a circuit. The plan was first advanced three years ago, but came to fruition only last week.

A deadlock in the negotiations for the 1930 football schedules Friday was circumvented when the six schools, generally regarded as the leading football institutions of the conference, went into a huddle and emerged with their own schedules, with their open dates to be filled in by other teams.

The "Big Six" is composed of Denver University, University of Colorado, University of Utah, Utah State Agricultural College, Colorado College and Colorado Aggies. Year in and year out, they have given the most impressive displays on the gridiron, but the most enthusiastic of their boosters concede that the remaining six members of the circuit can make a bid for admission to the inner circuit. If that time comes, it was said at the meeting last week, a reorganization may be necessary.

In brief the new schedule provides resumption of relations between Utah and Denver. Colorado, in order to engage Utah late in the season, agreed to play Utah State. Schedules of Colorado College, Colorado Aggies and Utah State are not strikingly different from those of last season.

BEARS TO OPEN BASKET SEASON AGAINST PURDUE

By Henry L. Freund.

Coach Don White will begin a week of intensive training for his Washington basketball squad this afternoon in preparation for the Bears' opening game of the season Saturday night at Lafayette, Ind.

The Washington coach is a former All-Big Ten star from Purdue and learned his basketball under Ward Lambert, present Purdue coach. Purdue won from Washington last season.

Basketball practice has been on at the Hilltop for the past month with a large squad out for practice. Last week White cut his squad to an even dozen and it appears that these 12 men will constitute the squad and attempt to win another Valley championship.

The squad includes four letter men. Capt. Ed "Moose" Meyer heads the list of experienced players. Meyer was the high scorer in the Valley last year. This is his third and last year on the team.

Two Other Veterans.

Kingsley Wientge is also serving his third year on the team. He is a former Soldan High star where he was a teammate of Burt Constance who is playing his second year for Washingtoo. Constance seems certain to be a starter at forward and Wientge appears to have the inside track for a guard post.

The fourth letterman on the squad is Ray Duncan, who learned his basketball at Granite City High. Duncan has the height and build for a successful back guard as he is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 190 pounds.

Several reserves of last season are again with the squad. This group includes Harvey Jablonsky at guard, Bob Houghtlin at forward and Joe Hohn at center. Hohn played regularly the first semester last season at center and Meyer was then shifted to center. Due to ineligibility, Hohn was dropped from the squad the second semester, but he is again eligible.

The powerful freshmen team of last year has reported and it is likely that Don Whitehouse, former star at Highland Park High School in Detroit, will start at a forward berth against Purdue. He is an exceptionally clever floor man and adept at the handling of the ball.

Bert Springer is another sophomore with ability for basketball. As a member of Southeastern High School of Detroit he was the regular center of the schoool team which for three years won the city championship of Detroit. John Lichtenfeld, the third member of last year's frosh, is a guard with an uncanny eye for the basket. "Lichty" will be remembered as the star of the Centralia High basket team which three years ago performed brilliantly in the annual Washington interscolastic basket ball tournament. "Ted" Saussele, former Roosevelt luminary, is also out for a regular's position on the team, as is Don Laughlin, the fifth member of the frosh of last season. Laughlin is a former Principia Academy star.

An Ancient Feud.

Von Porat and Scott Battle Tonight; Winner May Get a Chance in World Title Bout

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—Otto von Porat of Norway, and Phil Scott, the fighting fireman from London, meet in a 12-round bout in Madison Square Garden tonight for charity's sake and for a possible "shot" at the heavyweight championship of the world.

Scott will have a six-pound weight advantage over Von Porat. Weighing in this afternoon Scott registered 204½ and Von Porat 198½. The weights for the semi-finals were: Maxie Rosenbloom, New York, 172½, and Yale Okum, New York, 170¾.

Twenty-four hours before the battle, William Muldoon, venerable New York State Athletic Commissioner and co-donor, with Gene Tunney of the Tunney-Muldoon heavyweight championship trophy, announced that so far as he could see there were only three real contenders for the vacant title—Jack Sharkey of Boston; Max Schmeling of Germany, and the winner of tonight's bout. In a general review of the heavyweight situation, Muldoon outlined plans for two matches, one in Miami in February, and the other in New York in September, by which he hoped the throne could be acceptably filled.

Under Muldoon's plan the survivor of tonight's bout would meet Sharkey or Schmeling at Miami with the winner battling Sharkey or Schmeling for the title in September. Thus if Sharkey gets the call in February and won, he would meet Schmeling in September and vice versa should Schmeling be picked for the Miami fight.

Sorry Scott Made Match.

At 85, Muldoon wields tremendous power in the boxing game. Because of his position as State Commissioner and co-donor of the heavyweight trophy, as well as because of the sheer force of his pions of great nations," declared the veteran commissioner. "For that reason I am frank to say that I am sorry tonight's match ever was made. Scott is the recognized champion of England and England ranks next to us as a great nation. I felt that Scott qualified for the finals by his victory over Campolo.

"It was not necessary for Scott to meet anyone but Sharkey or Schmeling to win the title. The big goal for Scott was a match with our champion, Sharkey."

Dempsey Will Referee.

In the event that Schmeling, who stands suspended in this state at present, declines to enter the tournament, Muldoon said only one thing could be done. "That will be to recognize the winner of tomorrow night's fight and Jack Sharkey as the finalists and decide the tournament by a bout between them," he explained.

With Muldoon's announcement as an added incentive to fans and with Jack Dempsey to be the referee, tonight's card, for the benefit of the Christmas charity fund of which Mrs. Randolph Hearst is chairman, should be a sell-out. Von Porat, because of his great punching power, ruled a slight favorite over the clever Briton.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Mum's the Word.

ONE of the interesting features at the Chattanooga baseball meeting was the thunder of silence that followed Commissioner Landis' denunciation of "chain store" baseball ownership.

Why?

Because "mum" HAS to be the word, when Judge Landis speaks, whether what he says hurts or not. That's because under the joint agreement, it is stipulated in the bond that public criticism of the commissioner or his acts is an offside play and punishable. It was Ban Johnson's refusal to stay onside that eventually brought him to the lowly position of a mere sideline observer.

Gagged Themselves.

THE ridiculous situation into which the major league magnates betrayed themselves by signing the joint agreement some 10 years ago, must have seared itself into the intelligence of more than one chain store villain at Chattanooga. His banquet must have lost its savor, when he thought of how he and his associates had muzzled themselves for all time.

Ah, well, he says a plenty. Ask Messrs. Rickey, Ball & Co.

What They Might Say.

WHAT the "chain store" owners might say, were they permitted even meekly to voice their protests, would be just the antithesis of the commissioner's allegations. They would contend that the lesser minor leagues could not exist except for the support of major league club owners.

Every major league club owner probably has had the same experience as that of the St. Louis clubs, namely, that minor league franchises are repeatedly being offered to them by clubs that are on the rocks.

The lesser classification "farms" of all major league clubs are nonpaying propositions and are maintained solely as "schools" for the development of players. Were these "farms" not owned by the majors, many of them would pass out of existence.

Iowa Not Entirely "Out"

IN CLOSING the door quite politely in the face of Iowa University, the Western Conference did not lock and bolt it. In fact, it left open a little crack which, if Iowa sees fit, can be converted into an open door.

The official statement as good as says that if Iowa will continue its housecleaning and eliminate the elements which it was expected to dispense with, the way will be found to restore the Hawkeyes to full membership.

The situation is squarely up to Iowa's willingness to comply with the house-cleaning requirements. It appears that the Big Ten means CLEANING, not whitewashing.

The New Golf Ball.

ON NEW YEARS day the new golf ball, which is larger yet lighter than the present standard ball, will become "official." The ball has been on the market some weeks and players have been trying it out, with varying success.

There has been some complaint, but one expert who has pursued an extensive investigation, expresses the view that for all players except those who consistently play under 85, the new ball will be a benefit, not a handicap; while for the boys who shoot around 110 it will prove a positive blessing. Here are the views of Mr. O. B. Keeler, who has been called Bobby Jones' Boswell:

> "For the man who does not play regularly under 85 the new ball should take from two to six strokes off his average round. It will sit up better in the fairway and also in the rough, being larger and lighter. It will come up more smartly from the uncertain blows dealt by inexpertly wielded wood or iron or pitching club.
> "It will stop more quickly on the green from any kind of approach. It will go farther from the tee, the average drive being considered, than the present ball, under the blow of the average hitter, who has never been able to stir the small, tightly wound 1.62 ball to its energy-packed core."

Extend the Wightman Cup Scope.

FROM London comes a proposal of interest. It is, to put the Wightman cup tennis competition for women on the same plane as the Davis Cup play for men by making it international.

The suggestion calls for a European zone play to determine what nation shall oppose the American team for the trophy.

The plan should be followed, if it can attain results such as crowned the Davis Cup competition. Today competition for the bowl donated in 1900 by Dwight Davis of St. Louis has enlisted the active interest of more than two-score nations, with the field constantly widening. In many of the countries represented, tennis was little known prior to the publicity attending the Davis Cup matches. Since that time the growth of this splendid sport has brought pleasure and keen interest to the peoples of five continents and Australasia.

DORTONS BEAT COOK A. C. IN MUNY SOCCER

With one notable exception, there were few changes in the Municipal Soccer standings after yesterday's games on public park gridirons.

The exception was at Sherman Park, where the Dortons went into first place by defeating the Cook Athletic Club, 3 to 1. A record of six victories and only one defeat is now held by the Dortons, while the Cook A. C., which until yesterday led the Sherman Park division, is second with five victories and two defeats.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9. — The Louisiana law of 1928 prohibiting animal racing on tracks less than one mile in length, was sustained today by the Supreme Court, which affirmed the decree of the lower courts.

The Louisiana Greyhound Club, Incorporated, which had constructed a dog racing plant, attacked the validity of the law, insisting that there was no substantial justification for making a mile the minimum length.

Explaining that the cost of constructing a mile-track would, in large measure, prevent dog racing, counsel in supporting the statute declared the Legislature was aiming to attain that end. Members of the Supreme Court expressed the view that the State had the right to resort to the measures it had adopted to suppress dog racing.

$7500 OFFER TO FREE BANKRUPT IS O K'D

Judge Faris to Consider Release of B. S. Reiss—Year in Jail for Contempt.

Bernard S. Reiss, bankrupt shoe dealer, who has served a year in jail at intervals since he was sentenced in June, 1927, to serve "from now on" or until he produced $27,345 for his creditors, may obtain his release under a $7500 compromise offer filed in Federal Court today.

Upon reading the application, Federal Judge Faris said he would order the trustee in bankruptcy, Joseph Reardon, to accept the offer, and that after the money had been paid he would consider an application for the release of Reiss.

Reardon recommended that the compromise be accepted. Reiss still maintains that he is penniless, but his mother and two brothers, Ben and George Reiss, have raised $7500 in order to free Bernard.

"From now on" can be a long time, as Reiss has learned since Bankruptcy Referee Coles, convinced that Reiss was hiding assets and had not gambled them away as he asserted, ordered him to turn over $27,345 to his creditors, and cited him for contempt for failing to do so.

In finding Reiss guilty of contempt, Judge Faris sentenced him to the Warrenton, Mo., jail "from now on" or until purged of contempt. Three times Reiss has left the jail for appeals and rehearings, but each time he has gone back, his latest stay commencing last July.

At one time relatives made a compromise offer of $9000. No explanation is made now for the reduction to $7500.

Fifteen minutes later, Harold Johnson, attendant at a filling station at 3002 North Vandeventer avenue, was robbed of $20 by three men answering the same description.

Returning to his home at 6431 Nashville avenue at 9:55 p. m. after closing a filling station at Grand and Forest Park boulevards, where he is employed, James Brazell was robbed of $125 by two men who held him up as he was putting his car in the garage.

TO REARRANGE DISPLAYS AT JEFFERSON MEMORIAL

Extensive and Drastic Reorganization Undertaken on Policy of I. H. Lionberger.

Extensive rearrangement of museum displays at Jefferson Memorial, toward greater interest and educational benefit, has been decided upon by Missouri Historical Society.

Archeological exhibits, now occupying 35 showcases, are to be arranged in better form for the special student, and yet to monopolize less space. Indian artifacts of general interest will remain on display. Some duplicates, now stored at the Memorial, will be selected for loan to high schools.

Though drastic in effect, the changes require a comparatively small outlay, to be made up by economy in other directions. They are in line with the policy of President I. H. Lionberger of the society—to give every visitor to the Memorial a pleasant and lasting view of St. Louis history.

BONDS IRREGULAR IN LIGHTER TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The bond market moved irregularly through a dull session today. There was a nominal mark up in the time money quotations, in line with the seasonal trend, but the list suffered from a slackening of interest. Losses in the rails and in United States Governments were numerous, although turnovers ruled small.

The mixed price trend found gains of about a point in American Writing Paper 6s, Pacific Telephone 5s, Laclede Gas 5s, Brooklyn Edison 6s, Atlantic Gulf and West Indies 5s, Pennsylvania Railroad gold 5s and a few others, but these were balanced by declines in General Steel Castings 5½s, Canadian National Railway 4½s, Union Oil of California 5s, Wabash first 5s, Niagara Falls Power 6s, and St. Louis Southwestern 4s.

Stock feature issues fluctuated erratically, and failed to register important net changes. The two telephone 4½s were up and down within a moderate range. Chicago & Northwestern 4¾s held firm. Remington Rand 5½c, with warrants, gained a point.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—Declaring an emergency existed, directors of the Chicago Board of Trade today adopted a resolution that on and after Saturday, Dec. 14, the delivery of rye in cars shall be deemed a valid tender of contracts during the month of December instead of waiting for delivery in elevators the last few days of the month. Unsettled contracts here for the December delivery of rye amounted to 7,013,000 bushels. A much larger total than the aggregate of stocks on hand.

LEADING UTILITIES ON CURB REACT LATE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The bull party was finally thrown from the saddle toward the close of the Curb Market today, and leading utilities and several other popular shares closed about 1 to 10 points lower. The price trend had been irregularly higher during the major part of the session. But persistent pressure against Electric Bond and Share and other important utility shares prominent in last week's rise finally turned the tables.

Bond and Share closed with a loss of nearly 6 points, and American Gas and Electric was off 8, while among the lower priced shares, American Superpower, Associated Gas A, United Power and Light A, and Allied Power and Light lost a point or two. Middle West Utilities held fairly firm, however, and American Cities Power and Light closed up 2. Standard Power and Light closed with a gain of 10 points, having sold up 15.

Some of the oils were strong. Gulf was bid up 10 points and closed near the top, and Vacuum finished the day a couple of points higher. Standard of Indiana and Cities Service were active but moved in narrow ranges. Humble and Cosden sagged in light trading.

Aluminum Co. was a strong spot of the high-priced industrials, selling up 26 points, and closing with a net gain of nearly 20. Tubize sold off about 5 points, but rallied to close 2 higher. American Cyanamid was in good demand. Moving up about a point, and closing firm. Fox Theaters A rallied moderately.

Swift & Co. opened 6 points higher in reflection of the announcement of the 4-for-1 splitup, but lost much of its gain before the close. The new stock was admitted to trading on A when issued basis in the early afternoon. It sold as high as 34⅝ and closed a point lower.

Mines were firm. Newmont closed up 4 points, and Roan Antelope Copper and Mayflower Associates gained about a point. Noranda, however, was dull.

In the investment trusts small gains were scored during the forenoon, but largely lost before the close, and such issues as Trans American, Goldman Sachs, Shenandoah, and Lehman Corp. closed moderately lower

COTTON CLOSES LOWER ON NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—The Government crop report was just about in line with average expectations in the cotton market, but seemed to bring out more realizing by recent buyers than buying and was followed by a moderate decline. The market was firmer before its publication on covering, with active months selling about 10 to 14 points above Saturday's closing quotations. This advance evidently eased the technical position, and the market yielded under comparatively small offerings in the later trading, with active months showing net losses of about 10 to 13 points around 2 o'clock.

Futures closed barely steady, 8 to 20 points lower, December, 17.02c; January, 17.09@17.10c; March, 17.36c; May, 17.62@17.63c; July, 17.76c; October, 17.86c; spot quiet, middling, 17.20c.

oCtton opened steady at an advance of 3 to 8 points today in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables and further covering in preparation for the Government crop estimate.

The advance was checked by realizing and prices eased a point or two after the call, but the market showed a fairly steady undertone and there appeared to be a little trade buying as well as rebuying by recent sellers.

Trade interests were credited with selling near months and buying later deliveries and October was relatively firm. Trading was only moderately active with the market holding about 3 to 5 points net higher before session had progressed far.

Liverpool cable said that scattering liquidation had been absorbed by trade calling and covering in that market and that Manchester was awaiting the Government crop report.

There was a flurry of covering in advance of the Government crop report which sent prices up to 17.40c for January and 17.95c for May, or about 10 to 15 points above Saturday's closing quotations. Prices were within a few points of these figures when business was suspended to receive the crop figures. These proved almost exactly in line with expectations, the estimated production of 14,919,000 bales of 500 pounds gross comparing with an average of New York Cotton Exchange members as indicated by last week's canvass of 14,900,000 bales.

The failure of the report to show a greater falling off seemed a disappointment to holders of contracts, which led to a flurry of liquidation when the market reopened. January sold off to 17.22c, or about 4 points net lower, but offerings diminished and the market was quiet at midday, with prices showing rallies of 8 or 10 points from the lowest.

THE WAY OF A WOMAN

By Marguerite M. Marshall

REAL BARGAINS.

SHOPPING—like the poor—we have always with us, but autumn shopping is now in full swing. While women some time ago finished outfitting the younger generation for school and college, they are still buying their own new winter clothes, still puzzling over the problem of how far they'll allow themselves to be dominated—and their dress allowances decimated—by the new skirts and silhouettes. The home has to be furnished up for the holidays, with new curtains and draperies, linen and rugs, and maybe the daybed or the Coggeshall chair which has been a long-felt want.

Eighty-five per cent of the buying in American families is done by women. Some, of course, are foolish and extravagant in their expenditure. But many more women, it seems to us, do no harder work than that of trying to make the five-dollar pocketbook cover the family's ten-dollar needs and tastes. With a budget, with careful study of advertisements, with tireless trudging from shop to shop to compare prices and values, the intelligent American wife and mother does her level best to fight the cost of living, which climbs forever at a faster rate than the average husband's salary or income.

It seems to us awfully lucky for him that his wife does most of the buying. He goes into a shop, asks for an article and takes the first shown him, simply because he hasn't the moral courage to tell the clerk that he thinks the price exorbitant. Catch his wife flinching from such an avowal! On a like occasion, she will remark, between impatience and indignation: "I can get the same thing for 25 cents less at Blank's." Then she turns on her heel, walks out and goes to Blank's.

THE intelligent shopping woman wouldn't be intelligent, however, if she thought she knew it all. She is always ready to take competent counsel over her job. That is why we believe a large feminine audience will welcome one of the autumn publications called "The Shopping Book." In it William H. Baldwin tells women how to get their money's worth in buying practically everything which women do buy—floor coverings, furniture, kitchen equipment, china and glass and leather and silver, textiles, wearing apparel, package groceries—even beauty preparations! Real bargains and how to find them by simple tests for quality are described in this book.

"Use your head" is the burden of Mr. Baldwin's song to the shopper, and here are 14 points he offers for her general guidance:

"1. Look to your household and not to the advertisements to determine your needs.

"2. A real need is clear-cut and can be visualized. If it is a 'round' need, no square peg, however attractive in itself, will ever fill it.

"3. Advertisements are often as significant for what they omit as for what they say. They are special pleadings, not complete descriptions.

"4. Merchants tell you about their bargains; it's up to you to determine whether they are yours.

"5. Price is the factor we think of most often and most unintelligently. Price is always secondary to need. High prices are by no means assurance of quality. Low prices are often associated with most expensive 'bargains.'

"6. Anticipating a need to take advantage of a 'bargain' is frequently pure speculation.

"7. 'Sales' are no more honest than the merchants who conduct them. Price reductions may be fictitious and inferior goods may be mixed with those described in the advertising.

"8. Federal and State courts may order sales in bankruptcies; but the courts in no way take responsibility for the merchandising honesty in such sales.

"9. Delivery, credit, the privilege of returning goods, rest rooms, personal shopping services are among the conveniences found in stores. The services are obviously costly to operate and the customer pays for them (whether or not she uses them herself) in the necessarily higher 'mark-up' or price range.

"10. However, the shopper cannot classify stores as expensive or cheap solely on the basis of the conveniences offered to her. Efficiency of management is the controlling factor in price.

"11. Cash is the basis of all buying and selling and is the most economical policy in shopping. However, paying cash in a store which extends credit to any of its customers does not command the full saving incident to a strictly cash policy.

"12. Twenty-five dollars plus 10 times $10 is never less than $125—even in the case of 'easy payments.'

"13. Good taste in the color and design of even the most commonplace articles of household use is becoming an important factor in determining values, but utility or fulfilment of purpose remains the backbone of good design.

"14. The sales clerk is your only direct contact with the world of merchandise. Make the most of that contact."

HEARTS HAVEN

By Mildred Barbour

The Struggle of The Heart and Conscience of Christine Farr

CHAPTER 18.

The Great Decision.

THE swaying of the train kept Christine awake. It was stuffy and crowded in the narrow berth. With the two babies sleeping beside her, she dared not switch on the light and read.

So she lay there, staring into the darkness. Her thoughts were in chaos; she still felt a horribly "gone" sensation when she forced herself to face the decision she had made, the irretrievable step that she had taken, without definite plan or assurance.

After her interview with her parents on the evening of her homecoming, when her father had told her decisively that he could not and would not undertake the support of herself and her children, and her mother had urged her to sacrifice her pride and return to her husband, Christine had gone to her room and paced the floor for hours.

It seemed as if, on every side, she faced a blank wall. The blind faith with which she had returned to her parents, confident of a welcome, had betrayed her. The mere thought of ever returning to Harvey was dismissed with scorn and repugnance.

There was nothing to do but take upon herself the burden of maintaining her children, though, when she had announced to her family her decision to do so, it had been more of a gesture than a real decision.

It was not until she had gone to her room that a little, disturbing voice raised itself and asked how she was going to accomplish this task. What qualifications had she that would enable her to support her children, to clothe them, to provide an adequate home?

SHE took stock of her accomplishments and discovered not one money-earning asset, except her modest ability to write. Her book of fairy stories proved a cheering thought. She had made a little money from its publication. Perhaps she might write other stories and make more.

In the meantime, she had no funds of her own, except the proceeds from that little book and a small sum that had been left her by her godmother. That would be enough, for a while. After that was gone, then what?

She had forced down her panic that night and had gone to look at her babies. At the sight of them, resolution welled up in her heart. She would not submit them to the disgrace of living on money to which they had no right. She would not poison their lives by returning them to an atmosphere bereft of love and trust.

The dawn had found Christine unable to compose herself for slumber. Even after she had gone to bed, her mind was busy with plans. She would go to New York. Cousin Anna had an apartment there. She would take her in. Cousin Anna always understood: there was enough money to last for a while, and meantime, she would make the rounds of the magazine offices and the publishing houses. She would be able to find work somehow.

So now she lay in a stuffy berth in a train that dashed through the night, reeling off the miles that laid between her and her former security. The future loomed ahead, vast, impenetrable, frightening. It took all her courage to face it.

COUSIN ANNA, in response to Christine's telegram, met the tired little trio in Penn Station. She knew nothing of her niece's reason for coming to New York.

Christine smiled a trifle wanly, but her head was raised defiantly and her pretty chin was very resolute.

"My decision to come was very sudden, Cousin Anna. You are a dear to take us in."

"Pouf, that's nothing," declared the lady who was looking very smart and youthful, despite her gray hair. "I've been awfully lonely here in New York, but I wouldn't admit it to a soul at home. It will be nice to have you around, even though my apartment is a mere box of a place."

As they drove away from the station, she remarked with a chuckle: "Chris, did you know that Lewis Hayes is living in New York? I saw him the other day on Fifth Avenue."

"You are a dear to take us in."

THE STORY OF THE RICHEST MAN IN THE WORLD

The Life of John D. Rockefeller by John K. Winkler begins next Monday in this section of the Post-Dispatch.

Mr. Winkler's interesting biography answers all the questions commonly asked about the billionaire oil magnate—his boyhood environment, business beginnings, rise to power, charities, amusements, etc.

Household Helps

A woman who does all her own housework was annoyed by her rough hands while sewing on a delicate fabric, so she washed them in warm water to which she added some common [illegible] and she was astonished at the soft, velvety feeling. She says it also whitens the skin.

A couple of gray scatter rugs in the room of a business woman faded out during the summer. They were not badly worn, so to make them go over the winter she cleaned them and painted a 2-inch and a 1-inch-wide stripe in deep blue at each end on one end and a 2½-inch stripe in green at each end of the other, using a [illegible] stick to keep a straight edge, and the result is a very attractive rug and it requires close scrutiny to detect the paint, and she used just the ordinary paint that comes in tin cans.

Hotter Food.

Before carrying hot liquids to the sick room, fill the container with boiling water and let stand for a few minutes. Pour out and fill with the nourishment. The food will stay hot longer and the journey through the house to the patient will not affect the temperature of the food.

Like New.

Children's woolen underwear has to be scrubbed so vigorously that it frequently becomes hardened. Try adding some borax to the last rinse water and hang the underwear out without wringing. Let it dry in a strong wind and see how much improved it will be.

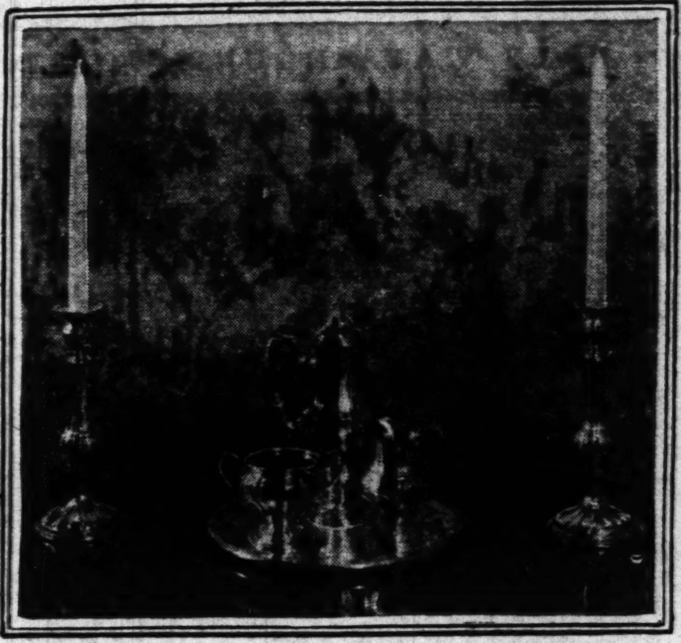
TALES THAT TABLES TELL

By Alma Zaiss



IT is one thing to look forward to that day when the good fortunes of the family will make it possible to display complete and luxurious furnishings for every room. That day dream has its own peculiar thrill and furnishes stimulation to endeavor.

But however enchanting this vision, it should not be allowed to overshadow the equally enjoyable experience of making the most of prized possessions which the home at present owns.

We all know households which possess many fascinating treasures—exquisite silver and china, chests filled with fancy linens—which only on rare occasions make their appearance to dazzle guests with their grand magnificence. Between times rather plain appointments are considered good enough for family use.

Without in any sense recommending formal dinners and gala decorations as a daily dose, still it is true that "the pest" is a great inspiration. Those who are wise capitalize this subtle influence without going to extremes and find its reflection in the ideals, often the achievements, of the household.

And this is particularly true of table appointments, for pretty table service in everyday use creates all manner of pleasant impressions. The woman whose pride in her home extends beyond the occasions of actual entertaining seeks always to arrange her prized possessions in attractive display.

Nothing could serve as a better decoration in the dining room, for instance, than this balanced arrangement of sterling silver, whose aristocratic lines are effectively set off by the background of dark mahogany. A design rendered in the French spirit, the complete group composed of arte-dinned coffee set, tray and candlesticks to match, is effectively bound together through the harmony of its pattern, and sounds a note of luxury which must be a most pleasing daily reminder.

Sets as lovely as this one, and its equivalent in other objects of art, are no doubt reposing in many a treasure chest awaiting high days and holidays. They should be out in action, encouraging us on blue days, echoing triumphs on good days, with us as constant com ions—instead of speaking only our friends.

Exploring Cliff Dwellings with the LINDBERGHS

BY

EDWARD M. WEYER, JR.

WO New Mexicans and I were the only white men in Canyon del Muerto, in the heart the Indian country of Arizona. amped in the bottom of the yon, we were about 90 miles m the nearest railroad; it med like a thousand from any ace. We were searching for an- t cliff dwellingr and unearth- g relics of a vanished people. mmed in by towering rock lls, our expedition could enter d leave the canyon only through mouth. And that avenue was t off.

On July 25, Mr. and Mrs. Earl rris, archeologists both, had iven out with two of our three rs, headed on business elsehere. Then the floods descend- d and the dry, sandy bottom of e canyon became a turbulent ver of mud soup. For almost ree weeks it was impossible to ove out with the third car.

We were bivouacked under an erhanging cliff, without tents. was a wild, carefree, primitive fe. It was like living a million ears ago, before the dawn of his- ry. Then a surprise came, which suddenly snapped us back to the twentieth century.

One afternoon we heard a dis- t roaring. It was neither the lling of thunder, nor the rush- g of water which heralds the proach of a turbulent flood in e canyon.

"It's an airplane!" exclaimed car Tatman. "I wish he'd fly er the canyon—it'd be worth tting the roof of your mouth nburned to see something like that!"

The throbbing grew louder and then swelled to double intensity as the plane shot into view directly erhead at the rim of the canyon. With her rich blue body and bright orange wings she was a autiful sight, and so close she was that we thought we could see the occupants.

SEVERAL Navajo Indians at our camp watched the plane wild-eyed. Only one of them uld speak English, and he told us that the fellow doing the most jabbering was insisting that whatever the thing was, it could not have a man in it. Another Navajo had heard of airplanes, but he thought they flapped their wings like a bird.

"Too bad he couldn't drop in on us for a visit," said Oscar, "but they didn't make the canyon wide enough for that."

The plane circled above our camp and soared off over the opposite wall of the canyon. The roar grew fainter; then it died abruptly, as though the motor had stopped.

"A crash is the only thing that can happen with the engine killed," Oscar said. "That country above the canyon is a no good place for a fellow to come down. There's too much scrub cedar and sagebrush. He'd crash sure." Oscar spoke from close familiarity with the country, gained through service with many archeological expeditions.

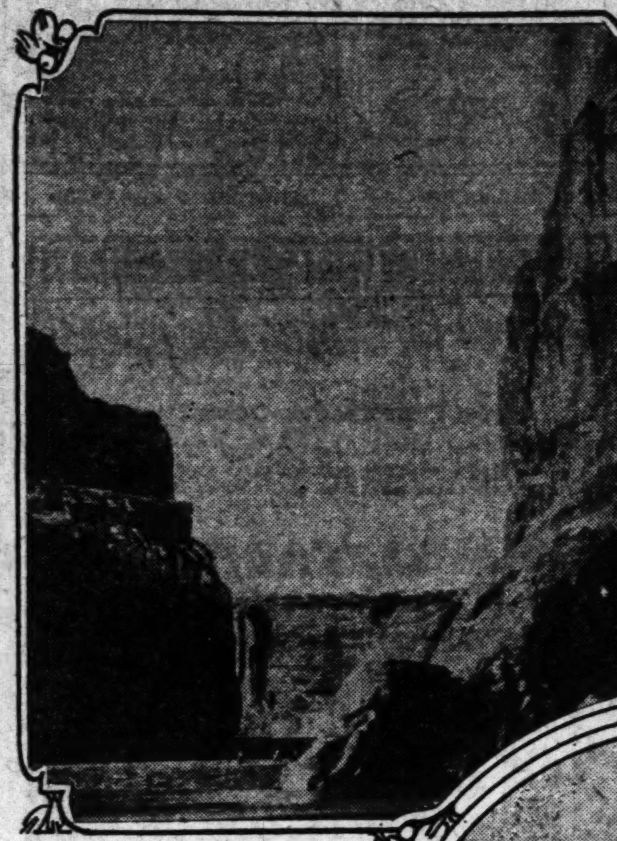
"It sounds bad, but what can we do?" This from Omar.

What could we? The gigantic imprisoning wall of the canyon rose between us and the place where we had last seen the plane. No trail, to our knowledge, scaled that sheer rock.

For an hour we talked mostly about the plane. We could only speculate as to what had happened to it after it had soared past the rim of the canyon. It had passed out of our little world as suddenly as it had appeared, leaving the sky silent save for the hideous squawking of several carrion birds which had resumed their sentinel duty. The ship had come down, or else the echoes of the canyon had misled us into believing that the motor had died.

"I wonder whether they saw us," said Omer at length.

With a start, Oscar's face became alert. We followed his gaze across the canyon bottom, and he pointed to a curious form wending its way along the opposite side of the canyon.



Canyon del Muerto, in the heart of the Arizona Indian country. In this deserted place the explorers felt they were living a million years ago. The roar of Colonel Lindbergh's airplane over the canyon's walls brought them back to the twentieth century in an instant.

WHAT could the figure be? Surely it was distorted by the desert air, or it was a creature such as never walked this earth. Now it was coming across the river, with slow and lengthy strides, picking each step gingerly to avoid quicksand. Yes, it was a man—a man with uncommonly long legs, bearing a cumbersome pack.

On the nearer bank he put down his load, which, to our surprise, walked spryly away on its own legs. On nearer approach the "load" turned out to be a woman, dressed in man's garb and diminutive in comparison with the height of her companion, under whose arm she could have walked nearly upright.

With the plodding stride of spent travelers they drew up to us.

"How are you fixed for grub?" spoke the voice that had whispered "Keep going!" to the Spirit of St. Louis. "Er . . . you'll excuse me, this is Mrs. Lindbergh—it's for her."

"How d'ya do," was Oscar's greeting, as though the Lindberghs had been in the habit of dropping in every other afternoon "You must be tired and hungry. Just sit down on those boxes. Sorry, there isn't a chair in camp That's the way it goes—you never know what you are going to want until it's too late. Life's like that You aren't starving or anything?"

"Oh, no. We always carry emergency rations, in case anything should happen, But we brought just our bed roll with us, and since it's a long hard climb up to the ship we thought of staying with you a little."

"You bet," said Oscar. "Just settle down. You can have the Blue Room," he added, referring the Lindberghs to the far end of the rainbow, so to speak, in our partitionless rock shelter. "We'll rustle up a pair of cots pretty quick."

Daily Story FOR CHILDREN

A Wonderful Call

Soon he was ready. How happy it made them to think he was sharing his adventures with them, and that they could go with him when he turned the time backward or forward according to his wish.

He could make it any time at all.

"We have a long journey to make this evening," he began, "but we'll get there. Oh, yes, we'll get there all right!"

He led them to a sleigh, and as soon as they were in it the horses started to scamper off, fairly flying over the crisp, hard snow.

The bells jingled, the lights of the places they passed twinkled merrily as though they knew something wonderful was going to happen.

They did not pass a great many places. Nor did there seem to be a large number of houses.

"I believe you've turned the time back," Peggy said. "The world doesn't look as filled up as we know it."

"That's what I've done," the Little Black Clock said. "Ah, here we are!"

They got out of the sleigh. They saw one little red house, and back of it a great, long, wooden building that looked as if it might be a workshop. It was very cold.

"Come inside," the Little Black Clock said. "Something has just been decided. We can hear what it is."

They went inside and saw a man with a snowy white beard, bright red cheeks and deep blue eyes. He was smiling and talking to a huge St Bernard dog who was sitting at his feet, in front of an open fire.

"I don't believe I'll ever feel old again," the man was saying to his dog. "Why, you have no idea how young it has made me feel ever since I built the workshop."

"It's Santa Claus," whispered Peggy.

"Hush! Hush! We want to hear what he has to say," the Little Black Clock told them.

YOU AND YOUR CHILD

By Irma Morris

THE CENTER OF THE STAGE

BILLY was bouncing his ball on the street. All of a sudden off it rolled, down some steps and out of sight.

"Don't go after it," frantically called Billy's mother, and down the steps she went to the rescue.

"Don't do that again," she shrilled angrily as, panting for breath, she handed him the ball.

This "scene" had amused the boy. It had appealed to his dramatic sense. So, with a mischievous twinkle in his eye, he deliberately threw his ball where it had accidentally gone before. This time Billy's mother was very angry indeed, and a more exciting scene ensued, the affair finally ending in punishment for the child and a nervous upset for the mother.

It is ever so much better to avoid scenes if we possibly can. Most children adore them. They love to be the heroes and villains of a little drama. Wouldn't it have been wiser had Billy's mother either given the boy some other toy to play with or taken him to a place more suitable for ball playing?

Often a child refuses to eat his spinach or his oatmeal because he so thoroughly enjoys watching his mother's excitement. He likes to be coaxed and threatened. It makes him feel very important and gives him a sense of power when he sees how much his actions disturb this "big person." Many parents have found that it works much better to calmly tell a child that they expect him to eat his meal, and if he has not done so within a reasonable period to quietly remove it from the table. These parents have found that the child is usually very glad to eat everything that is set before him at his next meal, providing he has not been given anything between meals. Of course, there may be many other reasons for a child's refusal of food; but more often than we realize, it is caused by the youngster's desire to occupy the center of the stage.

The mother who says to her child in a casual, quiet manner, "That's not a nice word. Mother never uses it," when her youngster has brought in a "bad" word from the street, accomplishes much more than the one who impresses the word upon the child's mind by the excitement that has ensued upon its use.

Wise parents make very little "fuss" over their children's trivial mistakes and peculiarities, because they realize that scenes and over emphasis only intensify these undesirable habits.

THE MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland.

LOVE AND THE COLLAR-BUTTON.

SOMEBODY has suggested that the first step toward the masculine clothes reform should be to throw away the collar-button. The collar-button has been to man what the corset has been to women—the cruelest invention of civilization.

Yet, if parting with the collar-button means parting with the collar, it will be the last blow to romance!

If the stiff, linen collar ever goes completely out of fashion, there will have to be a Nineteenth Amendment making marriage compulsory. Nobody except Lord Byron could tempt a girl to marry him if he wore a soft, open collar ALL of the time.

No woman who has once seen a man's Adam's apple can ever again feel the same blind romance for him.

• • •

A woman may love a man for his weaknesses, for his sins, even for his masterful brutality—but she has to love him in SPITE of his neck!

If love is a lost art in these days, it is probably due to the popularity of the new, soft low collars, which makes Lord Byron and Ben Turpin look almost like cousins.

A woman's neck appears to curve imperceptibly down from her chin to her shoulders; but a man's neck always looks as though it had just been pasted on, as an afterthought.

Clergymen inveigh against the evils and temptations of the modern feminine decollete; but not even a Fundamentalist could find anything alluring about a man with an uncovered Adam's apple.

A wife can recover from the sight of a man's bare feet, or even from the sight of his chin covered with shaving-lather; but something goes dead in a bride's heart the first time she sees her husband without a collar.

Put a high, stiff, shining collar on the Missing Link and he could find SOME woman to pet him and call him "My hero!"

Eve may have started all the trouble in the world, but if Adam hadn't been in such a rush to help her, the apple might never have stuck in his throat, and man would never have been condemned to the torment of a starched linen collar.

British Science Groups Gain Women Fellows

WOMEN "Fellows" are on the increase among the members of British scientific bodies.

The British Institute of Chemistry has 186 women fellows and the Institute of Physics, 14. Women scientists obtain many important positions in Great Britain, particularly as university professors and as directors of industrial research.

Two women assist professors in the department of aeronautics in the Imperial College.

Easier to Handle.

Double blankets are much easier to handle, both in laundering and bedmaking if cut apart and bound separately. They are nice, too, on a warmer night when one may be removed if they prove too warm. The next time you wash your blankets cut them apart first and bind. You will enjoy them more.

Fourth Bridge Game Over Radio Tuesday

THE fourth bridge by radio game to be broadcast through Station KSD, Tuesday, at 3:30 p. m., will feature four widely-known bridge players. IT'S PRETTY ALL RIGHT BUT DON'T YOU THINK I SHOULD HAVE MY NAME ON THERE? "JONES-NEBB PICTURE CORPORATION"
IT WOULD BE NICE IF I HAD MY NAME ON IT SO WHEN I LOSE MY HOTEL I COULD CARRY ONE OF THE SHEETS WITH ME AND SHOW FOLKS THE REASON
I'LL SEE THAT YOUR NAME GOES ON THE BILL—AND THIS IS ONLY DEC. 9TH.—A MILLION THINGS CAN HAPPEN BEFORE JAN. 2ND.—WHILE THERE'S LIFE THERE'S HOPE—IF I WASN'T A FELLOW THAT LIVES FOR THE DAY, YOUR MENTAL ATTITUDE WOULD MAKE ME LOOK FOR A PEACEFUL RIVER IN WHICH TO HIDE MYSELF

HA. WHAT A RELIEF TO KNOW THAT GIDDY FLORENCE HAS LEFT HERE. AND HER HUSBAND IS JUST AS SILLY AS SHE IS TOO. HIM MAKING SUCH A HULLABALOO OVER GEORGE ESCORTING FLORENCE HOME FROM A MOVIE. WELL ANYHOW THIS WAS A GOOD LESSON FOR MR. BUNLGE.
I KNOW HE'D NEVER COMPLETELY LOSE HIS HEAD OVER ANY WOMAN, ESPECIALLY ONE AS SCATTERBRAINED AS FLORENCE. BUT ON THE OTHER HAND HE'S JUST LIKE ANY OTHER MAN WHEN A FRIZZY-HAIRED WOMAN ROLLS HER EYES AND CRIES ABOUT BEING TERRIBLY MISUNDERSTOOD.
WELL BELIEVE ME SHE WASN'T MISUNDERSTOOD BY ONE PERSON. SHE JUST WANTED TO SHOW ME HOW EASY IT WAS FOR HER TO LOOK AT ANY MAN AND HE'D RUN ROUND IN CIRCLES. HA, HER DAYS OF VAMPING MEN WERE OVER 10 YEARS AGO! FIGURES DON'T LIE. SHE'S EXACTLY 1 YEAR AND 2 MONTHS OLDER THAN I AM AND NEXT APRIL I'LL BE.........WELL NO MATTER, SHE'S OLDER THAN ME AND I HAD THE SATISFACTION OF TELLING HER SO TOO.
I BLAME GEORGE, TOO. MORE IN A WAY, BECAUSE THIS AFFAIR MADE ME REALIZE HOW LITTLE A MAN APPRECIATES ANYONE WHO SLAVES FROM MORNING UNTIL NIGHT WITH A BROOM IN HAND WEARING HERSELF TO SKIN AND BONES. AND FOR WHAT? HA, SO HER HUSBAND CAN WONDER WHY VAMPS, WHO HAVE NOTHING TO DO BUT WEAR SNAPPY CLOTHES AND SHELLAC THEIR FACES, LOOK SO ATTRACTIVE.
